LODGE FORCES WIN OPENING SKIRMISH OF TREATY BATTLE

Senate Adopts the Committee Preamble to the Ratification Resolution, 48 to 40.

HITCHCOCK SEES WILSON

President Gives Democratic Leaders Full Discretion to Accept Compromises.

FINDS PRESIDENT "ALERT"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—On the first real test of strength in the Senate today, Senator Lodge's forces polled a majority of eight votes in favor of the proposed preamble to the resolution of ratification which would require the written assent of three allied powers to American reservations. This preamble was adopted by a vote of 48 to 40 after several attempts to modify it had been defeated by the same or a greater margin. It was adopted in exactly the form proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Although this lineup may vary on different reservations proposed, Republican leaders assert that it was a complete demonstration that they have the necessary votes to frame the resolution of ratification in their own way. Two-thirds of the Senate must finally approve the resolution before the treaty can be ratified.

"The reservations and understandings adopted by the Senate are to be made a part and condition of the resolution of ratification, which ratification is not to take effect or bind the United States until the said reservations and understandings adopted by the Senate have been accepted by an exchange of notes as a part and condition of said resolution of ratification by at least three of the four principal allied and associated powers, to wit, Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan."

Mild reservationists, with the exception of Senator McCumber of North Dakota, voted with Senator Lodge, who was also supported by Senators Gore, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Reed from the Democratic side.

Before the first vote was taken Senator Hitchcock announced, after a conference at the President's bedside, that the President had said he would accept any compromise which friends of the treaty thought necessary, so long as the terms of the treaty itself were no endangered. Full discretion in accepting compromises was given to Senate leaders by the President, Senator Hitchcock added.

The Lodge reservations, including the preamble adopted by a majority vote today, were characterized as destructive by President Wilson, according to Senator Hitchcock. Whether the President would be willing for his supporters in the Senate to vote against ratification in case the Lodge reservations prevailed in the end was not indicated by Mr. Hitchcock.

The first roll call was on a motion by Senator McCumber to strike from the preamble the requirement that written acceptance of the American reservations be obtained from three allied powers before ratification by the Senate became effective. This was defeated, 48 to 40, eight Senators not voting. Had all voted, the final result would have been 52 to 44. This roll call was identical with a later one on the preamble proper, the result of which follows:

President Prepares a Message to the People for Armistice Day

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Wilson today wrote a message to the American people which will be made public on Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

SHONTS RICHES GO TO MRS. THOMAS

$100,000 FOR DAUGHTERS

Provision Made That Any Legatee Who Enters a Contest Shall Lose Bequest.

The will of Theodore P. Shonts, offered for probate in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by De Lancey Nicoll, personal counsel to the late President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, cuts off Mrs. Milla D. Shonts of 570 Park Avenue, his widow, with a life insurance policy of $5,000 and a portrait of herself executed by Prince Troubetzkoy. The will names "My friend," Mrs. Amanda Thomas, as the residuary legatee of the estate, estimated at $475,000.

The filing of the will follows the appointment on Thursday of Mrs. Shonts as temporary administratrix. In her application setting forth that she had made an unsuccessful hunt for a will Mrs. Shonts added that she had been informed that her husband during his last illness had attempted to execute a will leaving the bulk of his estate "to a certain woman in no way related to him or his family either by blood or marriage."

A person familiar with the private affairs of Mr. Shonts told newspapermen yesterday that he knew of at least eight wills which Mr. Shonts had made since 1900. He said that Mr. Shonts often had his wills withdrawn for trivial reasons. He recalled that on one occasion he had had his attorneys prepare a new will because in a previous one a butler with whom he had quarreled was mentioned as a legatee.

The will offered for probate was made on July 30, while Mr. Shonts was ill in his home at 930 Park Avenue, and was witnessed by James L. Quackenbush, Counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company; Chester A. Robinson, and Ralph Norton. The executors are Mr. Nicoll, E. J. Berwind, a Director of the Interborough, and the Guaranty Trust Company. Mr. Shonts died on Sept. 21.

A trust fund amounting to $100,000 is created for his two daughters, Mrs. Marguerite Bingham and the Duchess de Chaulnes of Paris. The will stipulates that the fund is to be enjoyed by the two daughters for life and eventually is to go to their issue. If either daughter should die without issue the sister remaining is to receive the income for life.

A similar fund is set aside by Mr. Shonts for the benefit of his sister, Miss Eva Marshall Shonts of Hinsdale, Ill., and his two nieces, Mary Merrifield and Jennie Wiffin of Chicago. After bequeathing to Mrs. Shonts the $5,000 life insurance policy and the portrait the testator says:

"Having by agreement, made in June, 1917, provided for my wife, Milla D. Shonts, I make no further provision for her in this will, except that I acknowledge an indebtedness to my wife in the sum of $100,000 payable within twelve months after my death."

To "My Friend," Mrs. Thomas.

The will then provides that the residuary estate shall go to "my friend," Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas, who lives at 930 Park Avenue, in the same apartment house where Mr. Shonts made his home.

In anticipation of a possible contest of his will Mr. Shonts inserted a clause providing that if any beneficiary attempted to break the will such action would automatically annul the bequest and that the share devised should go to Mrs. Thomas.

The next step in the fight over Mr. Shonts's estate, which promises to be bitter, will be taken this morning when Cornelius J. Sullivan, as attorney for the executors, will go before Surrogate Fowler and move to set aside the appointment of Mrs. Shonts. The motion will be opposed by Warren Dixon and George W. Files of 115 Broadway, counsel for Mrs. Shonts, both of whom expressed belief yesterday that the estate is much larger than the estimate made by Mr. Nicoll.

None of the principals in the legal fight could be found yesterday. Mrs. Shonts continued to maintain her silence, although her attorneys said she might discuss her side of the question in a few days. Mrs. Thomas was said to be "out of town" when efforts were made to see her at 930 Park Avenue.

Declaring that Mrs. Shonts had been supplied with a copy of the will offered for probate as well as copies of other wills her husband had made in his lifetime, Mr. Nicoll yesterday issued a statement accusing her of breaking an agreement made by her through S. Stanwood Menken, who preceded Mr. Files and Mr. Dixon as her counsel, not to take any court action until the arrival of the Duchess De Chaulnes, now in Europe.

"Mr. Shonts died Sept. 21, 1919," said Mr. Nicoll. "On July 30, 1919, he made a will which was substantially the same as two former wills, one dated April 16, 1918, and another dated June 8, 1919, with some minor changes. The last two wills were canceled upon the execution of the will of July 30, 1919. In January, 1917, Mr. Shonts made a prior will and

200 CAUGHT IN NEW YORK

MANY WILL BE DEPORTED

Russian People's House Raided and Tons of Literature Carried Away.

RED FLAG WAVED IN BRONX

Speaker at Bolshevist Celebration There Threatens a Revolution in America.

Choosing the second anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution in Russia as the psychological moment to strike, the Federal Government, aided by municipal police in New York and several other large cities, last night dealt the most serious and sweeping blow it has yet aimed at criminal anarchists.

Armed with warrants for dangerous agitators whom Federal agents have trailed for months, the raiders swarmed into the Russian People's House in New York and into similar gathering places of alleged "Reds" in Philadelphia, Newark, Detroit, Jackson, Mich.; Ansonia, Conn., and other cities, broke up meetings, seized tons of literature and herded the gangs of foreign men and women into various offices for examination, whence many of those who proved to be the most sought after of the radicals found their way into cells.

"Reds" to be Deported.

Though the Federal authorities were most reticent as to their plans and purposes, the fact that the warrants upon which they held twenty-seven in New York, thirty in Philadelphia, fifty in Detroit, thirty-six in Newark, and six in Jackson, were signed by United States Commissioner of Immigration Caminetti, led to the inference that it is the Government's purpose to deport as many of those taken as can be proved to be criminal anarchists.

From one of those co-operating with Chief Flynn of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, who, with Sergeant Gegan of the police Bomb Squad, led the raid in this city, came the declaration that many at least of those held were persons of provable criminal records. Twenty-five men were locked in cells in Police Headquarters here without their identity or the charges against them being disclosed, while two women, Ethel Bernstein and Dora Lipkin, were locked in a police station where there is a matron.

The police last night prevented a meeting of the Communist Labor Party which was to have been held in Laurel Garden to celebrate the Bolshevist anniversary while the Communist mass meeting scheduled for today in Rutgers Square was abandoned by those who sponsored it, with the assertion that they had discovered a "Secret Service plot," to "plant" operatives and force disorder.

Several meetings held in New York were marked by inflammatory speeches, one speaker at a meeting in the Bronx predicting the overthrow of the United States Government.

200 in Custody Here.

The police who raided headquarters in New York, the Russian People's House at 133 East Fifteenth Street, took about 200 men and women found there to the Department of Justice Headquarters in the Park Row Building for examination. The raid was carried out, it was said, under orders from Washington, and in addition to the men and women the police carried away several tons of documents, all of it said to be anarchist literature.

Those taken in the raid were examined last night by agents of the Department of Justice, and those who were able to prove citizenship were released. The examination was still under way at a late hour, and it was said that the ones who couldn't give a good account of themselves would be held at the Old Slip Police Station for further interrogation today.

Sergeant Gegan in Charge.

The police, who included besides plain clothes men from headquarters a number of Department of Justice agents, were under direction of Sergeant J. J. Gegan of the Bomb Squad, who has been co-operating with Government officials here in the effort to root out the anarchists known to be in New York.

Neither Sergeant Gegan nor any of his men would discuss the raid, all of them asserting that they were silent under orders of Chief William Flynn, recently appointed head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department, with orders to leave no stone unturned to end all symptoms of anarchy in the United States.

The raid was executed swiftly. Automobiles filled with detectives, uniformed police, and Federal agents drove up quietly one by one and parked on side streets. When the building at 133 was completely surrounded the men in charge of each section of the raiding party ordered their men to the ground, and they went forward.

Those within had not the slightest idea of what was coming and the po-

Lansing and Other Officials to Greet Wales at the Border

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Secretary of State Lansing and other Government officials will greet the Prince of Wales at the international border when he comes to visit the United States. The Prince is expected to reach Washington on Armistice Day, next Tuesday, and will be welcomed at the Union Station by Vice President Marshall, acting for President Wilson.

Accompanied by a military escort, the Prince will drive to the Belmont residence on New Hampshire Avenue, which has been fitted up for his occupancy. The official program for the visit will include visits to the White House, Mount Vernon, and the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Major Gen. Biddle, who commanded the American troops in England during the war, will serve as aide de camp to the Prince during his stay in this country.

FOSTER IS DRIVEN OUT OF JOHNSTOWN

TO RID CITY OF AGITATORS

Citizens' Committee Takes Vigorous Measures—Foster to Speak Here Tonight.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Nov. 7.—W. Z. Foster, secretary of the National Committee for Organizing Iron and Steel Workers, did not address a strikers' meeting in the Labor Temple here today as scheduled because plain clothes men from the City Hall, under instructions from Chief of Police Briney, requested him to leave the city. The police had information, they said, that there would be serious trouble if Foster carried out his program.

The largest hall at the Labor Temple was jammed with strikers, who were indignant when informed of the action of the police. Organizers calmed them and said that the men must be prepared for news of further restrictions on their leaders.

Foster was requested to leave town by city detectives and by a committee of business men who were active later in the day. He was accompanied as far as Conemaugh on a Pennsylvania Railroad train. No charges of any sort were made against him here, and there was no warrant for his arrest at City Hall.

At Altoona tonight Foster made a statement to The Associated Press which indicated he did not know part of his escort in Johnstown was composed of prominent business men.

Says He Was Run Out of Town.

"City police and others took it upon themselves to order me out of town," he said. "A couple of newspapermen met me on the street as I came from the station. They told me the business men had met and decided they would use Duquesne and McKeesport tactics. They warned me there would be a riot at Labor Temple if I went there to speak. While I was taking lunch at a restaurant the reporters told me the business men were ready to 'clean up,' and that they have elected the Mayor they want.

On the street two city detectives advised me not to go to the hall. When I asked them whether the authorities could not protect me they told me the best protection I could have was to get out of the town.

"I went to Conboy's hotel and sent for him. When he came I told him I took the situation seriously, as I did not wish to have any disorder.

"We agreed to go to see the Chief of Police and the Mayor, but on the sidewalk a score or more of men surrounded me and I was cut off from Conboy.

"They headed me toward the Pennsylvania Station, and I went.

"There was nothing else to do. A city detective accompanied us and we passed several policemen. My escort told me they were ready to clean up.

"I told them I had done more than any man in Johnstown for months to keep the mills going there and to prevent a strike, and they agreed with me. I told them Conboy was honest and asked them to give him a square deal."

Citizens Plan to Run Out Agitators.

A business men's committee, including W. R. Lunk, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and H. I. Tredonnick, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and aided by steel workers who wish to return to work, tonight began active operations in a campaign to "run the organizers out of town."

T. J. Conboy, chief organizer, a big crowd waiting for him on the street was told, has agreed to leave Johnstown by 5 o'clock tomorrow evening, or as soon thereafter as he can arrange his ac-

GOVERNMENT'S CASE READY

RUMORS OF DELAY HEARD

But Ames Reaffirms Strike Is Illegal and That He Is There to Have It Recalled.

MINERS MUCH CONCERNED

Counsel Will Urge That Clayton Amendment to Sherman Act Prohibits Injunction.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Although rumors persist that a way will be found to settle the coal miners' strike, so far as is known here tonight the Federal Government will press its petition for a temporary injunction and request for an order requiring the officials of the United Mine Workers of America to recall their strike order at the hearing before Judge A. B. Anderson in the Federal Court tomorrow.

"That's what we are here for," said C. B. Ames, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, who, with Henry S. Mitchell, reached Indianapolis from Washington at noon today, when he was asked whether the Government would insist on revocation of the strike order.

"The strike is a violation of the law, and we shall ask for an order requiring the strike to be called off," he said.

Shortly after Mr. Ames and Mr. Mitchell registered at their hotel, Dan W. Simms, who was appointed Special Assistant District Attorney to enforce the temporary restraining order, called, and the three conferred on the hearing tomorrow.

The hearing will determine whether the temporary restraining order issued a week ago shall be dissolved or whether it shall be continued in the form of temporary injunctions or perhaps a permanent injunction. Attorneys for the defendants have filed a motion to dissolve the restraining order and a brief in support of the motion, and it appears that the first question before the court will be on this motion. If the motion should be denied then the question will be on the issuance of an injunction, which will raise the further question of affirmative relief in the form of an order of the court directing the union officials to recall the strike order.

Among the officials of the mine workers there is marked concern over the purpose of the Government to ask that the Executive Board be compelled to withdraw the strike order.

Hear Settlement Is Under Way.

The Cabinet meeting at Washington today and conferences between Samuel Gompers and Attorney General Palmer occasioned reports that efforts were still under way for a settlement out of court. If a promising plan of settlement is devised it was reported here that the hearing in court set for tomorrow would be postponed. But John L. Lewis, Acting President of the mine workers, said he knew of no such plans.

Mr. Lewis and William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the union, conferred several times today, but it was denied that they made any proposition to Attorney General Palmer through Samuel Gompers.

Daniel J. Tobin, President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, with headquarters in Indianapolis, was in conference today with Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green. Mr. Tobin is a member of the Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor, and it was thought that he might have been acting for Mr. Gompers.

Two main points will be pressed by the Government at the hearing, one that the Lever law for the control of fuel is in effect and that the strike was a conspiracy contrary to that law, and the other that the Government has a contract to pay the railroads a certain income, and that if coal is shut off the railroads, which are operated by the Government, will not have an income, and that the Government will have to pay the railroads, under the contract, out of the public treasury.

The latter point presents the question of property right, which is said to be necessary to authorize the issuance of a restraining order.

The Government is depending primarily on the Lever law, but should the Court sustain the contention of the attorneys for the mine workers, that the Lever law is no longer in force, then the Government will depend on its rights under the contract to pay the railroads a certain income.

Back on Clayton Amendment.

The attorneys for the mine workers, in their motion to dissolve the temporary restraining order, cited the Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law as providing that no restraining order or injunction should be issued in the case of a dispute between employers and employes over conditions or terms of employment unless irreparable injury to property was threatened, but it is understood that the Government will maintain that the Clayton amendment

Coal Operators' Chief Declares Russian Reds Are Financing Radicalism Among Unions Here

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—"Lenin and Trotzky are financing the present radical movements among labor in the United States," Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Scale Committee, declared in an address here today. Mr. Brewster said that the "demonstation made by the gang which controlled the miners' union is only one phase of the question."

"For fifteen years," Mr. Brewster said, "I have worked hard for the principle of collective bargaining and we had hopes that we were working out something and making progress.

"In the last four years the radicals have been boring from without and within until now our great labor unions are controlled by radical interests of from 5 to 10 per cent. This is bringing disorder and misrule on the country and will bring about the destruction of our institutions unless action is taken.

"We know that Lenin and Trotzky are financing this movement in the United States. The Government knows where these funds are coming from and where they are going. The time has come when if we would save our institutions we must take a stand and say, 'They shall not pass.'"

STRIKERS DYNAMITE CAR TO STEEL PLANT

Three Arrests Made in Outrage Near Pittsburgh—Workers Are Uninjured.

REIGN OF TERROR PREVAILS

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—A reign of terror prevails throughout the Donora-Monessen-Charleroi-Belle Vernon steel mill district as a result of repeated bomb outrages, in which residences have been dynamited and attempts made to blow up street cars and trains. Steel strikers who have refused to return to work, although a majority of the mills are declared to be working at almost full capacity again, are charged by the police with being responsible for the outrages. Residents live in a state of terror, not knowing when or where the next attempt to destroy life and property may be made.

State troopers and the police are scouring the towns in an effort to round up those responsible for the outrages.

Three arrests have been made in connection with the attempt to dynamite a Monessen-Belle Vernon Street car last night which was bound for Belle Vernon, filled with steel workers from Monessen. The car was hurled from the track and partially wrecked, but none of the occupants was seriously hurt, although several were bruised and cut by flying glass. Every window in the car was shattered.

State troopers and workingmen in the car joined in the pursuit of three men seen running from the vicinity.

At the office of Strike Organizer Foster it was announced that the International Fur Workers' Union, with headquarters in New York, had assessed every member $5 for the support of the steel strikers, and that within a few days a check for $10,000 would be sent from the New York joint board. Strike headquarters also announced that at a meeting of the Executive Council of the Central Labor Union last night it was voted to ask every member of all the unions affiliated with the central body to donate one day's pay to the strikers.

At the end of the eighth week of the strike the Secretary of the National Committee said the workers were as firm as ever, and still had faith in their ultimate victory.

Disorder at Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Minor disturbances broke out in widely separated parts of the city today in connection with the steel strike. Twelve women were arrested in East Youngstown after they had marched up and down the streets and attempted to prevent workmen from entering the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company plant.

Other disturbances included a workman beaten while on his way to a mill, a picket stabbed by a negro workman whom he accosted, another negro held for carrying a knife, a picket arrested after entering the Carnegie Steel Company plant and attempting to persuade workmen to come out, a striker jailed for assault, and five men arrested for carrying concealed weapons. A street car carrying men to the Republic Iron & Steel Company and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company was bombarded with bricks, several passengers being cut by flying glass. A sniper fired three shots into the air, it is said, dispersing the mob before the police arrived.

The Republic Iron & Steel Company today reported resumption of operation in its plate mills, while the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company announced the blowing in of another blast furnace, making four of its six stacks in operation.

MILAN, Nov. 7.—There is continued congestion of the Port of Genoa. The Sailors' Federation will forbid the sailing of the liners Pesaro and America, and probably the Dante Alighieri as well. The America was held up at the last moment by twenty firemen complaining of sudden illness.

Besides better wages the federation demands voting facilities for all sailors, if at sea, through the Marconi wireless transmitted by the Captain, and, if on land, through a Consul.

FARMERS REFUSE TO SUPPORT UNIONS

TO FIGHT PRICE REGULATION

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Farmers of New York State will wage war against any plan which would tend toward affiliation with organized labor and against any attempt to regulate food prices either upward or downward.

This decision was reached at the convention of the State Federation of Farm Bureaus here today, called to instruct delegates to the Chicago conference this month, when the American Farm Bureau Federation will be formed and its policy outlined.

Leaders of the State agrarian movement announced that the State Federation would go on record as opposed to any affiliation with the labor element, on the ground that they have no aims in common.

The federation farmers are in favor of a party of their own. They stand for exemption from the Sherman anti-trust law, the right to collective bargaining and selling, and are opposed to a conference of capital and labor where the food-producing class is not included.

It was declared that farmers and food producers had been left out of the industrial conference at Washington, and resolutions were introduced calling for inclusion of the agricultural interests in any future conferences. [Representatives of farmers' organizations, as a matter of fact, were included in the public group in the conference.]

Regarding the regulation of food prices, President Silas Strivings of the State Federation said:

"The farmer has been producing more food during the war because he loves his country. During that time he did not receive a fair return for his products and now with peace at hand he demands that fair prices return.

"Today he feels that any attempt to lower prices by regulation would be folly, to say nothing of injustice. I am afraid, too, that if the agitation for lower food prices is continued the farmer may turn around and produce less food, for there will be no incentive for the increased production so badly needed today.

"I believe that if artificial prices are not established conditions will adjust themselves in this country and that increased production will eventually mean that prices will come back to a normal standard, but it cannot be done by forcing down the price of food, for such action would merely add to the already critical conditions."

FARRINGTON SEES NO END.

Asserts Granting of Permanent Injunction Would Have Little Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 7.—Frank Farrington, local President of the United Mine Workers of America, said today the results of the hearing tomorrow on the restraining order would have little effect on the situation.

"The court's decision tomorrow will make no difference," Farrington declared emphatically, "whichever way it goes."

The miners seem to have little expectation that the courts will do other than grant the permanent injunction, but they contend that the permanent injunction will not have any more effect on the strike than has the temporary restraining order.

Asked if there was anything to indicate that a settlement might be reached soon, Farrington said:

"I look for a long-drawn-out strike, unless the Government stops trying to force these men back to work."

All reports from over this State continue favorable to the miners, according to advices at the Mine Workers' headquarters here. The mines of Illinois are still idle and there is no indication thus far that any attempt is to be made to reopen any of them at present.

GOMPERS OFFER TAKEN UP

MAY INVOLVE COURT DELAY

Reported Plan for New Negotiations if the Government Will Grant Time.

WON'T VACATE INJUNCTION

Attorney General Again Refuses to Stop Suit, but Might Not Oppose Request for Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, submitted to Attorney General Palmer late this afternoon a proposal which, in the opinion of Mr. Gompers, may make possible a settlement of the bituminous coal strike. Mr. Gompers was in conference with the Attorney General three times today and it was at the end of the last conference, at 6:15 P. M., that it was announced that he had submitted a proposal which the Government had taken under consideration and which it was not denied might lead to a settlement of the coal strike.

Whether the Gompers proposition involves a recall of the strike order was a question that Mr. Gompers refused to answer.

"I will say nothing. It is useless to ask me any questions," Gompers said, as he left the Attorney General's office.

Mr. Palmer was just as noncommunicative. He even refused to see the correspondents tonight. It was said that he would not oppose a postponement of tomorrow's injunction proceedings in Indianapolis, if such postponement was asked by the leaders of the United Mine Workers on the basis of a settlement such as was proposed by Mr. Gompers.

The opinion appears quite general in Washington tonight that when the injunction proceedings come up before Judge Anderson in Indianapolis tomorrow the attorneys for the miners' union will ask for a postponement of the hearing and that the Government will not oppose the request. The Gompers proposition will then be disclosed and an effort made to carry it into effect. This view is based on the theory that the Gompers proposition has the indorsement of President Lewis of the United Mine Workers. The attitude of the operators is also a controlling factor.

Hope of a Settlement.

"Is there reason to hope that a settlement of the strike is in sight?" one of Mr. Palmer's assistants was asked.

"Yes, I think there is hope," he replied.

"What are the chances?" he was asked.

"I should say about fifty-fifty," was the reply.

Whatever the Gompers proposal is it can be stated that the first thing that Mr. Palmer did after Gompers left was to call up the White House and ask for Secretary Tumulty. A little later on he called up St. Louis, presumably for the purpose of communicating the Gompers proposal to Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Scale Committee of the coal operators.

Late tonight it was reported that the Gompers proposal called for a week's postponement of the injunction proceedings at Indianapolis, and that during that period the miners' officials and the Scale Committee of the coal operators would assemble in Washington and try to reach an agreement. This conference would first take up the question, it is said, of the men returning to work, and in the event of a satisfactory arrangement the strike order would be recalled.

In the meantime the injunction would not be withdrawn, and if the conference fails the Government would continue steps to make it permanent.

A dozen different rumors as to the nature of the Gompers proposal are going the rounds of Washington tonight. Not one of them, so far as can be ascertained, has any official basis.

Another report was that Mr. Gompers agreed to use his influence to have the strike order recalled provided an immediate conference was called and President Wilson took some action to see to it that the settlement arrived at would meet the just demands of the miners. The President has stated that if the strike order was rescinded and the men return to the mines he would appoint a commission to make a complete investigation of the whole bituminous mining situation and that the Government would exert its power to see that the recommendations of this commission were carried out. From the beginning of the controversy the operators have stated flatly that under no considerations would they negotiate on a six-hour day and a five-day week, which are two of the three main demands of the miners' union, the other being a demand for a 60 per cent. increase in wages. The operators are ready to discuss wages and it was said tonight that they would probably be willing to grant a liberal advance, but not the 60 per cent. asked by the miners.

At the first conference Mr. Gompers asked Mr. Palmer to agree to recall the injunction. The Attorney General refused to consider the proposition.

"The only way to get the Government to agree to a vacating of the injunction," said the Attorney General, "is to call off the strike and order the men back to the mines. Do that and the injunction will be immediately vacated."

Cabinet Discusses Strike.

From this conference Attorney General Palmer went to a special meeting of the Cabinet that had been called by Secretary Lansing. It is understood that the whole strike situation was canvassed, and the position taken by Mr. Palmer was indorsed. Dr. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, and Walker D. Hines, the Director General of Railroads, attended the meeting of the Cabinet. When the Cabinet adjourned Mr. Palmer stated that no change in the situation had occurred, and that the Government was proceeding along the lines previously laid down by the Attorney General.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon Messrs. Gompers, Morrison, and Wohl appeared at the Department of Justice for their second conference. This time the conference lasted an hour and a half, and when it ended Gompers hurried back to his office in the Federation of Labor Building and called up John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, on the long-distance phone. He reached Lewis in Indianapolis, and the conference, it is understood, was a long one.

At 5:10 P. M. Gompers and his colleagues returned for their third conference with the Attorney General. This time the conference lasted about an hour.

Attorney General Palmer this morning had a personal conference with President Wilson. During his conference with the President Mr. Palmer went over the latest aspects of the situation with Mr. Wilson and also obtained the President's opinions and directions regarding the handling of the situation by the Government.

The Railroad Administration continued its plans tonight for meeting the emergency caused by the coal strike. In order that cars might move rapidly, unload and return to the mines which still are producing, a temporary policy was adopted directing that shipments to prisons or concerns under the first four headings on the priority list be permitted to go to the original consignees without interference on the part of the Government officials in charge of distribution.

These orders affect shipments for railroads, the army and navy, other Federal Government departments, State, county, and municipal buildings, public utilities, and retail dealers.

Because of the sugar shortage, it also was directed that Cuban sugar manufacturing concerns supplying the United States be furnished with the coal necessary to continue operation.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Scale Committee of Coal Operators, talked with Attorney General Palmer on long-distance telephone late this afternoon, after the latter's conferences with Samuel Gompers in Washington. Brewster refused to discuss the conversation, saying that it had no direct effect on the operators' stand. He asserted there was no change in the situation so far as the operators were concerned. He received a telegram from Mr. Palmer this morning, but likewise refused to discuss this.

ASKS CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY.

West Virginia Strike Leader Indignant at Governor's Refusal.

CHARLESTON, West Va., Nov. 7.—Governor John J. Cornwell's refusal today to ask for a Congressional investigation of conditions in the Logan County non-union coal fields, brought a statement tonight from C. F. Keeney, President of District 17, United Mine Workers, to the effect that he had "broken off diplomatic relations" with the Governor and would take the question of an inquiry up with the Federal authorities.

Mr. Keeney declared he "had been assured" that a Federal investigation of conditions in Logan, as well as other coal fields of West Virginia, would be made. He added that the State investigation had "done nothing for the miners."

"Nothing would be gained" by a Federal inquiry, said Governor Cornwell today in reply to Mr. Keeney's request that such an investigation, which he declared would protect miners who wished to testify to "the horrible brutality which is rampant in this unhappy section of the State," be made.

Mines in the non-union fields of West Virginia were reported to be working 100 per cent. today, and a number of union mines in the Fairmont district were declared by operators to be producing coal. The West Virginia Coal Association reported thirty-two mines in operation in the Northern West Virginia union fields. Union leaders denied this, and said that only a "few mines which had been operated on an open-shop basis were producing."

CHARGE BIG GRAFT IN GARMENT STRIKES

Manufacturers Are Declared to Have Paid $500,000 in "Fines" to Union.

LEADERS FACE INDICTMENT

Chicago Prosecuting Attorney Charges Attempts to Intimidate Witnesses in Inquiry.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Assistant State's Attorney Michels asserted today that persons believed to be representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America had attempted to intimidate State witnesses in the investigation of charges that clothing manufacturers had been compelled to pay the organization and its officers $300,000 during the last year in "fines" for the settlement of strikes.

"While I was interviewing a clothing manufacturer at his home last night in regard to a charge that he had paid $6,000 to the union for the settlement of a strike a man called on the telephone and told the manufacturer that he would have forty-eight hours to leave the city," said Mr. Michels. "He added that they were after him and would get him if he did not leave the city. We are having great difficulty in getting the clothing manufacturers to tell their stories, but satisfactory progress is being made."

Mr. Michels said after examining the documentary evidence seized yesterday in a raid on the union headquarters in Chicago that ten or twelve officials of the organization would be implicated in the plot when the case was presented next week to the Grand Jury. He said three clothing manufacturers had stated they had paid money to the officials of the labor organization.

The organization is said to have more than 150,000 members, dominating the clothing industry at Chicago, New York, and Rochester, N. Y., the three clothing centres. Various small factories and shops were driven out of business and the entire industry was compelled to pay tribute, according to Mr. Michels. He added that a strike was planned soon in a nationally known clothing factory for a forty-four-hour week and 25 per cent. of the manufacturer's profits unless a settlement was made. He asserted the present high prices of men's ready-made clothing were due to the methods of the amalgamated organization.

Thursday's raid on the Chicago headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and charges that Chicago officials of the union were involved in graft were denounced last night by the international office of the Amalgamated, at 31 Union Square, this city, as part of a gigantic conspiracy to involve its officials in a bribery plot, so as to discredit them with the rank and file. The Chicago District Attorney, it is charged, is being used as a tool by clothing manufacturers. The conspiracy, it is alleged, was reported to District Attorney Swann on Oct. 23, and an attempt to involve General President Hillman in a bribery plot defeated.

BIG COAL MINE AFIRE.

Desperate Efforts to Stop Indiana Blaze—Cause Not Known.

BICKNELL, Ind., Nov. 7.—American Mine No. 1 at Bicknell, said to be the largest coal mine in the bituminous fields of the United States, is on fire tonight. The fire is the worst ever known in the coal fields of this section. Its cause and the time of its origin had not been determined late tonight.

Owing to the strike, it is not believed that any one is in the mine, but as a precautionary measure, a rescue care with its crew, has been sent here from Vincennes. At a late hour frantic efforts were being made to seal the shafts.

The mine, when in operation, had an average output of 6,000 tons of coal a day.

FRENCH WAR AREAS FILMED.

Miss Morgan Brings Back Reel Showing Peasants as Actors.

Miss Anne Morgan, who recently returned from France, brought back with her a war film "The Heritage of France," which will be shown here and throughout the country under the auspices of the American Committee for Devastated France. The film represents a story of what happened in the devastated areas of France and the actors are the peasants themselves depicting their own tragedy. Miss Morgan announced the presentation of the moving pictures yesterday.

Myron T. Herrick, President of the American Committee, has issued invitations for a private showing of the film for Monday evening at 9 o'clock at the Hotel Plaza. The first presentation of the pictures was made in Paris just before Miss Morgan returned to America.

TWO GOVERNORS MOVE TO SETTLE COAL STRIKE

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 7.—Governor Allen has asked F. W. Lukens, President of the Southwestern Coal Operators' Association, to come to Topeka tomorrow or Monday to discuss the coal strike situation and to see what steps may be taken toward the opening of negotiations between the miners and operators.

BAY CITY, Mich., Nov. 7.—The appeal of Governor Sleeper today that Michigan miners resume work immediately with the guarantee that the wage scale finally agreed upon in other fields become effective in this State as of the date operations are resumed was rejected tonight by District President Stevenson.

Such an agreement, Mr. Stevenson declared, would defeat the purpose of the strike by establishing production "and, in effect, make strikebreakers of the Michigan miners." He pointed out that all contracts were declared void after Nov. 1, and that the strike order prohibited calling off the strike by individual districts.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 7.—News that President Martin Cahill and Secretary James Morgan of District 22, comprising the Wyoming coal fields, have left for the East to demand release of Wyoming miners from the coal strike order, was received here today by Dave Gershon, local chief of the Bureau of the Department of Justice, from his special agents in the Wyoming fields.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 7.—The conference of operators, miners' officials, and representatives of the State Government adjourned early today without an agreement between the operators and miners over the latter's demand for a 60 per cent. increase in wages.

A strike call is expected to be sent to the 2,000 union lignite miners of the State during the day.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Foreign commerce of the United States carried in foreign bottoms is not expected to be diminished to any great extent by the Railroad Administration order forbidding the bunkering of foreign ships, officials of the Shipping Board said today.

Except for such vessels as are held up in American harbors the ruling will have the greatest effect on foreign vessels plying between the United States and South American ports, it was asserted, as the majority of European ships either can coal for the round trip upon departure for America or obtain sufficient coal for bunker purposes at Halifax.

Practically no change in Shipping Board schedules because of the coal situation is looked for, as it is thought the board will receive a weekly allotment of coal sufficient for its needs.

Agents of the foreign steamship liners detained in New York by the longshoremen's strike said yesterday that they understood that the Federal authorities would permit them to bunker sufficient coal in New York to carry the steamships to their home ports.

It was estimated that altogether 200 steamships flying foreign flags are in port, of which 87 are overdue from Europe. All of them were coaling yesterday as usual, as no word had been received by the local office of the committee to refuse bunkering permits.

The British lines will bunker their steamships for the round trip, as the Baltic of the White Star Line has done in Liverpool, and any deficit will be taken on board at Halifax.

The Dutch and the French steamships will coal at their home ports for the round voyage, and if they cannot get coal, they will have to curtail their service.

The Scandinavian lines expect to be able to coal at Newcastle, England, on the westward voyage, and if sufficient fuel cannot be obtained their services will have to be reduced.

The Italian steamship companies have to contend with a strike at Genoa of the harbor workers, which is tying up all the lines, but they hope later to get coal at Gibraltar.

The steamship agents said yesterday that the recent developments in the coal industry have convinced them that the future fuel of the profit-earning ocean carrier will be oil. That this was recognized before the present crisis is shown by the fact that the Robins Dry Dock, Tietjen & Lang, and other docks in the harbor of New York are filled to the gates with steamships being converted into oil burners.

Officials of the White Fuel Oil Engineering Corporation in South Brooklyn and Hoboken said yesterday that they had installed up to date nearly 700 oil burning systems in American and foreign vessels which had previously been using coal as fuel.

COURT DENIES PLEA OF BOSTON POLICE

ATTACK ON POLICE RULE

Counsel for Dismissed Men Hold It Invalid—State Opposes This Interpretation.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—The Supreme Court today denied the petition of members of the Boston Policemen's Union, which sought restoration to the positions from which they were removed by Commissioner Edwin T. Curtis for striking. Judge Carroll held that they were not entitled to reinstatement because they had failed to avail themselves of remedies contained in the anti-coercion act.

After arguments by counsel, Judge Carroll took barely a minute to announce his decision dismissing the case.

James H. Vahey, counsel for the policemen, contended that the rule of the Police Commissioner forbidding affiliation with organizations outside the Police Department was invalid and unreasonable. Herbert Parker, former Attorney General, who represented the Commissioner, said that the sole purpose of the rule was to prevent policemen joining the American Federation of Labor.

The only witness called was Frank H. McCarthy, New England organizer for the American Federation of Labor, who told the purposes of the federation, which, he said, had no power to order a strike and did not favor sympathetic strikes. Replying to a question by Mr. Parker, the organizer said there was nothing in the constitution of the federation to prevent a local union from declaring a strike.

Commissioner Curtis, through counsel, contended that the petitioners had no standing in court because they were not members of the police force when they filed their petition. They failed, he said, to take advantage of their right to demand a review of the Commissioner's action under the anti-coercion act of 1918. Accordingly, he held, the action of the Commissioner became final and conclusive.

After the court announced the decision Mr. Vahey requested that the case be reported for determination by the full court, but Judge Carroll suggested that Mr. Vahey appeal from the decision if he wished to obtain full bench consideration.

FOSTER IS DRIVEN OUT OF JOHNSTOWN

counts. Dominick Celotte, organizer for the United Mine Wrkers, and a resident of the county, refused to budge from his room at another hotel and police were called to prevent a riot.

At midnight Mr. Lunk called his crowd together and asked them to appear again tomorrow night at 7:30, with recruits, to finish the work then of getting rid of the organizers, if they have not left the city by that time.

Celotte says he will not leave unless forced to do so.

There was no decided change today in either the steel strike or the coal strike in the Johnstown district.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—John Fitzpatrick, National Chairman of the union committee in charge of the steel workers' strike, departed today for New York, where he is scheduled to speak tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

Distribution of circulars urging steel strikers and others to attend a demonstration at East Chicago, Ind., celebrating the second anniversary of Soviet rule in Russia, resulted in the arrest of two men at Gary today by United States soldiers.

Colonel W. S. Mapes, in command of Federal troops in the district, announced that the demonstration would not be permitted.

lice had penetrated the Russian People's House from top to bottom before any alarm was given. On one of the floors a class was in progress. Several of those in this class said afterward they were merely studying English when the police arrived.

"Out into the hall everybody," was the terse order. "Line up there and don't make any noise."

At first there was evidence that the presence of the policemen would be questioned, some of the women being especially vociferous in their demands to know the meaning of the raid. The harsh command to "Shut up, there, you, if you know what's good for you," brought silence, and those in the building were hustled into waiting automobiles and driven away.

Police Club Men in Building.

A number of those in the building were badly beaten by the police during the raid, their heads wrapped in bandages testifying to the rough manner in which they had been handled.

It was nearly an hour before the last machine had whirled off to the Park Row Building, but in the meantime the raiders had gone systematically through the building in search of incriminating literature of any kind. Doors were taken off, desks were ripped open, and even the few carpets were torn up to find possible hiding places for documents.

The questioning followed general lines, of "are you a citizen? How long have you been in this country? What is your occupation?" and "What were you doing in that building tonight?"

Chief Flynn is very anxious to get hold of documents vital to the cause of anarchy in this country as well as men believed to be high in the councils of the Soviet Government in Russia. It is also known that the Chief considers New York the headquarters for all kinds and degrees of Reds in America.

Since the bomb outrages last June, which led to the appointment of Flynn to take charge of the work of ferreting out anarchy, the police have been watching and cataloguing every act and every utterance of radicals in this city, even the so-called "harmless parlor Bolshevikt." It is hoped that sooner or later one of these raids will yield clues to the perpetrators of the bomb outrages.

It is only three weeks now since this city was placarded all along Third Avenue with circulars calling on the Reds to "arm yourselves against their oppressors, the capitalists and the police," and to strike terror into the hearts of all foes of the workers. The circular called for a "bloody revolution" in this country as the sole means of righting matters.

The police have never been able to trace the authorship of the circular, nor have they found the faintest clue to the mind which planned the bomb plots. The raid last night, it was said, was one of the drives which Federal, State, and municipal authorities have been making to apprehend those who could attempt to overthrow the Government.

The names of those taken in the raid last night were not made public, nor could it be learned last night just how many were detained. The interrogation was impeded, it was stated, by the fact that an interpreter had to be employed in nearly every case. Practically all of those examined were of Russian birth.

Communist Meeting in Bronx.

Two thousand persons attended a meeting of the Comunist Labor Party, held in the Hunts Point Palace, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, last night, to celebrate the second anniversary of the establishment of the Russian Soviet Government.

Despite the presence of Inspector Walsh and Captain Meade of the Simpson Street Station and many uniformed patrolmen and detectives, the speakers denounced Mayor Hylan and Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts as "traitors" to the laboring classes of the United States. The allied powers were assailed for their intervention in Russia. The presence of stenographers from the office of District Attorney Martin and the United States Department of Justice led some of the speakers to harangue in the Russian language.

Prior to the speeches several persons attired in red costumes unfurled crimson banner across the stage, upon which was an inscription "Long Live the Third International."

Mrs. Ella Reeve Bloor was introduced as "an American and revolutionist." She attacked the capitalistic class and denounced public officials, terming them traitors to the proletariat. The mention of Mayor Hylan's and Governor Coolidge's names was the cause of booing and hissing, which continued for three minutes.

L. C. A. K. Martens, who was caught in the raid last Summer conducted by the State Constabulary at the suggestion of the Lusk Committee, held a long conversation with Miss Bloor, and then addressed the audience in Russian.

At the conclusion of several speeches in Yiddish, Benjamin Gitlow spoke upon the sacrifices of his comrades in European countries.

"No matter what the police or courts may think," added the speaker, "we will work until we abolish this Government, the last to survive."

The Brownsville section of the Communist Labor Party of America celebrated the second anniversary of the founding of Soviet Government in Russia in Independence Hall, Osborn Street and Pitkin Avenue, last night. There were about 600 present, and the audience included many policemen as well as agents of the Department of Justice. L. C. A. K. Martens, the so-called Soviet Ambassador, did not appear as was expected.

The principal speaker was Dr. Morris Zucker, a dentist, who is out pending appeal for a sentence for seditious utterances. Among other things, Zucker said that the day was soon coming when the proletariat would be able to meet the capitalists bayonet for bayonet, machine gun for machine gun.

James Larkin and Ella Reeve Bloor also spoke. The speakers criticised Mayor Hylan, whose name was hissed, because he had issued a letter urging the people not to attend a so-called communist meeting in Rutgers Square tonight. Larkin said that the Mayor was Irish in name only. He said that while he was receiving de Valera the police were smashing the heads of Russian revolutionists.

RED RAIDS IN OTHER CITIES.

Radicals Taken in Newark, Philadelphia, and St. Louis.

One hundred and fifty men and women were taken in Newark last night in a series of raids in radical circles made by agents of the Department of Justice. So quietly were the raids conducted that the local police did not learn of them until the Federal authorities began to bring in their prisoners to the Government headquarters in the Lawyers' Building, 164 Market Street.

Four automobiles and a large motor truck were used by the agents in carrying the prisoners and quantities of literature and other evidence which were found in the places visited during the evening. Many of those who were rounded up had weapons on their persons, according to the officials. Forty agents took part in the raids.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 7.—Thirty men and women were arrested in two raids here tonight. All were locked up in the Federal Building, and Todd Daniels, special agent of the Department of Justice, said he could not give out any information on account of orders from Washington.

The principal raid took place at Eighth and Poplar Streets, where twenty persons were taken from a radical meeting hall. The other was on a hall at Second and Christian Streets, where ten additional arrests were made.

ANSONIA, Conn., Nov. 7.—Alleged radicals were arrested in raids conducted here tonight by agents of the Department of Justice, assisted by local police. Up to midnight twenty-seven prisoners had been locked up at police headquarters.

WATERBURY, Conn., Nov. 7.—Six alleged radicals were arrested by local police officials here tonight. The men were taken into custody on charges of attempting to circulate Bolshevist propaganda and stir up unrest.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Three men were arrested by Department of Justice agents here tonight in the round-up of alleged radicals.

NEW LONDON, CONN., Nov. 7.—Department of Justice men swooped down upon New London tonight and searched for evidence of radicals. No arrests were made, but a quantity of radical literature was seized in the rooms of a local club. Local police assisted. In ten saloons raided liquor was seized.

HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 7.—Federal agents took two alleged radicals into custody in this city tonight. They were locked up at police headquarters.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7.—Department of Justice agents here tonight, reinforced by officers from several other cities, took into custody fifty alleged radical agitators. Twenty men were arrested at a hall used for anarchistic meetings and the others were rounded up at their homes. All are being held for further investigation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A wagon load of prisoners was taken to the Federal building shortly before midnight. It was said the arrests were made in connection with the national raids on radicals.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—Two men suspected of radical tendencies were arrested here tonight by Department of Justice operatives. They gave their names as Joe Norvelle, a Russian, and Antone Jurkovich, a Croatian.

COMMUNISTS GIVE UP RALLY.

Police Activity Stops Bolshevist Anniversary Celebration.

The Communist mass meeting which was to have been held in Rutgers Square this afternoon to celebrate the anniversary of the Russian revolution has been called off. Mayor Hylan had directed Police Commissioner Enright to take "stern and prompt" measures to suppress any disorder at this gathering, and police preparations set in motion by this order had been redoubled following the finding yesterday of further evidence of radical activities in this city and elsewhere. This evidence was in the nature of a circular showing that the I. W. W. were endeavoring to form a country-wide organization of radical German workmen, and that they already were circulating a publication in German.

The reason assigned last night by Harry W. Witnitsky, Executive Secretary of the Communist Party, for abandoning plans for the Rutgers Square celebration was the alleged discovery by its sponsors of a "Secret Service plot" to "plant" the meeting and to cause disorder which, he said, would result in the death and injury of some of those who attended. Witnitsky added that Mayor Hylan's letter to the Police Commissioner went to show that the Mayor was aware of this "plot," and that publicity given to plans for the meeting already had accomplished the purpose for which it was arranged.

The I. W. W. circular, of which the police obtained a number of copies yesterday, is dated at Chicago, headed in German "Der Klassenkampf," ("The Class War.")

"Fellow-workers," the circular says, "the German I. W. W. members have arranged with headquarters to have Der Wissenkampf, the new German I. W. W. paper, now appearing twice a month, published weekly as soon as possible. It is believed that all preparations necessary to enable us to begin with the weekly publication will be completed by Nov. 20.

"The sentiments of the wage slaves at the present time are such that we may not delay a minute longer. But commence working the field at once and we are quite confident that it will result in our gaining many thousand Klassenkampf subscribers as well as a large number of I. W. W."

UNIONS MOVE AGAINST REDS.

Steps Taken to Eliminate I. W. W. Propagandists from Membership.

Local union labor men affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are taking steps to purge their organizations of "red" radicals and other disturbers who were described to the Senate Committee at Washington as propagandists against both loyal labor and the Government. During the recent trial here of Gust Alonen, convicted of criminal anarchy, it was found that he had joined the Carpenters' Union as "Sam Fields." He also admitted membership and activity in the I. W. W.

An official of the Carpenters' Union called yesterday on Assistant District Attorney A. I. Rorke, who had prosecuted the anarchists, and asked information concerning methods used by the I. W. W. and others to get into his and other unions. Mr. Rorke showed him the card carried by Alonen and offered to permit examination of the minutes of the trial. The labor man announced that he would look over these minutes next week.

Mollie Steimer, 20 years old, the "Red" leader, who was sentenced on Oct. 30 by Magistrate Simpson in the Tombs Court to six months in the Workhouse, applied for an appeal yesterday. She is out under bail on an appeal from conviction in the Federal court for violation of the Espionage act. Judge Rosalsky granted the appeal but declined to order the woman's release pending the hearing on it.

applies to disputes between employers and employes, and not to a case in which the United States alleges a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade.

It was said today that members of the International Executive Board and other leaders of the mine workers on whom restraining order writs were served are not required to be in court tomorrow, but they will be represented by attorneys. It is expected, however, that Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green will hear the proceedings.

Henry Warrum, general counsel for the United Mine Workers, probably will make the first argument in support of the motion to dissolve the restraining order, and it is expected that Mr. Ames will make the first argument for the Government against the motion.

In the brief filed by the United Mine Workers' attorneys in Federal Court in support of the motion to dissolve the restraining order it is asserted that the Government nowhere inserts in the bill of complaint an allegation that the miners refused to recede from their wage demands. It is submitted that not a single counter proposal was ever made by the operators.

The brief says the Government did not attempt to indict the defendants under the criminal law because the Government knew it would be unreasonable to do so, that instead the Government asked for relief under a civil prosecution. As to the contention that the Washington wage agreement with the operators has not expired, the brief says it is immaterial whether there was a breach of the contract, though it is denied there was a breach. The brief contends that a breach of a personal service contract is now to be dealt with by injunction.

Referring the 1914 amendment to the Sherman law providing against the issuance of restraining orders and injunctions in disputes between employers and employes over terms or conditions of employment, except in certain cases, the brief contends that the Government cannot by intervention acquire any greater right than an employer or employe would have in court. In support of the point that the Federal Fuel Control Administration ended some time ago the brief says the operators were released from all price restrictions.

NONUNION MINES ACTIVE.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—The nonunion mines in the Pittsburgh district continue to produce coal with a steadily increasing output and with union miners flocking to "open shop" fields, according to the operators, seeking work until the strike is settled. Developments next week in the coal fields, it is declared here, depend on the outcome of the argument before the Federal court at Indianapolis tomorrow.

In one of the largest coal fields of the Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania district, having approximately 500 mines, about 200 are down and 300 operating, and these are producing about 60 per cent. of normal, according to information given out by operators today.

Some industries here are beginning to feel the fuel shortage. The Superior Steel Company of Carnegie is reported 60 per cent. idle because of lack of coal. This company's coal was seized by the Fuel Administration while in transit.

Philip Murray, President of District 5 of the United Mine Workers of America, issued a statement today, in which he said that he cannot find logic in the reasoning of President Wilson that a contract actually exists. He contends that the Fuel Administration was disbanded last February by proclamation, and does not exist. Mr. Murray charges that the operators have been receiving exorbitant prices for coal.

He asserts that the average yearly earnings of the coal miners in the Pittsburgh district for 1918 was $1,043, and that it was the best year in their history. He says that the miners have not received a wage increase since September, 1917, and that, while their wages have advanced 45 per cent. since 1914, the cost of living has advanced more than 100 per cent.

Seven more coal miners applying for admission to citizenship in the United States District Court today before Federal Judge Charles P. Orr were refused, the court reiterating its stand taken several days ago, when Judge Orr declared that the miners had gone on strike in defiance of the wishes of the President and against the contention of the Government, and that they could not faithfully take the oath of allegiance and remain on strike.

FUEL SHORTAGE CLOSES MILL.

One Chicago Company Suspends, Another Reduces Operations.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The Highland Steel and Iron Company at West Pullman announced today that it will close tomorrow for the period of the coal crisis. Shortage of fuel was given by the company officials as the cause. The firm's 150 employes will be thrown out of work.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company at East Chicago announced a partial shutdown. Production will be reduced 35 per cent. and 150 of the 800 employes of the plant will be thrown out of work until normal coal shipments are resumed.

Unemployment and cessation of production are expected to spread as the strain of the fuel scarcity becomes more acute with the prolongation of the strike.

Further reductions of railroad passenger service are also in prospect, although no immediate changes were announced in Chicago today.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 7.—Increased production of coal in the Alabama fields is claimed by operators, who assert that the mines are now turning out 50 per cent. of the normal production with a daily increase. This is disputed by the miners, who maintain that 28,000 men are idle.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 7.—Further increases in the number of men returning to mines in Southern Colorado were reported today by the operators in that district. The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the largest producer in the State, reported 71 per cent. of its September average at work today.

STRIKE WEAKENS IN COLORADO

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 7.—With more miners returning to the properties in the southern part of the State, the coal strike in Colorado continues to disintegrate today, according to latest reports. The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company's official report asserts that 72 per cent. of the men normally employed in their nine regularly producing mines are at work today.

The estimate of the number in the entire Colorado fields is 50 per cent., as compared to 49 per cent. yesterday.

In the southern camps, 1,581 men were working today, as against 1,544 yesterday.

In the northern lignite fields, where the union is more completely organized, the situation is unchanged. According to leading lignite operators, whenever proper protection is given men anxious to work operations will be resumed.

In Canyon City coal is now selling for $5.35 a ton. A week ago the price was $7. The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company has notified the strikers in Fremont County that its mines in that region will be closed indefinitely if work is not resumed immediately. Four contract mines in the district are producing coal at capacity.

was tense, and the galleries were packed.

Interruption from the Gallery.

In the course of debate early in the day, a commotion was caused when a gallery spectator, giving his name as Joseph M. Horan of New York, jumped to his feet, waving an American flag.

"Gentlemen of the Senate," he began, "I want to make a speech—" and at that point guards seized him. "I got a message from God last night," Horan explained to the guards later, "to come here and make a speech on the League of Nations."

Several roll calls were taken on attempts to amend the preamble before the Senate finally adopted it unchanged. After the defeat of Mr. McCumber's first motion, he moved another amendment proposing that reservations "might be effected by the exchange of diplomatic notes. This was rejected by the same vote of 48 to 40.

Mr. Borah then moved to strike out the word "three" in the preamble, so that the amended preamble would require the written approval of four leading Allies. This move, apparently intended to test the strength of the "irreconcilables," was defeated by the decisive vote of 63 to 25, mild reservationists swinging to the Democratic side, Mr. Reed being the only Democrat to vote with Mr. Borah.

The result of the roll call was:

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, then moved an amendment to the preamble which would permit the Allies to consent to American reservations by recognizing the United States as a party to the treaty. This amendment, Senator Lenroot argued, was identical in effect with that proposed by Senator McCumber and defeated a few moments before. This motion was rejected, 46 to 42, Gore and Walsh of Massachusetts swinging to the Hitchcock forces.

After the preamble was accepted the withdrawal reservation, which would make the United States the sole judge of whether it had fulfilled all of its obligations under the League and permit notice of withdrawal to be given by a concurrent resolution of Congress, was taken up. Senator Thomas of Colorado moved an amendment to strike out the provision giving Congress authority to give notice of withdrawal, the effect of this proposal apparently being to leave the decision as to quitting the League in the hands of the executive, instead of Congress. Debate on the Thomas motion was still in progress when the Senate took a recess until tomorrow.

Senator Hitchcock, discussing with newspaper men his conference at the White House, said he found the President intellectually alert, although showing the effect of his illness.

"I was called to the White House this morning and spent half an hour there with the President," Senator Hitchcock said. "He was in bed, an overturned chair and pillows behind him supporting his back. He was almost sitting up.

"I told the President the history of what we had done here; that we had defeated all the proposed amendments to the treaty. I outlined in a general way the situation and what we proposed doing with regard to reservations.

"I told the President that Senator Lodge had a combination of forty-nine or more Senators pledged to adopt his destructive reservations in committee of the whole, where that can be done by a majority vote. I said these reservations would be reported in the Senate and be imbedded in the resolution of ratification when it comes to a vote.

"I said that in my opinion the resolution of ratification in that form would not receive the necessary two-thirds vote of the Senate. After that had been defeated, I explained, it was our plan to offer another resolution, probably one of unqualified ratification. I said that I did not believe that would receive a two-thirds vote, and that we might then offer a resolution of ratification with interpretative clauses. While that would receive a larger vote, it would not command two-thirds.

"The Senate then would be in the position of having defeated the Lodge resolution and our resolutions. In other words, the Senate would be thrown in a deadlock, and I hoped under such conditions that a compromise between the forty-odd Senators who favored ratification of the treaty without any reservations or amendments and the thirty who favored ratification with reservations could be effected. I told the President I did not think a compromise could be reached until a deadlock had been created.

"The President gave his very ardent approval of what had been done. He said he was glad the amendments had been defeated, and that our plans for the future were good."

Says Wilson Would Force a Deadlock.

"Did he approve your course even to the point of bringing about a deadlock?" Senator Hitchcock was asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "The President said he was willing to leave the matter of compromise to the friends of the treaty here, but told me that any time a serious doubt arose in our minds about any procedure he would be glad to have the suggestions submitted to him."

Senator Hitchcock was asked whether the President would be willing to accept the McCumber reservations as a compromise.

"We did not go into specific reservations," said Senator Hitchcock, "but I left a copy of the reservations with him. In a general way he knew what they were, but he had not examined them carefully. He said he thought we had pursued the right policy in the past and were on the right track for the future."

Inquiry was made of Senator Hitchcock as to whether he was sure that on a motion to reconsider the treaty after the Lodge resolution of ratification had been defeated, he could get a majority vote.

"We have not believed that it would be necessary to move to reconsider," said Senator Hitchcock, "and the Vice President's ruling of yesterday shows that he proposes to hold that the Senate shall be given the broadest possible latitude in consideration of the treaty in all its forms. He intends to base his ruling on the Constitution rather than on technicalities."

Senator Hitchcock was asked whether he had told the President of Senator Lodge's statement that the treaty would be dead if the Senate voted to reject the Lodge resolution of ratification.

"I did not tell him exactly that, but I did explain that we would be in a somewhat uncertain parliamentary situation," Senator Hitchcock replied.

"Did the President say he would rather have the treaty killed than ratified with the Lodge reservations?" Senator Hitchcock was asked.

"He did not say outright whether he would favor rejection rather than acceptance of the majority reservations," said Senator Hitchcock. "He said he would accept any compromise the friends of the treaty thought necessary to save the treaty, so long as it did not destroy the terms of the pact itself. He made it plain that the Lodge reservations would kill the treaty."

"Did he regard the reservations of the majority as destructive?"

"Yes," Senator Hitchcock replied.

"Do you think there is any chance of the treaty fight reaching a showdown by the last of next week?"

"Yes," replied the Senator. "I do not think the fight will run over into the next session of Congress."

DIRECTED TO LIST GERMAN CULPRITS

Commission Named by Supreme Council Also to Draft Procedure for Trial.

WILL SEND ORDER TO BERLIN

Surrender of Those Accused of War Crimes Will Be Demanded When Peace Is Declared.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Supreme Council today appointed a commission to make a final draft of the list of Germans charged with war crimes which the Berlin Government will be called on to hand over for prosecution. This commission will also determine the composition and procedure of the tribunal which will conduct the trials of these men.

Two weeks ago the French list of accused Germans, numbering 600, was submitted to the Peace Conference. This list has been somewhat changed, Premier Clemenceau himself having made some alterations. The lists from England and Belgium are now ready, and all these will be incorporated in one big list, carrying after each name a brief summary of the accusations.

A demand for these persons will be served upon Germany immediately after the Peace Treaty goes into effect. It is stated that the lists will not be made public for a month, the delay having been decided upon as being of assistance to Berlin in apprehending those Germans who are accused. A request for the lists brought a reply from the French Foreign Office that to publish them at this time might result in some of the accused making themselves so scarce that they could not be found.

No one in Paris knows when the Versailles treaty will be put into effect. The Supreme Council has asked Germany to send a delegation to Paris for a meeting on Nov. 10 to sign the protocol relative to unfulfilled armistice terms and arrange for the plebiscites, and the Council is ready for the meeting. But no intimation has come from Berlin that the delegation has started or is about to start, and the Council doesn't know whether or not the meeting will take place on Monday.

Germans Will Oppose Scapa Flow Fine.

Furthermore, dispatches from Berlin indicate that the German Government intends to demur against paying for the sinking of the warships in Scapa Flow by their German crews last Summer. Berlin takes the view that the Government did not sink them nor was it responsible for the sinking. Therefore, it argues, it should not have to pay for them. Of course the members of the Supreme Council say they will not allow the Germans to argue too much, but they do not say they will not allow them to argue at all.

Now, the terms of the protocol say that Germany shall hand over 400,000 tons of marine equipment within ten days after its signing. It is the intention of the Supreme Council to wait until that is done before depositing the ratifications of the Peace Treaty. That means that if the Germans should sign the protocol five minutes after it was handed to them on Monday—if it is handed to them Monday—official peace would not come until Nov. 20. But it is safe to predict that the Germans will not sign the protocol Monday, and of course every day's delay puts peace further off.

I am dealing merely with one factor in the situation. There are other terms which the Germans are expected to fulfill before the treaty goes into effect, and there still remain preparations to be made by the Allies. Overtopping all considerations is the desire of England, France, and Italy to wait until the United States ratifies the treaty before depositing their ratifications and bringing about a state of peace. But diplomats here are becoming discouraged by the latest news from Washington, and the hopes that the Senate will take final action by the last week of November are not nearly so strong as they were a week ago, when confidential advices from official sources in Washington predicted that the Senate would approve the treaty before Dec. 1.

Preparations for the enforcement of the treaty are being made with eyes in either direction. The American members have been tentatively elected for the various treaty committees, Frank L. Polk, Chairman of the American delegation, and Washington having arranged this matter. While the appointments are kept secret, it may be stated that the American places on all the committees can be filled practically immediately after ratification by the Senate.

While this has been done on the one hand, on the other hand the Allies are considering how the enforcement of the treaty may be begun in satisfying the demand for peace in Europe and at the same time bringing this about very slowly in order to wait for the United States. For instance, the allied members of the League of Nations Council have all been chosen and are ready to go to work. They have drafted two plans of action. One is for use if America is a member of the Council when it begins its work, and the other is for the use of the Council without an American member, but with the understanding that one will be appointed.

The later program calls for a short meeting of the Council in Paris to deal with the delimitation of the Sarre Basin territory and a few relatively unimportant acts which the Peace Treaty says must be performed as soon as the treaty goes into effect. Then the Council will adjourn with the intention of holding no other meeting until America has ratified the treaty. Should America not be represented at the first meeting, no official organization of the League machinery will be undertaken. But should the Senate have ratified the treaty by the time the first meeting of the League occurs, and the United States be represented on the Council, the Council will go ahead with a comprehensive program, according to the plan determined upon when the League covenant was drafted. Thus by the time of the first meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations the Council would be able to place before it an outline of the work to be done.

The first meeting of the League Council will take place in Paris on the day when the ratifications are deposited, or the day following that. President Wilson will issue the call. He is all ready to do so as soon as the Supreme Council supplies him with the date for the convocation of the initial session of the convocation of the initial session of meeting of the Assembly will take place depends on the action of the American Senate.

Belgium's request for a seat in the League of Nations will be placed before the first meeting of the Assembly of the League. This was learned today, the decision having been taken in reply to Belgium's request that the Council take it up. The Council will place it before the Assembly. It is impossible to make an intelligent prediction at this time whether or not the Council will recommend a change in the decision to have the seat of the League at Geneva.

Overtures from Hungary Reported.

The Supreme Council has heard nothing official regarding the report that the Friedrich Government in Hungary, which the Peace Conference has not recognized, is sending a delegation to Paris to sign the Hungarian treaty. An unofficial report to that effect reached Paris yesterday. The Supreme Council spent yesterday's session in trying to find a way out of the Hungarian tangle and seeking means to aid the establishment of a stable Government in Hungary. Getting the Rumanians out of the country is considered part of the problem.

The Supreme Council has never recognized the Friedrich Government in Budapest, although Friedrich has been Premier for several months. All this time the Council has taken the view that his Government was not representative and therefore could not be recognized; and since it could not be recognized, a delegation sent by it to sign the treaty could not be received by the Peace Conference.

What the conference now has to decide, if the report be true, is what to do with the Friedrich delegation. It can, of course, keep it sitting on the steps, as it did the Irish Republic's delegation, but that program will not get the Hungarian treaty signed.

It appears unlikely that the Fiume question will be settled by the Peace Conference. Tomasso Tittoni, the Italian Foreign Minister, is ill, and nothing is being done by the Supreme Council about the Adriatic city. The Council is willing to wait, and Italy is pleased to let the situation drag along. This problem, which the Peace Conference will not settle, is apparently to be bequeathed to the conference which will frame the Turkish treaty.

There is small chance of the Baltic situation being cleared up before the Pace Conference adjourns. Its settlement will probably be turned over to the Committee for the Enforcement of the Treaty or to a commission of Ambassadors.

The Bulgarians are expected to sign their treaty the last of next week. This will leave the Hungarian treaty as the big problem of the conference.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Austrian delegation has handed to the Peace Conference the ratification document of the Treaty of St. Germain.

OUR BALTIC POLICY MADE CLEAR TO PARIS

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The Allied Baltic Commission left Paris tonight for Berlin. There is a certain amount of mystery about its errand. Ostensibly it is going to get the Germans out of the Baltic provinces. The American Peace Delegation has delivered to General S. H. Chenay, the American member of the commission, very explicit orders that he is to concern himself with that and nothing else. The making of this announcement so promptly suggests that there must have been a very good reason for emphasizing the fact that the American Commissioner was not going to play any Russian politics.

The Supreme Council gave instructions to the commission to effect the evacuation of Courland by the Germans. Those instructions were given after a long debate, in which it developed that France and England were not averse to having the commission "stabilize" conditions in the Baltic provinces in addition to getting the Germans out. In fact, they definitely favored such a policy. The Americans insisted that the commission have one clear-cut duty, and they won their point, so far as the official instructions to the commission were concerned, but they thought it wise to give explicit instructions to the American member of the commission.

The commission goes under the chairmanship of General Niessel of the French Army. It will in all probability not finish its work before the Peace Conference adjourns. That will leave General Niessel, perhaps, with greater freedom of action than he will start out with. It is understood British and French political aims in the Baltic provinces are not identical. The English so far seem to have something of a lead. What the commission may do under the direction of a Frechman may show interesting results.

It is an open secret that there is a wide divergence of opinion about Russia in the conference. Some of its members wished to have the problems presented by that country dealt with in the open. The Americans have taken the view that these problems are not a part of the conference's task, and that it should not attempt their solution, but should leave that to the allied and associated Foreign Offices.

The final decision on this point was reached this morning. Because the Americans do not wish the conference to try to solve the Russian problem and because they are very much opposed to any dismemberment of the former Russian Empire, they are as much opposed to the formation of independent Baltic States on the one hand as they are to the taking of Bessarabia by Rumania on the other. Anyhow, they are perfectly agreed that the Interallied Baltic Commission should not undertake to deal with any part of the Russian national or international situation.

For some time certain propaganda bureaus have been accusing the Americans in the Peace Conference of acting as agents for the Standard Oil Company in the Rumanian negotiations. An American diplomat, so the story goes, in giving an explanation of America's desire to hold the Baltic Commission to the one job of getting the Germans home, said:

"You see, we wanted to make sure of not acting as agents of the American Ice Trust."

ALLIES' REBUFF TO BULGARS.

Reply to Protest Against Treaty Makes Slight Concessions.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—In the covering letter of the allied reply to the Bulgarian delegation's representations regarding the peace terms presented to Bulgaria it is pointed out that the Bulgarian people cannot be freed from responsibility for the war and that, therefore, the decisions of the Peace Conference, which have been made after mature reflection, cannot be materially changed.

The conditions of peace as they were handed to the Bulgarian delegation, the letter sets forth, were not inspired by any idea of vengeance, and the Allies do not intend to make Bulgaria pay for all her past mistakes. They wish only, it is declared, to establish a peace which will be just, lasting and fertile, and they remind Bulgaria in this connection that they guarantee her an outlet to the Aegean Sea.

The letter informs the Bulgarians that if some of their questions are not replied to, this fact must not be taken as assent on the points raised. It is added that the modifications made by the reply are binding in the treaty the text of the original document remaining unchanged in other respects, and that the text as it now stands must either be accepted or rejected by Bulgaria within ten days.

As has been indicated, the allied reply refuses to grant any changes in the territorial clauses of the treaty as originally presented.

Bulgaria asked that the clause for the protection of racial minorities, which she accepted, be modified so that Ottoman subjects who left Dobrudja, Thrace, or Macedonia to seek refuge in Bulgaria might have facilities to choose with regard to their nationality. The reply says this point has been noted by the allied powers and that measures will be taken to better the status of this refugee population.

As to the military terms, Bulgaria's proposal for the creation of a corps of frontier guards is accepted, but the men are to be recruited by voluntary enlistment only and their number must not exceed 8,000.

A slight change is made in the naval terms, Bulgaria being allowed to retain a certain number of small vessels for the patrol of fisheries, &c., all manned on a purely non-military basis.

The Allies assure Bulgaria that the Reparations Commission will have the power to facilitate, if necessary, the conditions for the payment of the sums due on reparation, and the payment may be made by means of property, real estate, concessions, &c., instead of by currency, if the Reparations Commission so decides.

In the financial clauses a slight change is made to the effect that the powers to whom former Bulgarian territory is allotted shall assume their proportion of the debt of Bulgaria as it stood on Oct. 1, 1915, the date of Bulgaria's entrance into the war, instead of Aug. 1, 1914, as originally stipulated. It is provided, however, that the amounts spent by Bulgaria for preparations for war shall be charged exclusively to Bulgaria.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—In a statement issued today, expressing its members' views of the treaty of peace with Bulgaria, the League of Friends of Greece in America says:

"The treaty is unjust to Greece, Serbia and Rumania. The Bulgarian troops, under orders from Sofia, have annihilated half of the Serbian populations, have desolated Eastern Macedonia and Western Thrace. Despite all these crimes, Bulgaria has lost no Bulgarian territory. Western Thrace is Greek, not Bulgarian, yet Bulgaria is given by the Bulgarian treaty 250,000 inhabitants of Thrace, of whom only 35,000 are Bulgarians, the others Turks and Greeks."

BRITISH COAL OUTPUT 4,750,000 TONS IN WEEK

Increased Production Taken as a Sign That Labor Is Steadying Down.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—More than 4,750,000 tons of coal were put out by British miners during the week ended Oct. 25. This is the highest output in any week since the seven-hour day was introduced and an improvement on the records of several weeks preceding that event.

The figures are being quoted by the miners' leaders as justification of the claim that reduction in hours of labor would not mean a reduction in output, but, on the other hand, it is pointed out that transport facilities have been improved and the number of miners employed increased.

Apart from these contentious questions these coal output statistics are regarded in many quarters as a welcome sign that British labor is steadying down. This hopeful view is strengthened by recent happenings in various industrial movements.

The chief strike in England at the present time is that of the iron molders. It was begun several weeks ago over the question of wages, which by virtue of previous arrangements between masters and men was to have come up for regulation by arbitration this month.

The strike has not expedited a settlement of the disputed points and has resulted, so far as the men are concerned, merely in the loss of wages. It is considered probable that the arbitration board's decision, which would have been arrived at without a strike, will be an object lesson on the inadvisability of a precipitate strike. Labor generally, while not openly condemning the action of the iron molders' leaders, has shown little or no disposition to give active sympathy.

Some of the best judges of the labor situation here believe that while the Winter may produce several problems, the worst troubles are over. The Government's new Regulation of Wages bill now before Parliament, while criticised in various details, is on the whole receiving the sympathetic consideration of the Labor M. P.'s, who were called into consultation by Sir Robert Horne, Minister of Labor, prior to its being laid before the House.

LEE WANTS A RECOUNT.

Defeated Socialist Alderman Says He Was Electe d.

It is probable that in the Eighth Aldermanic District, where Algernon Lee, leader of the Socialists, was defeated for re-election to the Board of Aldermen, a recount of the vote will be asked. There was a meeting of all the Socialist watchers in the district last night at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Avenue, and each one of them related his or her experience in the polling places on Election Day. Most of them said that fair treatment was lacking, and some instanced that they were given small opportunity to watch the vote counted, especially when it came to counting the vote for Aldermen. Courteous treatment was the exception, they said, and some reported that attempts had been made to intimidate them.

After the meeting Mr. Lee said that there was no doubt in his mind that he had been elected by at least 400 plurality. He said that he knew of one case where 100 Lee votes had been counted for Graubard, his opponent. He had heard of seventy-five votes that had been voided without reason, and he was sure that in some instances from ten to thirty Lee ballots had been stolen. He will ask for a recount, he said.

SUES MAURICE FOR DIVORCE.

Florence Walton Begins Action, but Still Dances with Partner.

Florence Walton, the dancer, is suing her dancing partner and husband, Maurice Mouvet, for divorce, it was learned yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Platt, sitting in White Plains, appointed Oscar Le Roy Warren as referee in the case. Miss Walton and Mr. Mouvet have been dancing in the supper room of the Biltmore Hotel, and were on the floor there last night, but neither would discuss the divorce case. The plaintiff is represented by Armin H. Mittleman of 347 Madison Avenue, and the defendant by Hendrick & Hendrick of 2 Rector Street, it was reported, but none of the lawyers could be found last night.

Miss Walton and Mr. Mouvet have been well-known as dancers for several years. They have been seen most at the Biltmore Hotel, but have also appeared on Broadway. During the war both went abroad to entertain soldiers at the front. They also danced at the Casino de Paris. In 1917 Mr. Mouvet drove an ambulance in Belgium.

JURY ASKS WHY VICE RAIDERS QUIT

Mayor's Letter to Swann, Criticising Work of His Assistant, Smith, Said to be Wanted.

MAY GO INTO SHOPLIFTING

Stores' Protective Association Sends a Witness — Rumored That Jurors Were Shadowed.

As a part of the further inquiry into certain police matters yesterday by the Extraordinary Grand Jury, it was said that the members of that body sought to learn why the gambling and vice raids conducted by Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith were suddenly stopped last Fall. Smith had been before the jury several days and had presented his version of the raiding activities, it is supposed, and he is now acting as legal assistant to the jury in following up evidence and testimony relating thereto, but the jury wanted certain letters or documents purporting to have some bearing on the raids.

In this connection it was rumored in the Criminal Courts Building that the jury would ask for the letter of Mayor Hylan to District Attorney Swann, written on Oct. 26, 1918, in which there appeared a criticism of the methods of conducting the raids. The Mayor wrote that he had been informed by the Police Commissioner that Mr. Smith, accompanied by Secretary Frederick Whitin of the Committee of Fourteen, had called at the West Forty-seventh Street Station and had asked for the assistance of the entire force of the Fourth Inspection District on Saturday and Sunday nights, Sept. 28-29. The Mayor further wrote:

"After visiting many places in various parts of the district they were unable to find a single case warranting official action or police interference. Not a single person of known bad character was found in any of the resorts visited or on the public highways.

"I have instructed the Police Commissioner to discontinue such activities unless the request comes direct from you personally or in writing, and I am sure when such an order does come from you the action will be warranted, and will not be for exploitation by newspaper reporters or Whitin of the Committee of Fourteen, who when the saloons close will have to seek a new job. Such cheap, despicable notoriety should not be countenanced."

At that time the District Attorney declared there existed no controversy between himself and the Mayor on the question of the raids, but that it was merely a difference of opinion as to methods of ridding the city of evil characters. Previously the Mayor, he said, had requested the police and the prosecutor to cooperate and continue the work of cleaning the city of all classes of offenders.

It could not be learned whether or not the District Attorney had turned this letter over to the jury. There is nothing in the letter to show that the Mayor stopped the raids, and the jury would be obliged to seek further for that information.

Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, had a conference of an hour with Mr. Smith, and then the Grand Jury went into session to question three witnesses, it was said. There was an intimation that some members of the jury had suspected for several days that they were being followed or "shadowed" in their movements. One of the witnesses, whose identity was not disclosed, was said to have been questioned concerning this suspicion of the jurymen. Other persons called into the Grand Jury room included Alfred Weimore, a private detective, and a representative of the Stores Mutual Protective Association.

This association is an organization recently formed by all of the big department stores to curb the shoplifting evil. The work of this association was mentioned when Justice Kernochan of Special Sessions started his investigation to find the forgers of court documents which had illegally freed five shoplifters without trial on "suspended sentences." The appearance of the Stores' representative was believed to have reference to an inquiry into business robberies and the work of the police, or their failure to apprehend the offenders.

Assistant District Attorney Smith was asked if Captain Costigan, the former Inspector who had assisted him in his raids, would be called as a witness. He replied that so far as he knew Costigan would not testify. Ex-Deputy Police Commissioner John W. Goff, Jr., who resigned some time ago from the department, because of some disagreement over police procedure, was expected to be a witness next week, but it was said the jury had not asked for his attendance.

The jury adjourned to Monday. Before the session ended the foreman sealed the papers placed in evidence before them, and the seals were initialed by Mr. Almirall.

Death of Mrs. Carranza Reported.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Carranza, wife of President Carranza of Mexico, died in Mexico City on Wednesday, according to information received from its special correspondent in Mexico City by La Prensa, a Mexican newspaper here.

SHONTS RICHES GO TO MRS. THOMAS

executed a codicil thereto in July, 1917. This will and codicil have not been canceled, but were revoked by the will of July 30, 1919. In all of these wills the for jewelry which his family had purchased in Paris.

Mrs. Amanda Thomas was introduced to Mr. Shonts by one of his daughters several years ago at a social gathering, according to friends of the family. She is said to be twenty years younger than he. During his last illness she was kind to him and he frequently expressed his appreciation of her acts, it was learned.

The residuary legatee of the estate is the wife of Herbert Thomas, a son of O. F. Thomas, a financier who died many years ago. It is understood that she is separated from her husband. She is President of the Davis & Sanford Company, photographers of 597 Fifth Avenue. The copartnership directory states that Benjamin Pepperman (one of the legatees in the will) is a Director of the company, which is capitalized at $36,000. Employes of the company said that Mrs. Thomas had not been there yesterday. Herbert Thomas, who is mentioned in the will, is her only child.

At 930 Park Avenue it was said that Mrs. Thomas occupied an apartment on the sixth floor, while Mr. Shonts lived on the tenth floor.

Mrs. Shonts qualified as a temporary administratrix yesterday by filing a bond for $475,000, which she stated in her petition was the amount of her husband's estate.

PROVISIONS OF THE WILL.

Residuary Estate to Mrs. Thomas—Any Contest Annuls Bequest.

The will of Theodore P. Shonts, which was filed yesterday, directs his executors to purchase a burial plot in Woodlawn and erect a monument there, and that the bodies of his parents be moved there from Centreville, Ia. He desires that his sister, Eva Marshall Shonts, shall also be buried in the same plot. He makes no mention concerning the burial of his wife and daughters.

Mr. Shonts then makes the following provision for his wife:

"I give and bequeath to my wife, Milla D. Shonts, the $5,000 policy in Press Council No. 71, National Union, which I am keeping alive for her benefit; also the portrait of herself painted by Prince Trobetzkoy. Having in mind the agreement made in June, 1917, providing for my wife, Milla D. Shonts, I make no further provisions for her in this will, except that I hereby acknowledge that I am indebted to my wife in the sum of $150,000, payable twelve months after my death."

The will then mentions for the first time Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas:

"I give and bequeath all the jewelry given to me by my friend, Amanda C. Thomas, to her son, Herbert Thomas, to be his absolutely and forever."

The will then gives to Mr. Shonts's grandson, Emanuel De Chaulines, his star sapphire pin. His pearl studs go "to the first-born son of my daughter, Marguerite Amelia Bingham." Mr. Shonts leaves to Benjamin J. Pepperman, chief clerk of the Interborough, and to Earl E. Starbard, $5,000 each. His chauffeur, de Vivian Bell, receives $2,500, and $2,000 is left to Laurina Yeoman, 23 East Eighty-ninth Street. The will then makes the following bequest to his children, the Duchess De Chaulnes and Mrs. Bingham:

"Having heretofore provided a trust fund of $50,000 for each of my children, Marguerite and Theodora, I hereby make this further provision for them and their descendants, or any them surviving, subject to the conditions, terms, and provisions hereinafter stated in Paragraph XI. I give and bequeath to my executors the sum of $100,000, in trust, however, to invest and reinvest and keep the same invested and to collect the net income therefrom and to pay one-half of the net income is equal semi-annual installments on the first day of January and the first day of July each year to each of my daughters, Theodora (Duchess de Chaulnes) and Marguerite, (Amelia Bingham, wife of Rutherford Bingham.)"

The will provides that, in case of the death of either, one-half of the principal is to be divided among the children of such daughter, and if she dies without issue her share goes to the survivor in trust, and on her death the principal to her children.

Mr. Shonts makes another trust fund of $100,000, half of the income to go to his sister, Eva Marshall-Shonts of Hinsdale, Ill., a quarter to his niece, Mary Merrifield of 1,216 North State Street, Chicago, and the other quarter to another niece, Jennie Wiffin of 6,040 Stewart Avenue, Chicago. He directs that upon the death of the latter her share is to go to her children and upon the death of his sister and his other niece their share of the principal goes to Mrs. Thomas.

The residuary bequest in favor of Mrs. Thomas follows:

"All the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate, real, personal, or mixed, of whatsoever kind, nature, or description, including any and all lapsed legacies and including each and every one of the sums hereinabove given and bequeathed in trust to by executors, which shall not vest or the trust in which shall fail or shall not take or be given effect because of noncompliance of the beneficiary with the conditions, terms, and provisions set forth, or for any other reason or cause whatsoever, I give, devise, and bequeath to my friend, Amanda C. Thomas.

"In the case of my wife the provisions, bequests, and devises hereinabove made for her benefit shall be in full satisfaction and in lieu of dower and of any other or different right, title or interest which my said wife may have or claim to have in my estate and of any and all demands and claims of whatsoever nature which my said wife may have or make against me or against my estate, and the said provisions, bequests, and devises made for her benefit are made subject to the condition precedent that they shall be accepted in full satisfaction in lieu of dower and of any other or of different right, title or interest which my said wife may have or claim to have in my estate or of any and all demands and claims of whatsoever nature which my said wife may have or make against me or my estate, except the provisions for her contained in the agreement of June, 1917, and in default of such acceptance I annul and revoke each and every of the provisions, bequests, and devises so made."

Referring to the other legatees, the will states that "the said provisions hereinabove made for the benefit of such persons are made subject to the condition precedent that they shall be accepted in full satisfaction and in lieu of any and all rights, title or interest which the said person may have or claim to have in my estate and of any and all demands and claims of whatsoever nature which said persons may have or make against me or my estate, and in default of such acceptance I annul and revoke each and every of the provisions, bequests, and devises so made.

"Should any of the beneficiaries, legatees or devisees under this will object to the probate thereof or in any wise directly or indirectly contest or aid in contesting the same or any of the provisions thereof or of the distribution of my estate thereunder, then and in that event I annul each and every provision, bequest, and devise herein made to such beneficiary, legatee or devisee, and it is my will that such beneficiary, legatee or devisee shall be absolutely barred and cut off from any share in my estate, and the share in my estate herein given, bequeathed or devised to such beneficiary, legatee, and devisee shall thereupon be and become a part of my residuary estate and be disposed of in the manner hereinbefore provided."

The executors named are Edward J. Berwin, Delancey Nicoll, and the Guaranty Trust Company, who are to serve without bond. The will was made July 30 last. Mr. Nicoll filed the petition for the probate of the will, in which he stated that he had been informed that letters of temporary administration had been granted to Mrs. Shonts and asked that citations be issued requiring the beneficiaries to show cause why the will should not be probated. He stated that the testator made no codicil, that he had no real estate in this State, and that his personal property was valued at more than $10,000.

RITCHIE'S LEAD CUT; PLURALITY NOW 129

COUNTY RETURNS ALL IN

Anti-Prohibition League Hopes for Referendum on Eighteenth Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 7.—With a gain of twenty-seven votes by the official canvass in Baltimore City, Harry Nice, Republican candidate for Governor, and the Republican State manager continue hopeful that the narrow margin by which Albert Ritchie, Democrat, appears to have been elected Governor may be wiped out. Ritchie's majority has been reduced to 129. The official count of about one-half the city has been completed, but the entire canvass will not be finished until Monday.

Unless Nice shows greater gains than he has made up to this time in the rest of the city, he will be unable to overcome Ritchie's lead. The Democrats feel confident Ritchie will eventually pull through.

Word was received from Wicomico County that the Republican Supervisor consented to the returns for the disputed district, after explanations had been made which he deemed satisfactory. This leaves the returns from all the counties intact.

The Republicans appear to have elected an additional member of the Legislature in Cecil County, which leaves the Democrats a majority of ten in the House. They also will control the Senate.

The Maryland Anti-Prohibition League claims there will be enough "wet" votes in the Legislature to call for a referendum of the people to the ratification of the Constitutional Amendments adopted at the last session.

JENKINS CHARGES FAIL.

Hearing at Puebla Dispels Rumors of Complicity in Kidnapping.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—William O. Jenkins, American Consular Agent at Puebla, Mexico, was cleared of all suspicion of complicity in his recent kidnapping involving his payment of $150,000 in ransom to the kidnappers, at a hearing held in Puebla, advices from Mexico City today said.

Carranza officials expected, according to the advices, that a warrant for the arrest of Jenkins would be issued. Instead of this the Judge took occasion to praise Jenkins as a friend of the Mexican people and a respected member of the community in which he had lived for a number of years.

The State Department announced today that the complete story of Jenkins's kidnapping had not yet been received here and that a full and exhaustive report is expected both from Jenkins and from the Embassy.

Mrs. Wilcox Left Estate to Nieces.

BRANFORD, Conn., Nov. 7.—Disposition of the estate of Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, by will offered for probate today, is mostly by cash gifts to relatives. The value of the estate is not indicated. The residuary legatees will be two nieces in Hartford Conn., upon their twenty-first birthday.

SECEDING PRESSMEN SEEK RESTORATION

Local 51 Votes for Reinstatement in International Union After a Stormy Meeting.

TWO FIRMS ARE EXPELLED

Printers' League Charges Companies Broke Pledges in Settling with Workers.

Action was taken last night by Pressmen's Union 51 which, if accepted by the international Printing Pressmen's Union, would mean the beginning of the break-up of the strike, which has tied up the printing industry in New York City for the last six weeks.

After a stormy meeting at Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street, at which Barney Nolan, the President, received much unfavorable criticism, the men voted almost unanimously to return to the international union as a body. In the afternoon George L. Berry, the President of the international union, said that the men would not be taken back as a body, but rumors were current that if they voted for such reaffiliation he would possibly change his mind.

The attitude of the pressmen at the meeting showed the first real sign of weakening on the part of the secessionist unions since the beginning of the strike. In the afternoon, Paper Handlers' and Sheet Straighteners' Union, No. 1, voted unanimously to stand by their demands for the 44-hour week and the $14 increase in pay, while it was indicated by James J. Bagley, President of Franklin Union, No. 23, comprising the feeders, that they would also refuse to give ground.

The arguments of pressmen favoring reaffiliation with the international union rested upon the fact that under present conditions they were cut off from negotiation with the employers, while as members of the international they would be able to carry on their fight for better hours and wages from the inside, thus giving assistance to Leon H. Rouse, President of Typographical Union No. 6, whose members are affiliated with their international body, but have chosen to go out on "vacations." In fact, it was suggested that the pressmen might also take "vacations."

In the course of the debate Bagley made the sensational charge that earlier in the week he had been called into conference by the "second most important man in Tammany Hall" and had received an offer of $50,000 to line up his men to vote as the pressmen were voting and bring them back into the international union. He said, however, that he was going to tell his men to fight.

The chief practical effect of the return of the pressmen to the international body would be the tendency to break the morale of the feeders and assistants and to remove one of the obstacles to the willingness of Big Six to submit its differences to arbitration. Whether this consideration will induce Berry and the employers to accept the proposition in the face of their persistent refusal to do so heretofore, is problematical, for if the seceders returned in a body, it would still be possible to elect radical leaders, and the elimination of such leaders has been the objective of Berry and the employing printers he has been backing.

The Martin B. Brown Company, which came to an agreement with the pressmen and compositors some time ago on the basis of the forty-four-hour week, was expelled from the Printers' League at a meeting held by that organization at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning. The Brown Company was at work on the election ballots and other city printing at the time the labor trouble broke, and they made their settlement so that the city work would not be held up. According to a statement by the Printers' League, both the Brown Company and the Dispatch Printing and Bindery Company, which was also expelled yesterday, had been warned by the association to present their defense more than three weeks ago, and not having done so, they were expelled on the charge of having broken their pledge to the Printers' League by employing secessionist pressmen.

The Nation Press, which publishes The Nation, a weekly, and does a general printing business, announced yesterday that it had come to an agreement with its employes on the basis of a forty-hour week, and that in the future its plant would be operated along the lines of "industrial democracy." In its statement to the Printers' League, The Nation says:

> We hold that the time has come for a forward step in the internal organization of the industry. We accordingly propose at once to proceed with the development of our own shop along the lines of industrial democracy, which we believe to be the only type of organization possible for the future. We intend to propose for consideration, by our men at least, the following: (1.) Shop organization on the basis of voluntary production with the sole aim of maximum high-grade output with a minimum of human cost. (2.) The institution of a system of profit-sharing, comprising ultimately the conduct of the enterprise upon a fully co-operative basis, possibly ultimately to include the buyer. (3.) The establishment of a shop council similar to those already successfully in operation elsewhere, designed to be the real governing body in our organization. We plan to invite labor leaders to co-operate with us in every way.

John Adams Thayer, Secretary of the Periodical Publishers' Association, said yesterday that the McGraw-Hill Company, which publishes many business papers, had announced that The Mining and Engineering Journal had been printed in San Francisco, The Electric Railway Journal in Baltimore, while the presses in the McGraw-Hill's own building, at Tenth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, manned by former employes and college and army men, all members of the international union, had been used to print the current number of The Engineering News-Record. The ever-increasing number of periodicals and business papers which are being published in this and other cities, according to Mr. Thayer, is fast bringing the situation back to normal.

The tendency toward compromise was again disclosed yesterday, when it was made known that David Simons, President of Web Pressmen's Union No. 25, had made a proposal to George L. Berry, President of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, with a view to solving the problem presented by the secession. The proposal to establish a forty-six-hour week immediately, to be followed by the forty-four-hour week in September, 1920, with a $7 increase in wages, constitute the principal features of the proposed compromise plan. The answer of Mr. Berry says in part:

> 1. That we approach the employers and secure a seven-dollar-a-week increase in wages with a forty-six-hour week now, and a forty-four-hour week in September, 1920.
>
> 2. That we agree to the plan of amalgamation of the two local unions affiliated with the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union with the seceding New York unions, unaffiliated.
>
> 3. That the unaffiliated, seceded unions, be accepted without the payment of their financial obligations to the international union.
>
> In answering the proposals I beg to advise you that the plan cannot be accepted for the reason—
>
> Regarding your proposition No. 1 I will say that the employers have already offered a $6 increase and a forty-four-hour week on May 1, 1921, but are willing to arbitrate the question as to whether the forty-four-hour week shall be made at an earlier date. I consider, therefore, the employers' position fair and believe that it should be accepted by the present-day Workers of New York City.

The proposal to amalgamate the old and new unions is rejected on the ground that it would enable the present leaders of the seceding unions to be again placed in power, and Berry terms these men "Bolshevist and irresponsible."

In connection with the proposed compromise plan, William Green, Chairman of the Labor Committee of the Printers' League, said yesterday:

"The compromise offer of the Presidents of the local pressmen's unions does not concern the Printers' League until the members of the seceding unions join the new international here. From the start we have refused to deal with any individuals or any unions not affiliated with the internationals, and we have not changed our tactics."

SADOUL TRIAL OPENED.

French Captain Is Accused as a Deserter and Traitor.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Cort martial proceedings against Captain Jacques Sadoul of the French Army opened here this afternoon. He is charged with desertion abroad, with giving intelligence the enemy, and with seducing soldiers to aid the enemy.

Maitre Fisch, on behalf of Mme. Sadoul, asked that he be authorized to represent her even when the proceedings were held in camera. The President of the court refused.

Captain Sadoul, who is at present in Russia, has written to his friends of his intention to return to Paris to present himself as a Socialist candidate for the Chamber of Deputies.

Article X

Article X in full

"The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression, or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

The Logic of Lodge vs The Wisdom of Wilson

I'VE read Article X, but I don't know what it means. I wish the statesmen would talk like business men and say something the common man can understand.

Lodge thinks Wilson will get us in Dutch. Wilson accuses Lodge of disturbing the Peace. Lodge says Wilson is reading between the lines. Wilson claims Lodge is misinterpreting this clause.

Just as a plain, ordinary citizen, born in U. S. A., I should like to know if a Committee in Geneva can send my boy to Shantung to fight the Japs—if they don't get out of China, or give him a job as a policeman in Turkey—if they begin "cutting up."

If They Can, I'm for Lodge
If They Can't, I'm for Wilson

While this discussion is going on, the H. C. L. is going up. Let's stop them both. If you'll straighten out Article X, I'll flatten out the H. C. L. In the meantime, a hat is more comfortable than a helmet, and it doesn't make any difference whether you are a Democrat or Republican,—you don't have to wear last year's hat, or pay a luxury tax on top of this year's price, because I have every shape and shade in a soft hat or derby, and

HIGH TIDE FLOODS STREETS AT FERRIES

Unusual Rise Causes Delays on the Jersey Side for More Than Three Hours.

UPPER PLATFORMS USED

Pilots Make Slips with Difficulty —Water Enters Cellars on New York Side.

An extraordinarily high tide on the North River yesterday morning, said by the water front experts to have been caused by the northeast wind and the full moon, flooded the streets and cellars of the houses, interfered with the power plants of the Grand and Desbrosses Streets surface car lines, and partially tied up the Hudson River ferry services, which caused a good deal of inconvenience to the early morning commuters.

The passengers managed to board the ferryboats from the upper platforms on the Jersey shore, but the water was so deep in the streets below that trucks had to wait two hours before it subsided.

The Erie Railroad ferry service at Chambers Street was tied up from 6 to 9:30 A. M. because the high tide prevented the taking on or landing of passengers on the Jersey shore, and the commuters had to use the Hudson River tubes to get to New York. On Murray Street, Manhattan, the water burst through the sewer holes and spread about twenty-five feet east on that street and along West Street toward Park Place the water covered the Belt Line trolley tracks for a distance of twenty feet. On Barclay Street, east from the river front, the water surged over the wooden pavement for a distance of fifty feet and forced the blocks from their foundation. It was a foot and a half deep on the sidewalk, and many cellars in the buildings had two to three feet of water in them.

At the Old Slip police station the Lieutenant on duty said that twelve houses had been flooded along the East River front and the owners had applied for the fire engines to pump their cellars out.

The Brooklyn shore suffered, too, from the exceptionally high tide, and two men were marooned all Friday night on a jetty running from the Municipal Baths, at the foot of West Fifth Street, Coney Island, until they were rescued yesterday morning by the Coney Island police in their surf boat. The men told the police they had been fishing and did not notice the high tide until they tried to get back to shore.

The pilots on the Brooklyn ferryboats had considerable difficulty in making their slips on account of the tide, and many of the piers along the front were flooded. In Newtown Creek the water rose three feet in the early forenoon and flooded both shores. Pilots said these exceptionally high tides come about once every five years, and the exact cause has never been determined.

There was another high tide last night at 6 P. M., but it did not rise so high as the morning tide.

The tide last night, although not nearly so high as it was in the morning, flowed over the top of the piers on the Jersey shore, and swept along the offices to the ticket booths and caused the Erie Railroad Ferry to shut down for two hours. The Jersey Central, Pennsylvania, and Lackawanna Railroad Ferries landed their passengers from the upper decks and continued their services.

WANTS POLICEMAN BACK.

Downtown League Asks Enright to Return McKay to Traffic Post.

President David Robertson of the Downtown League requested Police Commissioner Enright yesterday to order the return of Policeman Thomas A. McKay to the traffic post at Broadway and Chambers Street. On Wednesday McKay was transferred to patrol duty at the Liberty Avenue Station, Brooklyn. McKay, who is Vice President of the Traffic Squad Association and the delegate from Precinct A to the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, had been directing traffic at the busy Broadway corner since 1911.

It was rumored that McKay's transfer had followed a public statement he had made to some of his fellow members of one of the organizations, in which he is alleged to have advised them to vote for F. H. La Guardia, Republican candidate, who was elected President of the Aldermen.

Hamilton Collection Gem Brings Record Art Sale Price at Christie's, in London.

JEWELS AT HIGH FIGURES

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The sale by auction of the paintings, furniture, and books of the late Duke of Hamilton was started today by Christie's, and one of the portraits, by G. Romney, sold for £54,600, ($273,000,) the record price for a single picture in any art sale. The sale of the pictures are family portraits which were reserved from the great Hamilton sale of 1882. There are also pieces of old English furniture and silver.

Reynolds, (Sir Joshua,) portrait of Elizabeth Gunning, £7,350.

Reynolds, portrait of William Beckford, Esq., (to Knoedler, New York.)

P. P. Rubens, "Daniel in the Den of Lions," £2,520.

P. P. Rubens, "The Loves of the Centaurs," £787 10s.

G. Romney, portrait of William Beckford, (to Duveen,) £16,800.

Van Dyck, portrait of William Fielding, son-in-law of the first Duke of Hamilton, £6,615.

T. Gainsborough, "A Woody Stream," £6,615.

J. B. Chardin, portrait of himself, £2,257 10s.

G. Romney, portrait of Alderman William Beckford, twice Lord Mayor of London, (to Davis Brothers,) £10 125.

Lily, portrait of a Gentleman, £1,417 10s.

Pannini, "Cardinal York's Palace at Rome," £787 10s.

J. B. Pater, "The Bath," £840.

C. Van Poelenburgh, "Nymphs Bathing," £504.

Preud'homme de Neuchatel, portraits of Douglas, eighth Duke of Hamilton, John Moore, Esq., M. D., and his son, (later Sir John Moore,) £546.

Portraits of George III., in armor, and of Princess Sophia, daughter of George III., £1,207 10s.

Interior, French school, £651.

Portrait of a Gentleman, Italian School, £1,050.

Christie also sold a collection of jewels from various sources, among which were a pearl necklace composed of fifty-nine graduated pearls of fine orient which sold for £29,000, and a necklace of 190 pearls, which brought £15,000.

MAY RENAME BEDFORD AV.

Parents of Dead Soldiers Favor a War-Born Appellation.

If the present plans of many of the parents of the dead soldiers of Brooklyn are carried out, Bedford Avenue, the beautiful thoroughfare in that borough, may soon have a new name. There have been several tentative moves to change its name and give it a war-born appellation, the most favored thus far being "Victory" and "Memorial." The latter would appear to be the more appropriate, as on this street there are 2,200 young trees growing, each a living memorial to a Brooklyn soldier who sacrificed his life in the great war. On each tree there is a bronze plate bearing the name of the soldier to whose memory it is dedicated, his rank, regiment, and the date, place, and manner of his death.

Parents of the dead soldiers visit the trees regularly and care for them tenderly, and by special arrangement own the trees that represent their boys. The memorial idea was started and brought to realisation by Park Commissioner John N. Harmon of Brooklyn, and a large proportion of the money needed was donated by F. B. Pratt of Pratt Institute.

Many of the parents intended to have the bodies of their boys brought back from France, but changed their plans after General Pershing announced that he thought it would be best to leave their remains in France, where the graves would be taken care of by the French Government.

CRANK AT ASTOR HOME.

Stranger Says "I Am Lord Astor" and Strikes Butler in Face.

"How dare you stop me? I am Lord Astor, and I have come to see Lady Astor," declared an imposing-looking man, with bristling upturned mustache, to John Brooks, a butler in the Vincent Astor home at 840 Fifth Avenue, yesterday morning, when Brooks went to open the door at the ringing of the bell. The stranger carried in his right hand a bundle of books and in his left a box that appeared dangerous. The intruder suddenly lifted the box and struck Brooks a blow across the face.

In the Yorkville Court, before Magistrate Robert C. Ten Eyck, he declared that besides being known as Lord Astor he was sometimes called Anthony Bodnar. He said he was 45 years old and was born in Austria.

The box he carried proved to contain the works of a clock, and the books were entitled "Book of Common Worship," "Elements of Physic," and "Enclosures of England."

He was committed to the psycopathic ward in Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Physician and Twelve Women Taken from Greenwich Village House.

Dr. Frederick Van Vliet, Eugene T. Boyle, a chauffeur, of 65 West Twelfth Street, and eleven women, ranging in age from 22 to 30 years, were taken last night in a raid on a three-story house in West Twelfth Street. The raid was conducted by Detectives Mary Cooney and Helen Burns of Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O Grady's staff and Patrolmen Green and Kunz of the Mercer Street Station.

The physician was arrested on a charge of attempting to perform an illegal operation, and a charge of acting in concert with the physician was lodged against the chauffeur.

The complainant against the physician was Miss Anna Colwell of 47 Perry Street. The raid followed evidence obtained by the policewomen, and was witnessed by hundreds in Greenwich Village. Women were found on every floor of the house which was raided. Some were fashionably clad. Some of the women were taken to Bellevue Hospital immediately [illegible]

HITCH COOLIDGE TO LOWDEN BOOM

CAMPAIGN SET IN MOTION

For Vice President, Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts.

This Republican national ticket was indorsed tonight by Illinois Republicans of all stripes, colors, and factions when the Lowden boom was officially launched, with Governor Lowden as the guest of the Republican editors of the State. Sitting next to Governor Lowden at the speakers' table, Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee predicted certain victory in 1920, basing his prophecy on last Tuesday's results.

Governor Lowden had discussed with the editors the need of harmonious action. State leaders, including former Governor Deenen, Attorney General Brundage, Congressman McKinley, Lieutenant Governor Oglesby, and Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, representing the organized Illinois Republican women, had spoken. Telegrams had been read from Senators Sherman and McCormick, detained at Washington; "Uncle Joe" Cannon, and State Chairman Frank L. Smith.

Then Congressman William A. Rodenberg brought the Illinois Republicans to their feet with a message straight from the centre of political affairs at Washington, the suggestion for the Lowden-Coolidge ticket. A seven-minute demonstration followed, and Governor Lowden's candidacy for the Presidency was formally launched.

The expressed sentiment for Governor Coolidge in recognition of the victory he won in Massachusetts was unquestionably favorable.

The statement should be emphasized that National Chairman Hays was no party to the climax of the gathering. He had come to Springfield as the guest of the Republican Editorial Association to speak on Republican Party affairs. Governor Lowden in his brief speech said nothing that could be construed as an announcement of candidacy from a personal standpoint. The intention was to do nothing that would place the National Chairman in an embarrassing position at this stage of the Presidential campaign.

Senator Sherman ended a long telegram to the editors by saying:

"Mr. Lowden's prospects for the nomination for President are improving daily. If his friends hold to their course steadily, he will be nominated."

"Uncle Joe" Cannon wired:

"I hope your meeting will sound a note of courage in facing the situation that will not be misunderstood by any one. The United States, having brought to a glorious end the great world's war by the valor of her soldiers, cannot face civil war at home with less courage and common sense than our soldiers faced the German armies in France."

Senator Medill McCormick telegraphed:

"In this hour let us draw to us those Americans, whatever their previous affiliations may have been who are ready to combat the wild socialism and the wilder internationalism which today threatens the security, the peace, and the honor and the ordered liberty of America. * * *

"I know that you will mightily press forward the movement in Illinois under the guidance of our able Governor, Frank Lowden."

Governor Lowden's Presidential campaign will open Monday when his headquarters will be established at the Congress Hotel, Chicago.

In his speech to the editors, Chairman Hays called for the "patriotism which moves men to make their country's welfare their own business." He said in part:

"I repeat and shall continually declare that what we need in this country is not 'less politics' but more attention to politics. Politics is the science of government, and what we need is more attention to the science of government.

"Our difficulties are largely economic. The industrial problems in this country, which at the moment seem to be overwhelming, can be, and I have implicit faith will be, solved in one way—by finding exact justice and enforcing it.

"It is simply a matter of Roosevelt's 'square deal'—exact justice for labor, exact justice for capital, and exact justice for the public, the third side of the triangle, which must not be lost sight of. To that end we must develop a reasonable method for honest and efficient labor to acquire an interest in the business to which labor is expected to give its best efforts. Pending this development the equilibrium between production and wages must be established, and there must be justice for all—exact justice, the justice of right and of reason, but not of force—justice for all—and do not forget that the American people will know what exact justice is.

"The Republican Party, from its inception, has stood against undue federalization of industries and activities. There must be strong Federal regulation, but not Federal ownership. We have always endeavored and still shall endeavor to find the middle ground so well defined as between the anarchy of unregulated individualism and the deadening formalism of inefficient and widespread State ownership. We are against paternalism in Government, and we are against that form of pedagogic paternalism that has developed recently in this country. We are against autocracy as vigorously as we are against anarchy. Bolshevism and Kaiserism are equally dangerous in industry as in Government. We are against both.

"There shall be legislation passed as rapidly as possible, and when the complete Republican control necessary for full functioning shall have been brought about, there shall be legislation and execution on all of these things I have mentioned, all moving in the direction of efficiency and economy for the establishment of business in the country on a sound, safe and sane basis."

$50,000,000 FOR BRAZIL.

Large Loan Said to Have Been Negotiated in This Country.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 7, (Associated Press.)—Insistent rumors are in circulation in financial circles that Brazil has contracted a large loan in the United States. The amount is given as approximately $50,000,000.

President Pessoa, in a recent message to Congress, called attention to the increasing expenses and growing deficits of the Government, causing a grave financial situation, and called for the greatest economy in the Government services in order to bring receipts and expenditures more into harmony.

He said that the deficit of the last five years amounted to $250,000,000, and that it had been necessary to issue loans, secured by customs revenues, to meet these deficits. These bonds, held by foreigners, were awaiting redemption.

Express Messenger Sentenced.

George J. Notice, 19 years old, of 282 Tenth Avenue, was sentenced to four years in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., by United States Judge Thomas I. Chatfield yesterday afternoon in Brooklyn. Notice was arrested a month ago for stealing $17,000 from the American Express Company in transit on the Long Island Railroad. He pleaded guilty.

PAPER ECONOMY PROPOSED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Under the caption "The Newsprint Shortage," The Chicago Tribune will print tomorrow morning this editorial:

"The newsprint paper supply is rapidly approaching a stage which will be fatal to many newspapers. The present normal demand is perhaps 25 per cent. greater than the supply, and prices are on a famine basis and going higher. At present rates of advertising it is impossible for most newspapers to make money.

"If this situation was the result of manipulation or for monopoly, it might be dealt with by the usual legal measures, though prosecution and legislation are disappointing in results. In fact, the present situation is the result of shortsighted attempts in the past to restrict the price of paper, which has kept capital out of manufacture, so that the industry is now not able to meet the publishers' needs.

"The crisis can be met only by voluntary self-denial unless it be allowed to develop until the weaker publishers go under. The Tribune is in a fortunate situation because it manufactures its own paper. But it believes it would be a national misfortune if the newspapers of other publications of merit were victimized by this abnormal condition. Perhaps even to the extent of being forced out of existence.

"The Tribune believes, therefore, that the stronger publications should forego their advantage to a reasonable extent and enter into an agreement to curtail the consumption of newsprint paper. The agreement must be general and advertisers should give public-spirited help by assenting to restrictions of space.

"The Tribune would be glad to lead the movement for restriction, but has gone as far as it feels it is reasonable that it should go until a general agreement is put in force. It stands ready, however, to join in a general movement to bring consumption down to the level of supply, and thus save a situation which must soon prove disastrous to many publications and a public misfortune."

Officers Elect General Alexander.

The Society of American Officers yesterday announced the election of Major-Gen. Robert Alexander, who commanded the Seventy-seventh Division in the war, as President. The organization was founded many years ago to keep a historical record of the "origin and career" of the United States Army and naval commissioned personnel, including those who were not graduated from West Point or Annapolis.

A Sale of Higher-Priced Men's Winter Suits

Intended to Sell for $50

Right now our selections are a bit thin in certain styles and sizes. Consequently we group them together and reduce them (with a full winter of wear ahead) instead of holding them until next January. What is the result? We keep the rest of our assortments in excellent condition, we make room for the new garments that are constantly coming in from our tailors and we give you a chance to get next to something really worth while. In the present case there are 235 suits. Not one of them was intended to sell for less than $50. Not one of them can ever be bought again to sell for less than $60. We can only add that if you're interested in beautiful clothing you had better be here early. At the rate of speed we sell, 235 suits won't last long!

Men's Overcoats

$65, $75, $85, $95, $110, $125

We'll refrain from rapt rhetoric in describing these overcoats. We'll state simply that nothing in town can equal them, and you can hold us responsible for that statement. And you can hold us responsible for another: that if you were to see these coats at other stores they would be priced 20% higher. This is really our first complete showing of the winter and it'll be well worth your while to come in before committing yourself. Every style from the Dress Coat to the Great Coat; every color from the conservative Oxford to the most radical mixtures; every reason in the world for buying one instead of paying more money elsewhere.

To procure a Coat that has an air of distinction—that stands out as "different" from one's neighbor's—is a difficult matter these days, as Coat fashions are less varied and interesting than Suit and Gown fashions.

Occasionally, however, it can be done. The Coats in this assortment are unusual, yet moderately priced. They were designed by experts, because it was intended they would sell for a much higher figure. We secured them, through tactful buying, at great price concessions, and hereby offer you the same advantage.

They're made of Silvertone, Wool Velour and Normandy Cloth. Then, too, there are some nobby short Coats of Camel's Hair Polo Cloth. Most of them have collars of fine Fur. All are beautifully lined throughout. All Winter shades.

BAKER SAYS NEGRO DID NOT LACK VALOR

DEFENDS WHITE OFFICERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, today took formal cognizance of widespread reports reflecting on the courage of negro troops in the battle of the Argonne. He issued a statement that reviewed charges affecting the 368th Regiment, a unit of the 92d Division, the company officers and all enlisted men of which were colored. The field and staff officers were white. There have been repeated reports that troops of the 92d Division broke and ran while on the firing line. A number of the officers of the 368th Regiment recently have been tried by courts-martial on charges growing out of their participation in the Argonne operations. The verdicts of these courts, not yet made public, are before the President for action.

Secretary Baker minimizes the reports reflecting on the behavior of the negro troops of the 368th Infantry, and accusations of bad judgment against white officers of the regiment. His statement is authorized, he says in it: "In order that justice may be done to the officers, white and colored, and to the men of this regiment, and in the hope that a recital of the facts may make prejudiced and distorted discussion impossible in the future." He calls attention to the fact that "many colored officers, and particularly three in the battalion hereunder discussion," were decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism under fire.

Following is the Secretary's statement in part:

French Officer in Command.

The 368th Infantry went to France as a part of the 92d Division. Its company officers and enlisted personnel were negroes. The field and staff officers were white. About Sept. 23, 1918, this regiment was detached from its division and became part of a mixed brigade commanded by a French officer and forming part of the French division, and thereafter throughout September it participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

On the 28th day of September the 3d Battalion, consisting of Companies M, I, K, and L, continued the advance of previous days, and parts of it reached a position known as the Dromadaire trench. About 12 o'clock noon its line broke and a retirement in some confusion was made. The line was re-established, but again broke at about 6 o'clock in the evening, and, with the exception of certain elements of the battalion, retired again to the position of the supporting company.

These two withdrawals gave rise to a series of courts-martial trials the result of which have not as yet received the final action of the President, and therefore cannot be commented upon in this statement. A number of reports found their way into the newspapers of the country based upon these withdrawals, which have been assumed to show general unreliability in battle on the part of the negro troops.

On the other hand, in some newspapers in this country, particularly those printed for circulation among negroes, highly colored accusations have been made in regard to the treatment of this regiment from the time it left the United States, alleging, generally, (1) that its spirit and morale were broken by race discrimination; (2) that its white field officers fell short of their duty in the field; (3) that the regiment was inadequately equipped with maps, wire cutters, and signalling devices, and (4) that the withdrawals in question were effected under orders.

I directed the Inspector General of the Army to make a searching investigation into the whole situation covering all the allegations which have from time to time appeared in the press on the subject. I have before me the report of the Inspector General. The report is exhaustive and shows the following facts:

Declares Segregation Unnecessary.

The allegations of race discrimination are based upon the assignment of state rooms, dining rooms, and deck space on board the George Washington on the trip to France. In fact, the state rooms assigned to colored officers were equal in character and location to those assigned to white officers of corresponding grades and were no more crowded than the latter. While by this arrangement white and colored officers were given like accommodations, this separation was unnecessary.

The ground over which the 368th Infantry advanced was extremely difficult. Originally it was largely a dense forest. This forest had been blasted away by four years of fighting, and the undergrowth which had grown up made it in many places a dense jungle. Throughout this jungle were masses of wire entanglements of all kinds and numerous trenches. The action in which the regiment was engaged developed at times intense shell, machine-gun, and rifle fire.

The regiment was not fully supplied with wire cutters, maps, and signaling devices.

The general nature of the task of the 368th Infantry was such that exact and definite orders as to objectives were practically impossible, and it had to be left to the judgment and initiative of unit commanders.

Holds Unit Commanders Blameless.

There is little ground for criticising the action of battalion commanders. Possible errors made by them were no greater than normal.

The charge that there was a lack of proper artillery support apparently grew out of the fact that there was no general artillery preparation for the advance of the 368th Regiment, it having been the expectation of those in command that the advance of the forces in the east and west would cause the withdrawal of the enemy in front of the 368th. This apparently did not happen, and the regiment therefore found more serious opposition than had been anticipated.

From the foregoing it is clear that the incident arose in the midst of the battle in which the 3d Battalion was advancing under most unusual conditions, and where the judgment of officers untried in battle, however well trained, might easily err; and as to the withdrawals, there is strongly supported evidence that orders from some quarter were carried forward by runners directing the withdrawals, although the investigation showed that no such written order had been issued.

The circumstances disclosed by a detailed study of the situation do not justify many of the highly colored accounts which have been given of the behavior of the troops in this action, and they afford no basis at all for any of the general assumption with regard to the action of colored troops in this battle or elsewhere in France.

Architects Attention!

Messrs. Marsh, Jones & Cribb, Ltd., of Boar Lane, Leeds, invite applications from architects who have experience in the designing of up-to-date Departmental Stores and who are prepared to submit, in competition, a sketch design for the new building they propose erecting in Boar Lane, at a cost of about £200,000.

Applicants should state what similar work they have been engaged on and give such further information as they think likely to advance their claim to be admitted to the competition.

From the names submitted, the Promoters, with the advice of their Assessor, Sir John J. Burnet, LL.D., R. S. A., will select a limited number to compete.

In the competition, the author of the selected design will be employed as Architect. Those placed 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th, will receive premiums of 150 Guineas, 100 Guineas, 75 Guineas and 50 Guineas.

Premiated and other drawings will be returned to their authors.

Applications should be sent to Marsh, Jones & Cribb, Ltd., Boar Lane, Leeds, England, on or before Saturday, November 15th.

A Call to All Who Love the Manly Art of Self-Defense

By Major Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, U. S. M. C.

When war was declared and the Government proclaimed Boxing an indispensable feature of military training, more than 3,000,000 men engaged from day to day in miniature battles, one with the other. A new era with great possibilities for the advancement of this splendid sport was then presented.

Under the auspices of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control plans are now being prepared by the Architect, Mr. William H. Gompert, for the building of a Clubhouse which should compare favorably with the famous National Sporting Clubs that have existed in London and Paris for a quarter of a century.

The Earl of Lonsdale is the President of the London Club, and its membership includes King George, the Prince of Wales, Peers, Cabinet Ministers, Ambassadors, men standing high in the ranks of Literature, Art and Finance, and there is always a long waiting list.

Boxing is the sport of the people in America and the Club will not be for the enjoyment of any privileged class. Although its first members are being drawn from the leading Clubs, an equal number will be elected from the general public, whose applications are now invited on the coupon below. A stadium for International boxing and other sports will be constructed when the Law permits payment at the doors, the present law permitting professional Boxing only in bona fide Clubs such as the New York Athletic Club and other similar Clubs in Albany, Syracuse and Buffalo to which admissions are not charged at their doors.

The late Colonel Roosevelt in his autobiography says: "The only objection I have to the prizering is the crookedness that has attended its commercial development. Outside of this I regard boxing, whether professional or amateur, as a first-class sport, and I do not regard it as brutalizing."

There will be no crookedness, no brutality, no clinching, no stalling, no decisionless bouts, no Champion who has outgrown his class, no half-trained men, no objectionable features of any kind whatsoever in the ring of the International Sporting Club. This has been proved possible in London and Paris for a quarter of a century, and it should be no unattainable ideal in this, the wonder city of the world.

Members will have their own chairs and see, with the same comfort as in the theatre, clean, high-class Boxing by its foremost exponents. Should the Clubhouse not be ready by February 3, temporary premises will be taken, when only members of the Club will be admitted.

There are members of the London Sporting Club who are today enjoying undisturbed possession of seats which were allotted to them twenty-five years ago, and other members who, because of neglect in the first instance, have been occupying seats in remote parts of the building for almost as long a period.

Although the lists of the International Sporting Club are only now being officially opened, the number of applications already indicates a waiting list longer than that of the London Club, which, on the opening of its doors, was of unparalleled proportions.

THE Directors of the International Sporting Club having extended to the leading New York Clubs the privilege of being seated together, as shown in the above plan, meetings were held at which the representatives of all the Clubs here named were present. At the final meeting, October 16, the following resolution, proposed by Mr. C. E. Finlay of the Lotos Club and seconded by Mr. Douglas Campbell of the Meadow Brook Club, was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, The Directors of the International Sporting Club having offered to the leading Clubs of New York certain sections of the arena to be subscribed to by the members of such Clubs, be it

"Resolved, That this offer be accepted and the International Sporting Club be requested to allot to each of the said Clubs fifty seats for Founder memberships, such option to be in effect for thirty days."

It was found possible to supply Clubs having small memberships with literature for their members, but the continued strike in the printers' trade has rendered it impossible to supply the heavy demands which are now being made by other Clubs having memberships running into several thousand. This announcement is therefore made.

Members of the above Clubs who wish to join and secure seats in the sections set apart for their Clubs should communicate IMMEDIATELY with their respective Secretaries, as no further notice will be issued.

All interested are earnestly requested to regard this announcement, not as an advertisement, but as a direct communication of urgent importance from the Secretaries of their Clubs, otherwise they will be unable to sit with their Clubs and will be on a waiting list as condidates for election, probably for several years. The letters here published are typical of many others received, and indicate that the demand for membership by the various Clubs will be greatly in excess of the accommodation.

Dear Mr. Empie:

You have my full permission to make public the resolution I proposed at the meeting of the representatives of the Clubs held at your offices on Thursday last, and this letter, if you wish to do so, and you may also put upon record that the opportunity you have given the members of the different Clubs to become Founders is highly appreciated.

I send you herewith a list of twenty-one names, all of whom are applicants for Founders' memberships. I will submit additional names as soon as I can get time to see other members of the Club.

Wishing you the success which your efforts so richly merit, I am

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) C. E. FINLAY.

New York City.

My Dear Major Biddle:

I am extremely sorry not to be able to attend the meeting that you are holding this afternoon in connection with the International Sporting Club, but you know the keen interest which members of the Union League Club individually feel in regard to it, for I have expressed that to you already in my letter, as well as, orally to Major Simson. I have told him that in spite of my unavoidable absence, I hope you will be kind enough to allot at least fifty seats to the members of the Union League Club. As soon as I learn that you have done this, I shall, I think, be able to return that number of applications duly signed, to you, in a very short time.

I await with interest your further communication.

Yours truly,

(N. B. Mr. Henry C. Quinby is the Secretary of the Union League Club.)

THE Directors are in no way responsible for the regrettable omission of three representative New York Clubs from the above list, and no invidious discrimination has been made or intended in having reserved no section for these Clubs on the main floor. The Directors desire, however, that the members of such Clubs who wish to join shall have an opportunity of so doing by signing the coupon at the side hereof, mentioning the names of their respective Clubs and mailing immediately.

LADY ASTOR ANGERS ASQUITH LIBERALS

NOMINATION OFFICIAL NOW

Filed at Plymouth Yesterday—Lady Astor Proclaims Pride in Her American Birth.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Lady Astor is threatened with libel action by the Labor candidate for the Suffolk division of Plymouth, and has set the nerves of the Asquithian Liberals on edge by remarks which are regarded as offensively personal in character.

The Westminster Gazette in an editorial note says:

"Lady Astor appears to be losing her head at Plymouth. That, at all events, is the most charitable explanation of a remark which she is reported to have made yesterday, that during the first year of the war she used to go to ask about things of vital importance, and was horrified at the indifference displayed in Downing Street. Ladies who go to Downing Street in wartime to ask about doings of vital importance sometimes get rougher answers than a display of polite indifference. If Lady Astor means there was indifference in No. 10 when it was occupied by Mr. Asquith, it would be sufficient to reply in her own language that she displays crass ignorance, but before saying it she might have reflected that from that household alone three sons had gone to the war, one of whom was killed, and another maimed for life. Whatever may be said about politicians, it is sometimes right to remember that they are human beings, with human feelings."

The Star correspondent writes:

"Mr. and Mrs. Asquith's family did not display much indifference during the war. One of their sons was killed; another was terribly wounded. Even Lord and Lady Astor could not have done more. I should advise Lady Astor to remember that this sort of calumny is apt to recoil on its circulators."

Plymouth dispatches to Liberal papers speak of the "silly nothings" of the Conservative program, and generally deride Lady Astor's campaign as a "stunt."

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 7. (Associated Press.)—The official nominations of the candidates for the House of Commons in the bye-election for a successor to Lord Astor, who lost his seat when elevated to the peerage on the death of his father, were filed today. The nominees, as previously known unofficially, are Lady Astor, the American wife of the Viscount, whose lively campaign for her husband's place in the Commons has been under way for several days, nominated by the Unionists; Isaac Foot, named by the Liberals, and W. T. Say, by the Labor Party.

"Do not think for one minute I am ashamed of my Virginian blood," snapped Lady Astor yesterday afternoon at a woman's meeting when she was asked why she was not spending her energies in America, where there were as many social evils as here.

"What do you want me to do—sit at home and hold my hands?" Lady Astor went on. "I married in England; my interests for ten years have been in Plymouth; every drop of blood in my veins is Anglo-Saxon, and I am proud of my American birth."

Lady Astor's eyes flashed and she gesticulated for a moment. Resuming her speech, she declared that women would be the ones to bring about the working of the League of Nations.

"Men tell you they had good times at the front;" Lady Astor said "but I do not believe a mother with a son there ever had a good time."

"Men have physical courage," she added, "but they often lack moral courage, and that's the kind of courage most needed today."

Answering another bombardment of questions, Lady Astor said:

"There are two sections of the Labor Party—one embraces tried and true trade unions; the other young intellectuals. I know the latter as red-hot Bolshevik cranks. Half of them never fought in the war, and most of them have never been workingmen. They are heart and soul of the Independent Labor Party."

Marrion Wilcox Not Dead.

Through an error arising from erroneous information it was stated in an announcement yesterday of the marriage of Mrs. Nina Wilcox Putnam to Robert I. Sanderson, that she was the daughter of the late Marrion and Eleanor Sanches Wilcox. Mr. Wilcox is not dead and is the editor in chief of the Encyclopedia Americana, now in its second edition.

VETERAN BURGLAR ROBBED.

Thieves Get $65, Two Dogs, and "Big Bill" Mason's Clothes.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 7.—Word reached Sing Sing officials today that "Big Bill" Mason, for over fifty years a burglar, who was discharged from Sing Sing two weeks ago bent on reforming, has come to grief in his effort.

"It's a 10 to 3 shot," said "Big Bill" when he said good-bye to Warden Edward Y. Brophy, "that I don't get into trouble again." He was paroled in the custody of Brig. Gen. Cowan of the Salvation Army after serving time in the prison on and off for thirty years.

Now word reaches the prison that some crook robbed "Big Bill" in Manhattan of $65 in cash he took away from Sing Sing with him, the new suit of clothes the State gave him, and two pet dogs. "Big Bill" was thrown upon the charity of neighbors to try to recoup his loss and get a new start. His prison friends are afraid the seventy-three-year-old master burglar, whom former Chief Inspector George McCloskey of the New York police once shot in a pistol battle, may be tempted to ply his old trade if the crooks do not stop annoying him.

9,695 Register in N. Y. U.

A marked increase in the registration of students for this year was reported yesterday by Milton E. Loomis, Registrar of New York University. So far, according to Mr. Loomis, 9,695 people have registered for the various courses of study. These figures do not include duplicate registrations and are exclusive of extramural or extension classes. The heaviest registration is credited to the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance.

The Nation's Greatest Asset

The children of today are the citizens of tomorrow. They are the nation's greatest asset. No labor so important, no duty so imperative, as that of making the children into 100% American citizens. We do not want bookworms, we want intelligent, well-informed, forceful men and women, who can do their own thinking. Only a small part of this education can be obtained in the schoolroom. Three-fourths of it must be acquired in the daily reading, entertainments and occupations in the home.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is a new method of education in the home. Over 10,000 delightful educational pictures and brief intensely interesting articles tell the children everything they need to know in plain and simple language. It is the first work of reference which a child ever really enjoyed reading. It expands every faculty of the child's growing mind and takes care of the outdoor as well as the indoor life of the home.

Curiosity—the Great Teacher

CURIOSITY is the beginning of all knowledge. Do you know any subject about which your child has not asked you a dozen questions? Let him ask as many as he likes, and be sure to answer them correctly. That is the parent's most important and most easily neglected duty. If you discourage your child's curiosity you will injure his mind, and the bright boy or girl becomes stupid or indifferent. Through curiosity Columbus discovered America. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the simplest and most natural method of helping the child to educate himself. IT ANSWERS EVERY QUESTION A CHILD CAN ASK IN PLAIN AND SIMPLE LANGUAGE. So captivating is this great original work to the mind of a child that he absorbs with little effort the profound truths and great facts of the world of knowledge while reading its delightful pages and looking at the thousands of striking educational pictures.

Your Child Is Unique

Your child is like no other child in the world. He has his own peculiar taste and need for both physical and mental food. Some kinds of food agree with him and some do not. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the right kind of nourishing food for the child's mind during the growing years. Give your child this remarkable, original work, and watch carefully which of the 16 Great Departments interests him most. Nature, Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Literature, Poetry, or Manual Training. It will prove THE KEY to his natural bent, and the kind of work or profession in which he will most easily succeed.

Your Child's Chance

In round numbers, what is your child's chance to become successful? If uneducated, he has one chance out of 150,000; with a common school education, 4 chances; with a high school education, 87 chances; with a college education, 800 chances; WITH THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the home, every chance. It is not a luxury, it is an absolute necessity. It is an INVESTMENT in your child's future which will pay dividends as long as he lives. In over 650,000 homes today the children are being educated with THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. Give your child his chance to compete with them.

Announcing the Re-creation of

ANHEUSER-BUSCH'S FAMOUS

Budweiser

IT is the fixed policy of Anheuser-Busch to comply with every provision of public laws and regulations. That policy will be adhered to in the future as in the past. In view of the Act of Congress, effective October 29, 1919, we feel that our many friends and customers have the right to know how the Anheuser-Busch industrial plants will be utilized.

Our greater development plans include, among other new products, an additional cereal beverage to which we shall apply our well-known trade-name Budweiser. This beverage will be manufactured, in every detail, according to our original Budweiser process, and de-alcoholized to conform to Federal law. It will possess the genuine Budweiser flavor and quality.

Budweiser, re-created, will be manufactured from the choicest, most wholesome and nutritious cereals—and hops, noted for their tonic effects. It will be fully and maturely lagered, put up in sterilized, hermetically sealed, 12-ounce brown bottles, and pasteurized to insure its permanent purity and quality.

We guarantee that this Budweiser is bacteria free, will keep in any climate, and is healthful and nutritious.

We shall be ready to begin shipments by January 1, 1920.

Is America Face to Face With Industrial Revolution?

Just before the Civil War William H. Seward told the nation that an "irrepressible conflict" was at hand over slavery, and Abraham Lincoln warned the people that their nation could not endure "half slave and half free." So, to-day, we find editors in both the conservative and radical camps who see unmistakable signs that the conflict between labor and capital can neither be compromised nor arbitrated, but must be fought out, perhaps to a finish. They point to the complete collapse of the President's industrial conference at Washington; to the persistence of the soft coal miners in going ahead with the strike policy which the President of the United States has declared "immoral" and "illegal"; to the existence of the irregular and unauthorized strikes in New York which labor's own leaders have been unable to stop; to the steel strike in which the United States Steel Corporation welcomed the fight to the finish and seems to be winning it. They also note that President Gompers has called together all the labor union heads of the country to take counsel with regard to "grave dangers" which confront labor and are "affecting the very foundation of its structure." In citing reasons for welcoming the contest between the coal miners on one side, and the operators and United States Government on the other, the editor of The American Coal Miner says "the hopeful thing is that perhaps industry will be better for its cleansing. While no wounds have closed without a scar, maybe the scar will stand as a future warning."

The leading article in The Literary Digest for this week—November 8th—is a summary of public opinion upon labor unrest in America as expressed by journals representing all angles of thought. It will be read with deep interest everywhere.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS IN THIS WEEK'S "DIGEST"

Since our first experiment a month ago in printing the "Digest" from typewritten copy and eliminating our typesetters, an innovation made necessary by their uncalled for "vacation," marked improvements have been made in the appearance of the publication each week. This week's number, November 8, is particularly satisfactory. The type is larger and less crowded, the lines are more evenly spaced, the broken appearance of the column-margins has been rectified, the print is clearer, and withal most satisfactory results achieved. Buy this week's number and note its superiority over preceding issues.

THE CASE OF MR. JENKINS.

Some rather surprising statements, with what is called official sanction, come from Washington in the matter of the kidnapping and ransom of WILLIAM O. JENKINS, the American Consular Agent at Puebla. It might be well before considering them to quote OPPENHEIM, an accepted authority upon international law, as regards the status of Consular Agents and the protection they should receive from the Government of the foreign State. "Agents consular," he says, "are agents with consular character "appointed, subject to the approbation "of the home Government, by a consul general or consul for the exercise of certain parts of the consular "functions in certain towns or other "places of the consular district." Concerning "non-professional consuls," that is to say consular agents, such as JENKINS was at Puebla when he was seized and carried away by bandits, OPPENHEIM declares that the admitting State "recognizes their official position toward itself, which "demands at least a special protection "of their persons and residences." Furthermore, this eminent authority says that "consuls of all kinds have "the right to put up the arms of the "appointing State over the door of "the consular building and to hoist "the national flag." In the light of these principles the following statement of the attitude of the United States Government by "an official of the State Department" should be read:

The fact that JENKINS was an official of the United States Government has no bearing on the matter. Americans in Mexico can expect no more and no different protection than is afforded to Mexicans under the Mexican law.

The State Department advised the Mexican Government on Oct. 25 that the United States expected that measures would be taken to obtain the release of JENKINS, even if it should become necessary to pay the ransom demanded. That was sound doctrine. It does not appear that the Mexican Government accomplished anything, although it professed concern for the safety of the American Consular Agent. Friends of JENKINS extricated him from the clutch of the bandits by providing part of the ransom money in cash and giving written promises to pay the remainder. During his confinement by the kidnappers JENKINS suffered so much from exposure that upon his release it was necessary to give him medical treatment in a hospital. For a time he seems to have been a very sick man. A newspaper of the City of Mexico, The Excelsior, has investigated the affair and confirms the original story that five bandits or "rebels" overpowered the American in his factory at Puebla, compelled him to open his safe, which they rifled, and carried him off into the mountains to hold him until the ransom was paid. JENKINS, says this Mexican newspaper, holds the receipt of one CORDOBA, the leader of the band, for the amount of the ransom, 300,000 pesos.

No evidence has been produced that the Consular Agent was an accomplice in his own abduction, nor does there seem to be any ground for such a suspicion. Outrages upon Americans in Mexico are so frequent, and in most cases so well authenticated, that it is difficult to believe that the State Department, after making a vigorous demand upon the Mexican Government to obtain the release of Consular Agent JENKINS, really means to take the stand that he was entitled to no more protection than a Mexican citizen, and that there is no evidence that the Mexican authorities were negligent in the performance of their duty. If JENKINS was kidnapped by five bandits or "rebels" in the populous City of Puebla, there is a prima facie case of neglect against the Mexican Government, because it has failed, or shown itself impotent, to protect American citizens in many localities. The case for an indemnity is clear enough for any one. The United States Government should always be ready to insist upon the protection of its Consular Agents, and the position that they are entitled to no more protection than Mexican citizens in a part of the country where banditry is common cannot be countenanced. It is untenable and intolerable.

INJUNCTIONS AS A STRIKE REMEDY.

The coal strike injunction argument today cannot of itself end the strike, whatever the merits of the arguments. Nevertheless the injunction is useful, for other reasons than that the issues are worth deciding. It affords an interval within which both miners and operators will have leisure to reconsider their position. There is no injunction yet against negotiating to end a strike, and friendly interveners may bring the parties together, even though on the record they are prevented from speaking as they pass by. They are not nearly so angry with each other as the unions are with the Government, and some measure of agreement is not impossible. Injunctions alone will not end strikes, although strikes have ended after injunctions, when supported by force on a military scale. Force is not justifiable against strikers unless they break the peace or the law, and it is better that court process should be used in protection of workers than against unions. Peaceful strikes, if there are any, are lawful. Ordinarily the Government is not a party in interest in peaceful strikes, as this has been so far, but it chances that the Government is a party in interest in railway coal contracts now. The unions went too far when they pleaded that the Government did not come into court with clean hands, and was seeking to relieve itself from a dilemma. The country and the union are in a dilemma, and it is the duty of the Government to rescue the country at the expense of the wrongdoer, and that is the union.

The Government may, probably will, prevail in the argument eventually, but that will not alter the fact that experience teaches that arbitration and mediation are better methods of ending strikes than injunctions. As for the operators, they should know as business men that agreements out of court are better than the hazards in court, and that a contract made with them, if it can be had, is better than a contract made for them.

THE FEDERAL WATER POWER BILL.

The House of Representatives passed, on July 1, the bill creating the Federal Power Commission, consisting of the Secretaries of War, of the Interior, and of Agriculture, and intrusting to that commission the powers hitherto exercised by the Secretaries in their several jurisdictions in connection with water-power development. On Sept. 12 Mr. JONES of Washington, in behalf of the Senate Committee on Commerce, presented a report on this bill, reported favorably with a recommendation of certain amendments. While the committee objected to certain fundamental provisions of the House bill, it wisely preferred to accept them rather than frame a new measure. For twenty years, beginning with the River and Harbor act of 1890, Congress has been elaborately doing nothing for the development of water power, or has put obstructions in the way of that development, a policy which prevailed during the virtuous and barren years of conservation for conservation's sake.

Capital was continually frightened away. In the thirteen Western States where some four-fifths of the undeveloped water power is found, the United States owns much of the land. To develop the water power the use of some of that land for dam sites, flowage, right of way, is usually necessary, and has been obtainable solely by revocable permit. Who is going to invest on these terms? Fifty-five million hydraulic horse power has been wasted because conservationists of the straitest sect were afraid that somebody, and particularly the accursed "interests," might make some money out of it; but we must not dwell on these old, unhappy, not yet far-off things.

In 1917 and 1918, under the stress of war, the country and Congress saw at last that this tremendous energy of water power must no longer be thrown away. Still nothing has been done. A little more than a year ago Mr. WILSON spoke of the Federal Commission bill as of "capital and "immediate importance as a war "measure." It didn't thrive as a war measure, but it is still of "capital and immediate importance" as a peace measure. This coal strike is in itself an invincible reason for passing the bill. Water-power development "means a saving of coal, and a lower price for that used," says the Senate report of the Committee on Commerce on this bill; "a saving of oil and a "lower price for that consumed; "more efficient transportation and "lower cost of service; the development of new industries; the building "up of new communities; the creation of new property values subject "to taxation for the support and "maintenance of local and State Governments, and added employment "for labor and increased markets for "agricultural products." It means more production, more wealth, the end of an incredible and shameful waste.

The Senate Committee on Commerce did right in accepting the House bill, to which it proposes certain amendments. Only one or two of these are of first importance. The Senate ought to take up this bill, pass it as soon as possible. In conference neither house should insist too much on having its own way. Here is an enormous public benefit, an enormous economic transformation, almost within the grasp of the American people. How much longer must they wait for it?

THE LAND OF TRUE FREEDOM.

All around us men are striking for the right to work less and get more for it, and when the representatives of the mass of the people, threatened with freezing or starvation by the action of particular groups, attempt to protect the interests of the majority, there are wild outcries of tyranny and oppression. What better could be expected, our revolutionaries ask, in America, a land subjected to an intolerable capitalist tyranny? Now in Russia, where men are really free—

Well, how about Russia? In a periodical published in this city which may be accepted as an accurate and authoritative vehicle of news from the Soviet Russia one may read of the resolutions addressed some time ago to the factory organizations in Petrograd by the Eighth Congress of the Russian Communist Party. Petrograd factories had been lax; production was falling off, and industries working up to their full capacity were feeling the effect of the derelictions elsewhere. Consequently the Communist Congress informs the workers:

> The whole community of workers will now be subjected to a precise calculation of their performance; and expert estimates of the production of the workers, both as individuals and also in groups, will be made.
> We herewith announce that in the future every worker and employé who falls below his established norm, or is guilty of any infraction of workers' discipline, will be placed in a lower category, or excluded from the factory altogether.

"Placed in a lower category" is a Bolshevist euphemism for getting less to eat. Nothing here to encourage the devotees of doing less and getting more; they must work if they want to eat, and work not as much as they like, not as much as they think they ought, but as much as "expert estimates" and "precise calculation" made by somebody on the outside may determine. American workmen, who are outraged by "efficiency" systems can be glad they do not have to encounter the Russian analogue; it would not be a case of speeding up or losing money, but of speeding up or starving.

Perhaps this may be only a temporary measure necessary to increased production in the Soviet State, but the fundamental difficulty is one which would trouble any communist commonwealth. Where there is no economic incentive to work, we are likely to see a society in which the conscientious 25 per cent. support the unsocial 75 per cent., or else a society in which men are forced to work up to a standard set by some one else. Liberty is a great thing, but the lands where food and clothing grow on trees are few and of small area. Generally the necessaries of life have to be acquired by work; and it seems that labor on the whole gets more of them for less work here than in Russia.

GERMANY MUST PAY.

The German Government refuses to give up Danzig and the surrounding territory which is to be included in the "free city" until the Senate ratifies the Treaty, on the ground that the surrender was to be made to "the principal Allied and Associated Powers," one of which is at present not associated with the others. If the Senate defeats the Treaty or makes material alterations, the Germans will unquestionably use this as a pretext to hold Danzig until they are forced to get out.

Here is a frank threat of one more violation of the Treaty, which, with the armistice terms and subsequent conventions, has already been violated by the Germans in eleven different ways. These German breaches of faith are enumerated in the note sent by the Conference, warning the Germans that the Treaty will not go into effect until the Germans agree to make reparations. If they fail, the Conference has the right to employ "any coercive measures" that seem advisable.

Most important of the German violations of the promises on which the armistice was obtained is the retention of the troops in the Baltic provinces. Here the German Government may have some technical excuse in the refusal of the troops to obey, but the German people are guilty because they have failed to give the Government such support as would enable it to use compulsion. Most Germans appear to look on the Baltic adventure as a worthy and promising attempt to revive Germany's power; and the longer the application of coercive measures is delayed the harder it will be to enforce compliance with the decisions of the Conference.

Then there is the matter of the fleet sunk at Scapa Flow, as well as certain submarines which the German Government promised to deliver, but which were sunk by their commanders; and aerial material sold to neutrals instead of being surrendered as provided by agreements made last March. Here the Conference demands reparations in kind. In exchange for the fleet the Germans must deliver five of the light cruisers left to them in the armistice terms, together with floating docks, floating cranes, tugs, and dredges in sufficient quantity to compensate measurably for the sunken battleships. That this material will probably be used to raise the sunken ships at Scapa Flow is a fine point which should not be lost on the Germans.

Engines and machinery of other submarines, on which construction was presumably suspended by the armistice, are to be surrendered to make good the submarines that were sunk. And until these deliveries are made the officers and men of the High Seas Fleet who sank the ships at Scapa Flow are to be held as prisoners—an attribution of immediate responsibility which ought to make the relatives of the men alert to placing any blame that may fall on German authorities higher up. The aerial material sold is to be paid for by the German Government. In other words, the Conference makes it clear to the Germans that acts of sabotage are virtually committed against German property, which will be confiscated by way of reparation.

Other German breaches of faith, such as failure to return objects of art and industrial machinery stolen from France and Belgium, the Conference thinks can be punished under clauses of the Treaty itself. But the most important consideration is exemplary and speedy retribution. There is in Germany a large and growing mass of people which can be dealt with reasonably, but those Germans have not yet had much influence on the Government. These deliberate breaches of solemn promises must be punished so hard that the Germans will see the advantage of good faith.

HUGO HAASE.

Another of the too few clear and honest voices in Germany has been silenced. HUGO HAASE, shot a month ago by an Austrian whom he was prosecuting in a private suit, is dead. The motive of the murderer is made known, the fact is undoubted; but among those who remember how ERSNER was murdered because he was too honest, because he threatened to tell too much, there survives suspicion that HAASE, who had already told some things and threatened to tell more, was a victim of the discovery that assassination was a practicable political weapon in present-day Germany.

HAASE opposed the war, but accepted his party's decision and served for a time at the front. As early as 1915 he decided that conformity could serve no useful end, and from that time on he was next to LIEBKNECHT, the principal thorn in the imperial flesh. After a revolution which he had done a great deal to bring about he found himself unable to work with the men who had supported the Kaiser so long as the Kaiser's armies were victorious, and who were still determined to keep up the old false front of injured virtue, as well as to hamstring the revolution. When he was shot he was on his way to deliver a speech in which he would flatly have charged the Government with connivance in the Baltic adventure.

An extreme Socialist, often suspected of too great friendship for Spartacus, bitterly hostile to NOSKE, he was still no Bolshevik, and by his influence did much to moderate those whose distrust of the "Scheidemänner" might have thrown them into Bolshevism. His death removes one of the few German political leaders whom the rest of the world could trust, and a man perhaps better fitted than any other to prevent class antagonism in Germany from becoming insoluble except by bloodshed.

WAR BRIDES.

The statement in a dispatch from Brest that "the last of the war brides left here "of the American soldiers left here "yesterday for the United States" is obviously premature, for there are still American soldiers, a considerable number of them, on the Continent, and it will be some time before France sees the last American soldier leave her shores. The eternal feminine interests the soldier wherever his lot is cast, and the interest of woman in the soldier is constant and at the expense of the civilian, who often has cause to deplore her fickleness.

In France the Young Women's Christian Association mothered the girls who married American soldiers. "I am proud," says one of the ladies active in the marital training of bride and groom, "of our American boys. "So far as is known, only one war "bride is coming back of nearly 3,600 "we sent to the United States." And France may well be proud of the brides, whose attractiveness and temperamental appeal account largely for this amazing record.

But the Y. W. C. A. seems to have been a factor in promoting domestic felicity, for it appears that at the camps "the husbands were detailed "to do cooking and other housework "and the brides were taught English "and instructed in American customs "through demonstrations, moving "pictures, and lectures." As a rule, the American husband cannot cook, and to call him "a handy man about the house" is to be facetious. Nor does the girl he marries receive any training "through demonstrations, moving pictures, and lectures." Apparently the marriage of the American soldier and the French girl coached by the Y. W. C. A. is not so much of a lottery as the conventional union in America. Perhaps the divorce court would have less to do if a similar system of protection and preparation were adopted on this side of the water.

The success of the benevolent intervention has been most remarkable, for the war brides were from 15 years young to 55 years old. Only one of 3,600 to return! Cynicism is completely disarmed. If it be asked why so many American soldiers succumbed to the fascination of the girls of France—three-fifths of all the war brides were French—the only answer is that they were "different," being as novel as they were piquant and magnetic. Thus the tie that binds us to France has become stronger than any propaganda could make it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Oil Takes the Place of Coal.

One effect of the miners' strike probably not foreseen by them or their sympathizers and helpers is that it has much hastened the substitution of oil for coal as fuel for steamships. Even before the strike that change was going on as fast as convenience permitted the laying up of coal-burning vessels, but it was not until the strike of longshoremen brought enforced idleness on many ships that their owners felt they could afford in this day of high freight rates to take the time required for putting tanks in place of bunkers and making the other alterations which the use of the newer fuel requires.

In recent weeks, however, all the yards at and near this port where such work can be done have been full of vessels receiving the equipment that will make them independent of strikes at the coal mines, here and in other countries. The list of these craft includes many names of large and well-known vessels, as well as of many others only familiar in commercial circles.

The tendency toward the use of oil as fuel for the purposes of navigation has long been marked, and its present acceleration will lead to a decrease in the demand for bituminous coal that will be felt by both the mine operators and the miners, and it cannot fail to lower both prices and wages, or at least to prevent them from continuing to advance. The exhaustion of the stock of unmined coal will also be delayed by this change, and so certain well-grounded apprehensions for the future will be in some degree allayed.

Changing Conditions on Shipboard.

There is significance afloat as well as ashore in the change from coal to oil as fuel on shipboard, for it results in the abolition of the stokehold, about the most terrible of all places where men have been accustomed to work. The fires of an oil-burning steamer are kept up, not by large forces of stokers, whose life is usually a cruel struggle with almost intolerable conditions, but by three or four or half a dozen neatly uniformed engineers, using brains instead of muscle, and no more incommoded by their task than are the skilled guardians of machinery on land. They will be men of an entirely different grade from those whose ill fortune it has been to feed the furnaces of ships, and, thanks to the nature of the new fuel, steam will be kept up as much more steadily and efficiently as comfortably.

There are dangers connected with oil as fuel, but devices already available and methods already in use make an oil-burning ship even safer than one that burns coal. As for the adequacy of the oil supply for the needs of the world's commerce, anxiety as to that can be left to generations far more remote than the one that will see the last of the coal deposits used up. No oil field is inexhaustible, and no new oil seems to be in process of manufacture by "nature," but there are many lands the oil stocks of which, though known to be enormous, have been little more than prospected as yet.

Citizenship Granted Too Easily.

There will be general and hearty approval, at least as to principle and purpose, of the new bill to regulate naturalization, which has just been reported favorably by the House Committee on Immigration. Its details, of course, will require careful consideration, for only a few extremists want to deprive all foreigners of the hope of becoming American citizens, and hardly more are desirous of imposing at our ports of entry restrictions that would stop rather than regulate the arrival from abroad of needed workers.

As summarized, the proposed law seems neither too lenient nor too harsh. It is entirely reasonable to make ability to speak, read, and write English a condition of naturalization, and equally reasonable is it to stop what might be called the automatic bestowal of citizenship—giving it, that is, to one person because of relationship to another. This bill demands an oath of allegiance from the wives and children of naturalized immigrants. As regards wives, it is hard to see why they should be recognized as citizens—and still harder to see why they should be allowed to vote—until they have done exactly what other aliens must do to get the franchise.

It is high time, moreover, to abandon all discrimination between the sexes by which marriage naturalizes a woman and does not naturalize a man. It should not naturalize either. There is not even an excuse for it, now that the old ideas as to masculine supremacy and control over women are no longer the basis of law or custom. Citizenship should be neither gained nor lost by marriage for anybody.

Solved by Jersey Jurymen.

In the curious case to which reference already has been made in this column, a Jersey jury has decided, apparently, that when a man buys a farm in the belief that Captain KIDD's treasure is buried in it, if a reasonable amount of digging discloses no wealth of plate and doubloons, he need not pay for the land. The justice of this decision would seem to depend, first, on whether the original owner of the land accelerated its sale by telling the treasure story in a way to make it convincing to the buyer, and, second, whether the rôle of caveat emptor does not apply even if the seller did indulge the impulse toward romance to this extent. According to the report at hand, the owner denied that he said anything about Captain KIDD, but the jury must have believed or feared that he did. Seemingly, it did not consider at all the fact that full information as to the only treasure Captain KIDD ever buried, and its speedy discovery and removal, can be found in a dozen books easy to get, and that nobody has more than a very bad excuse for expecting to find it now.

But this case was complicated by the appearance in it of a spirit, said to be of African descent, and that makes reasoning about it practically useless.

Both the defeated plaintiff and the victorious defendant might get a clearer view of the situation in which they now find themselves if they were to read the old play in which the wise Nathan set his sons to digging, not in vain, for a non-existent treasure.

THINGS SEEN IN IRELAND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May we be permitted to say a word or two in reference to a statement issued by Daniel T. O'Connell of the Irish National Bureau at Washington? This statement addressed to the Secretary of the Navy was, we believe, intended to demand an apology from Admiral William Snowden Sims for his temerity in even intimating that the Irish Sinn Feiner was "openly pro-German" during the war.

One point over which Mr. O'Connell appears greatly annoyed is an incident which took place in the Spring of 1918, when several American sailors were stoned in the streets of Cork. Admiral Sims asserts that the attack was staged or at least instigated by the Sinn Feiners. Mr. O'Connell and the Sinn Fein leader, Mr. de Valera, insist that the attack was made in defense of Irish womanhood. If Mr. O'Connell is correct in this assertion will he explain why the American sailors at Queenstown planned a counterattack upon the Sinn Fein element in Cork? Does the glib author of this literary travesty from the Irish National Bureau infer that the contemplated attack on his fellow-radicals in Cork was proof that the American bluejacket, as a body, approved of what Mr. O'Connell is pleased to insinuate as an attack on the virtue of Irish women?

There is no question that there was open hostility between the Irish Sinn Feiners and members of the American forces and other allied forces of England on duty in Ireland. The average male Sinn Feiner was blessed with health and physical force and yet he did not wear the uniform of the British military forces. The American looked upon him, therefore, as a slacker. Our men had come thousands of miles to aid in the war against Germany and they were very naturally incensed at finding an element in Ireland which never lost an opportunity to give aid and assistance to the enemy. In those dark days of April and March, 1918, it was difficult to understand why, when England was fighting with her back to the wall, her subjects who called themselves Sinn Feiners were in open revolt. We were amazed, indeed, to find a large percentage of the male population, all of military age, going about their daily existence of loafing during the day and sneaking around in military formations in preparation for their threatened revolt by night.

We have no idea what Mr. O'Connell's conception of pro-Germanism is, but we will say that if the Irish Sinn Feiner did not harbor German sympathies he certainly was no friend of England.

If they were friends of the Americans, to whom they now appeal for funds, they expressed and demonstrated their affection in a most inconsistent manner. It has been our experience, and that of a great many more American naval officers and men on duty in the South of Ireland, to be pointed out as a "dirty Yank." Whether this epithet was applied with the idea of suggesting our undergoing a cleansing process or whether it was intended as some mysterious expression of Celtic affection, we shall ask Mr. O'Connell to explain. On numerous other occasions, while motoring from one station to another, we would pass through villages and receive a rousing reception from the male population, who would cry, "Up Germany! Up Sinn Fein!" while the more youthful and playful males would punctuate their shouts by directing a barrage of stones at us.

We shall be quite disappointed if our report of our experiences in Cork County, Ireland, is not branded as "willfully false and misleading." We shall even be accused of being in the pay of the English Government and otherwise consigned to perfidy. But every member of the American forces in Ireland knows our statement to be the truth.

A Free Distribution of Whisky.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The lifting of the wartime prohibition ban seems so remote that the holders of the sixty millions of gallons of fine bourbon and rye whiskies remaining in bond are now considering the introduction of a bill in Congress under which these whiskies could be freed from tax, the distillers' bonds canceled and the holders be permitted to remove them into five-gallon jugs and give them to the people to be used for medicinal purposes.

The idea is to give one jug to each family in the country not already supplied with liquors for the future, and the Government would be asked to make the distribution through the Post Office Department.

Distillers believe that whisky is influenza's greatest foe, and if Congressmen decide that their constituents want the whisky there is little doubt that the bill will be passed.

THE TOTEM-POLES.

Far in the frozen north where glow
Auroral lights upon the snow,
Carven with picture-tales of beast
And bird and feast and vanquished foe,
Before the council-houses old.
Beneath the bleak and stormy skies,
Crude, faithful records of the race,
The warriors' totem-poles arise.

Where cornflowers imitate the blue
Of cloudless noons, and poppies burn,
And larks like singing spirits soar,
And crickets pipe in beds of fern,
The crosses of the Allied dead,
Like phantom soldiers gaunt and pale,
Stand at attention on the hill
And sentinel the lonely vale.

Bearing initials rudely cut,
Topped with a helmet or a tag,
They mark the dust of those who died
For God and country and the flag.
Rough, humble monuments of wood,
But bare the head and bend the knee,
Lo! They are epics of the war,
The totem-poles of Liberty.

EPISCOPAL BUDGET FIXED.

Joint Commission Plans Expansion Requiring $42,000,000.

The joint commission on the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal Church voted yesterday to go to the Church Dec. 7 with a program of mobilization and expansion requiring a fund of $42,000,000.

The amount was fixed as the lowest to be given by the Church for its reasonable needs, other than parochial, in the next three years. Twenty-eight million dollars of the total was set apart for the general work of the Church and $14,000,000 for the work of the several dioceses.

Ten million dollars was specified for home missionary work and $18,000,000 for foreign missionary work, for social service, religious education, Americanization and other work in the United States, and for the work of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Girls' Friendly Society, the Church Temperance Society, and the Church Periodical Club.

The official goal of the campaign is based upon the survey of the Church's needs made several months ago, and revised and corrected in the last week by a sub-committee consisting of Bishop C. G. Murray, Baltimore; Bishop F. F. Reese of Savannah, Ga., and Oliver J. Sands, President of the American National Bank, Richmond, Va.

The original total of the survey was in excess of $60,000,000. It was revised by the elimination of several projects in order to make the program of the campaign as efficient and reasonably economical as the needs shown would permit.

Those attending yesterday's session were Bishop Murray, Bishop Reese, Bishop Charles Sumner Burch of New York, Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd, President of the Episcopal Board of Missions; Dr. Stires, the Rev. F. H. Nelson of Cincinnati, H. P. Davison of New York, the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann of Boston, George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, Burton Mansfield of New Haven, Conn., Oliver J. Sands of Richmond, Va., James R. Strong of Short Hills, N. J., George C. Thomas of Baltimore, George C. Mackay of St. Louis, Reynolds D. Brown of Philadelphia, W. M. Baldwin of Garden City, Louis B. Franklin of Flushing, F. C. Morehouse of Milwaukee, and John W. Wood of New York, Foreign Secretary of the Board of Missions.

EGAN ON OUR DIPLOMATS.

Former Minister to Denmark Says New Attitude Is Necessary.

Speaking last night on "The Embarrassments of a Diplomat" before the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University at the Horace Mann Auditorium, Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, former United States Minister to Denmark, said that the changed relationship between the United States and the other nations of the world as a result of the war would render necessary a new attitude on the part of Americans regarding their diplomatic representatives.

Referring to our misunderstanding of other peoples, Dr. Egan said:

"Hitherto we have spoken a different language—I mean taking an entirely different attitude in nearly all matters—from the people of Europe and Asia, of China and Japan, of Persia, of the Balkans. We have made the mistake of reading into their lives the motives and ideals which control ours.

"These mistakes we can afford no longer to make, and in order that they may not be repeated we ought to see that our diplomatic service is not a mere ornament, not a refuge for men who go abroad because they cannot manage their affairs at home, or because they are rich, and we ought not to permit capable men who have reached a certain amount of efficiency to be forced to resign for political reasons just as they have become valuable."

Describing his diplomatic experiences in Denmark, Dr. Egan said that the two moments of greatest embarrassment to him during his sojourn there were the arrival of Dr. Cook from his Arctic expedition, which he claimed to have discovered the North Pole, and the arrival of the Ford Peace Mission.

BEGIN BRONX RENT INQUIRY.

The investigation into the responsibility for the recent rent strikes in the Bronx, which was ordered last Monday by Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney in a charge to the November Grand Jury of Bronx County, was begun yesterday with the examination of more than thirty members of the various Strike Committees in apartment houses where strikes were conducted.

Nothing was made public as to what facts had been brought out at the hearing, but it was rumored that the testimony seemed to indicate that two men and a woman were responsible for the various strikes, the woman acting as a go-between for the two men in organizing and inducing the tenants to pay initiation fees for admittance to organizations supposedly formed to protect their interests.

$1,900 FOR "ALLIES' DAY."

An interesting sale of an autographed color print of Childe Hassam's "Allies' Day," which was auctioned for $1,900 for the benefit of the Art War Relief at the Fifth Avenue Association dinner at the Waldorf Thursday evening, became known yesterday. The purchaser of the print was Michael Friedsam, who immediately presented it to Governor Smith, who is to have it properly inscribed and will give it a permanent home in the Capitol at Albany.

The $1,900 will be used for "L'Heure Joyeuse," the Happy Hour Fund of the Art War Relief, whose work is to start children's rooms throughout France and Belgium, where the little people may go to find children's books and amusements. At the same dinner Alfred Noyes's book, the "Avenue of the Allies," a signed copy, was bought by J. M. Giddings for $330 and presented to the wife of the Governor. It also was auctioned for the benefit of the Art War Relief. The proceeds of the book will go to the Artist Fund of the Art War Relief.

The Art War Relief has these prints and Mr. Noyes's books on permanent sale, the autographed prints selling for $50 and the autographed books for $25.

HOUSE ADOPTS EDGE BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—By a vote of 197 to 81 the House today passed finally the bill to permit the incorporation of organizations to extend foreign credits. This measure, known as the Edge bill, was slightly amended in the House, but in no way to impair its effectiveness.

It is predicted that the difference can be quickly adjusted in conference, so that the bill can go to the President within the next week. Business men say it is necessary that the corporations, which will be under Federal supervision, should be formed without delay, so that foreign countries wishing to buy American goods can do so through the long-term credits that the bill authorizes the corporations to extend.

One amendment prohibits the corporations from establishing branch banks in the United States.

VOTES FOR WOMEN IN SPAIN

Cabinet Approves Bill to Give Ballot to Those Over 23.

MADRID, Nov. 6.—The Cabinet has finally approved the Electoral bill for introduction to the Cortes. The bill would give the vote to women over 23 years of age and increase the number of Deputies from 400 to 470.

The measure also provides for holding the elections on two days, women to vote the first day and men the second.

AID THE RED CROSS, ASK ARMY AND NAVY

WAR CRIPPLE PAYS DEBT

Railroad Employes and Industrial Workers Add to 100 Per Cent. Lists.

General John J. Pershing, Vice Admiral William S. Sims, and Secretary of War Newton D. Baker joined yesterday in an indorsement of the Red Cross war work and an appeal for the peace program for which it is now raising funds through the Third Red Cross Roll Call.

"The American Red Cross is now engaged in a drive to increase its membership," wrote General Pershing. "The end of the war has caused many to feel that further activity in support of this society is not necessary. I cannot too strongly urge upon all citizens the desirability and necessity for lending their heartiest support to the continuation of the work of the Red Cross, particularly during the present period of social unrest throughout the world."

Vice Admiral Sims's message also was brief but to the point.

"The only red tape about the Red Cross," he wrote, "is the two small bits that make its symbol. The use of navy funds is limited by law and its auditor. The Red Cross placed no limit upon its help to the navy, but there is no limit to the navy's gratitude for assistance abroad and care of the families at home."

Secretary Baker, in a letter to Henry P. Davison, said:

"America literally mothers the weak and helpless of the world through the Red Cross, and every citizen of America can have a generous emotion of world citizenship in the best sense when he realizes that you represented us all in doing these splendid things."

The downtown industrial committee of the campaign, under the leadership of W. Forbes Morgan, reported many new members yesterday. H. A. Guinsburg of the I. B. Kleinert Rubber Co. sponsored a plan to supplement the employees' subscriptions by a bonus to their employes in the form of memberships. Mr. Guinsburg sent his check for $206, of which $145 was for memberships of employes and the balance for general expenses of the campaign.

The railroad committee, with A. H. Smith and Pitt B. Hand in charge, has already taken 25,000 buttons. The Erie Railroad was 99½ per cent. yesterday, and expects to go over the top before tonight. The life insurance committee also has taken 25,000 buttons, and the insurance brokers and gas and electric committee 20,000 to 25,000 buttons.

The Interborough brotherhoods are taking charge of the campaign on the rapid transit lines. The Third Avenue Railroad is allowing Red Cross workers to accompany its pay cars. Twenty national banks, twelve trust companies, two State banks, and one savings bank announced 100 per cent. membership yesterday.

Two hundred crippled soldiers, who are members of the rehabilitation classes of the Educational Alliance on the east side, subscribed $100 yesterday. Joseph Hall, who fought with the 350th Infantry of the 88th Division, squared up a debt which he thought he owed to the Red Cross yesterday when he turned over $21.50 for a life membership. Hall was wounded near Verdun and was picked up unconscious by a Red Cross worker and cared for until he could be turned over to a base hospital.

SOLDIER DEAD DUE SUNDAY.

Baker May Attend Hoboken Ceremonies for 111 Victims in Russia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The bodies of 111 American soldiers who were killed on the Archangel front in Russia are en route to the United States from Brest, France, on the transport Lake Daraga, due at Hoboken on Sunday, Nov. 9. Something more than 300 American soldiers lost their lives on the Archangel front, but the rest of the bodies were not brought home because they are buried outside of the lines held by friendly forces.

On the arrival at Hoboken the bodies will be received with appropriate official ceremonies and placed in state in the concourse of the pier there. The pier will be draped with the national colors and a stage erected from which addresses will be made by representatives of the Senate and House and of the War Department. Secretary Baker said if he could possibly do so he would attend the ceremonies.

"These 111 bodies," said Secretary Baker, "were originally ordered to Brest and were to have been buried in the American cemetery there, but when the policy was established of bringing home the bodies of all those killed abroad, except those who were buried in France, for the present, this shipload was started to America. With the exception of two irregularly returned to this country, these are the first bodies of American soldiers killed in the war to be brought to the United States."

The names of the dead soldiers will be sent by wireless from the ship and the family in each case will be asked whether they desire to have the body shipped for burial at home or desire that burial be made at Arlington or some other national cemetery.

IN MEMORY OF SOLDIERS

Services Will Be Held in Three Armories Tomorrow.

Major General O'Ryan, it was announced yesterday, has issued a call to all units of the New York Guard in New York City for attendance tomorrow at three services in honor of the memory of New York soldiers who died in the world war.

The services in Manhattan will be held at

GOVERNORS BLAMED FOR SUFFRAGE HALT

May Prevent Women from Voting for President in 1920.

DELAY EXTRA SESSIONS

Woman's Party Chairman Asserts They Fear Local Issues If Legislatures Are Assembled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Political Chairman of the National Woman's Party, returned to Washington today from a three months' campaign on the Western coast with the statement that unless the Governors of certain Western States can be "forced" to call extra sessions of their State Legislatures the women of the country will not be able to vote for President in the national election of 1920.

"There is only one explanation of the refusals of Governors of suffrage States to call ratification sessions," Mrs. Baker asserted. "They are not interested in the enfranchisement of women who cannot vote for them personally. The petty local issues of their States are more important to them than is this great issue of national justice. It is said in Oregon that Governor Olcott, who, as Secretary of State, was appointed to take the place of the Executive who died, fears his own removal should the Legislature meet. In Wisconsin and various other States of the Northwest the Governors fear the question of soldiers' allotments and land distribution. The Japanese peril is here and there used as a camouflage for the real issue.

"With nineteen States already having ratified the amendment there is no question that we can secure its ratification by the necessary thirty-six States if women will realize the obstacles and the opposition in their way, and make their demand so insistent and vigorous that Governors must listen."

Mrs. Baker said a special session of the Legislature is scheduled to be held on Nov. 25 in North Dakota and that special sessions had been promised in Colorado, Idaho, and South Dakota. Four regular sessions were counted on to ratify the amendment in Maryland, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Kentucky.

"Granted that all promises of special sessions are fulfilled," Mrs. Baker said, "eight additional States will still be needed for ratification. More than enough of the necessary Legislatures are pledged. There are still enough States—six in which the women have full or part suffrage, in which the Legislatures have as yet taken no action."

ENGAGEMENTS.

Mrs. Ijams of Princeton, N. J., has announced the engagement of her niece, Miss Elizabeth Inglis, to George Alexander Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sinclair Armstrong of 32 East Sixty-first Street. Mr. Armstrong was graduated from Princeton, class of '09, and served during 1918 in France as a Lieutenant with the 337th Field Artillery.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred De Buys of 15 West Eighty-seventh Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jeanne Cecile Marguerite De Buys, to Captain Henry Ward Banks, 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward Banks, Jr., of Noroton, Conn. Captain Banks is a graduate of Williams College, class of 1913, and served with the Field Artillery in France. He is a member of the University Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kellogg Watts of Glen Ridge, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Elizabeth Watts, to George Ingram of Glen Ridge. Miss Watts is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Robert Watts and the late Judge Mott of this city. She received the degree of Bachelor of Science from Columbia last June. Mr. Ingram was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale, class of '13.

Dr. Richard J. Kevin and Mrs. Kevin of 252 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Kevin, to James J. Newman, a son of Dr. Charles F. Newman of Java Street, Brooklyn. Mr. Newman recently returned from service overseas as a Major in the Aviation Service of the United States Army.

The engagement is announced of Miss Hona Marion Loewenthal, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Loewenthal, to Albert E. Talmer. Miss Loewenthal is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Alexander Kohut, and is a senior at Vassar. Mr. Talmer is assistant treasurer of the Madison Tire and Rubber Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rolland Peacock of Pittsburgh gave a tea yesterday at their New York apartment, at 471 Park Avenue, at which they announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Irene Margaret Peacock, to Joseph Larocque Anderson, son of Henry B. Anderson of this city.

Fraser-Martin Engagement.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Myra T. Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Fraser of this city and Morristown, N. J., to Grinnell Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newell Martin of New York and Millbrook, Conn. Miss Fraser is a member of the Junior League, being one of last season's debutantes, and was graduated from the Farmington School. Mr. Martin was graduated from Harvard, class of '10, and served as a Captain in the 304th Field Artillery, 77th Division, A. E. F., during the war.

FREER ART TO SMITHSONIAN.

Will Provides for $1,250,000 Building—Miss Rhoades as Adviser.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7.—The will of the late Charles L. Freer, millionaire art collector, admitted to probate here today, leaves the major part of the Freer art collection to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington and provides for a $1,250,000 building to house it.

The testament fixes the value of the estate at $3,000,000, the bulk of which is represented in the art collection. To the Detroit Museum of Art is bequeathed the Charles van Stern Gravesende collection of etchings. Stipulation is made that Miss Katherine Rhoades of New York, who was associated with Mr. Freer in the collection of his paintings and other art objects, shall be retained in an advisory capacity by the trustees in the care of the Freer collection.

WOMEN DENY REPRIMAND.

Mrs. Livermore Says Story of Using Letterheads Without Authority Is False.

Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Chairman of the Women's Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, denied yesterday a story that prominent Republican women had used Republican State Committee letterheads to indorse the League of Nations and that they were to be reprimanded for their action. According to the report, the Executive Committee was to meet yesterday to censure offenders. A meeting of the committee was held behind closed doors, but the leaders asserted that the only reference to the matter was a mention of the articles which appeared in two morning newspapers yesterday.

The meeting yesterday was to make preparations for a dinner to be held on Dec. 3, which Chairman Will Hays will attend. There will be a conference the following day of women from every county in the State to talk over the campaign for 1920.

The Women's State Executive Committee includes Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, and Mrs. Albert H. Gleason. Miss Hay also attended yesterday's meeting, which was held in the Republican Club, in West Fortieth Street.

Miss Purcell Weds Lieut. Hayward.

The marriage is announced of Miss Florence A. Purcell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Purcell of Whippany, N. J., and Lieutenant William A. Hayward, Air Service, U. S. A., of Freedonia, N. Y., which took place on Thursday in the Cathedral at Garden City, L. I. Miss Louise Hayes of Nutley, N. J., attended the bride, and Major R. E. Beverley, Medical Corps, U. S. A., of Warrenton, Va., acted as best man.

Bernard Hufnagle, Civil Engineer.

Bernard Hufnagle, retired civil engineer, died Thursday night at the age of 91 in the house he had built in Mount Vernon more than fifty years ago. He was a graduate of Heidelberg and when 25 years old he helped his brother lay out the old boundary line between France and Germany. Before the civil war he was a Captain in the old 27th Regiment of the New York National Guard. When he moved to Mount Vernon he helped form the 5th Company there. He was a founder of the Arion Society and one of two honorary members of the German Students Society. He helped lay out Central Park and designed many of its bridges.

HAASE, SOCIALIST, DIES FROM WOUNDS

WARNED GERMANY OF RUIN

Long a Member of the Reichstag, He Was Suggested as a Possible Chancellor.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Hugo Haase, President of the Independent Socialist Party, died this morning from wounds received when he was shot by an Austrian, Johann Voss, while entering the Reichstag building on Oct. 8. He was hit three times, in the thigh, forearm and abdomen. Repeated operations were performed, culminating in the amputation of the right leg, the bone of which had been smashed by one of the bullets.

Haase was prosecuting Voss on a charge of extortion and it was alleged the assault was committed from personal motives, although a political cause was sought. Haase was about to attack the Government severely, charging them with fostering attacks on radicals through "murder bureaus."

Herr Haase, who was a lawyer by profession and 56 years old, succeeded to the mantle of August Bebel as President of the German Social Democratic Party, but broke with the party in 1915 on the question of voting war credits, believing that to secure peace it was necessary to refuse financial support to the Government, even at the risk of German defeat. In addition to this open policy, the new Independent Socialist Party promoted an underground campaign to encourage revolt in the army and navy and paralyze the war industries by a general strike, the first sensational results of which were seen in the naval mutiny of August, 1918.

When the Imperial Government fell, in November, 1918, Herr Haase entered the first Coalition Cabinet, but retired after little more than a month's service, which was marked by constant conflicts with Dr. Solf and Haase's regular Socialist colleagues. Elected to the National Assembly, he waged vigorous war on the Socialist-Democratic-Clerical bloc Government, and did not disdain co-operation with the Spartacides, although ostensibly opposing any radical alliance.

On June 20 last year he warned Germany of her ruin, and asserted "We see now with amazing clearness that a military autocracy, for which Count Hertling and Herr von Kuhlmann are but fig leaves, rules the Imperial Government solely and alone." Later he was strongly opposed to Minister of Defense Noske and his methods of suppressing strikes and revolts.

When Germany was seeking a Government willing to sign the Peace Treaty Herr Haase was suggested as a possible Chancellor, but refused to consider the office. He was first elected to the Reichstag in 1897 and was re-elected regularly thereafter except in the 1907 election, when he went down in the general Socialist rout.

PROF. C. H. HITCHCOCK DIES.

HONOLULU, H. I., Nov. 7.—Charles Henry Hitchcock, Professor of Geology and Mineralogy at Dartmouth for forty years, from 1868 to 1908, died here today at the age of 83.

Professor Hitchcock was the son of Edward Hitchcock, President of Amherst College, where he was graduated in 1856. While preparing himself for the ministry he became so interested in geology that he altered his career. When still a young man he directed the geological survey of Maine and lectured on zoology at Amherst. On his return from a year's study at the Royal School of Mines in London he joined the Dartmouth faculty.

In 1871 he led an expedition that occupied Mount Washington, N. H., in the Winter, establishing the first high mountain observatory in the country. Several geological maps of the United States were compiled by him. He was a founder and former Vice President of the Geological Society of America.

"THE Car of the Future will be a LIGHT-WEIGHT car!"

FIVE MILLION TONS—the load of one hundred thousand freight cars stretching from New York to Chicago—the cargo capacity of two hundred and twelve Leviathans—a weight greater than the effective tonnage of the combined navies of the United States, Great Britain and France—

All this is being carried daily as unnecessary dead weight by six and a half million American motor cars and trucks!

And YOU, whether you own a car or not, YOU are helping to pay the bill! YOU are helping to shoulder the burden of excess weight as it is passed down to you through the channels of trade in the form of increased prices for the things you buy.

YOU are affected by excess weight because gasoline, oil, tires, motor transportation in general, are so closely interwoven with the commercial fabric of the country, that anything affecting the price of these products affects the price of ALL products.

Excess weight exacts an annual toll of at least one hundred and sixty millions of dollars in unnecessary automobile repairs, four hundred millions of dollars in unnecessary gasoline expense and one and one-half billions of dollars in unnecessary tire expense.

And YOU are helping to pay the bill!

Excess weight in motor cars and motor trucks places a burden on the American people that is nineteen times greater than the yearly interest on the First Liberty Loan.

And YOU are helping to pay the bill!

Excess weight is insidious. Unobserved by the average man, it is eating into the fuel supply. It is cutting into American pocket-books. It is helping to keep the cost of living HIGH.

But the car of less than a thousand pounds, of thirty to forty miles to the gallon of gasoline, of at least twenty thousand miles to the set of tires, the car that will carry NO excess weight—THAT CAR WILL COME!

It will come to conserve the gasoline supply, the impending shortage of which threatens to retard the future growth of the motor car industry.

It will come to bring motor car convenience to the man who today can afford to BUY a car, but who cannot afford to RUN one.

It will come because public economy and private purse—YOUR purse—demand the elimination of excess weight—demand more mileage for every dollar spent for gasoline and oil and tires—demand the car that directly and indirectly will best serve the greatest needs of the greatest number. "THE Car of the Future will be a LIGHT-WEIGHT Car!!"

COPELAND ORDERS CUT IN MILK PRICES

Warns Distributers That Public Will No Longer Tolerate Present High Cost.

PUTS SOLUTION UP TO THEM

COMPANIES PROMISE AID

Agree to Work Out Proposal for Submission to the Fair Price Committee.

Health Commissioner Copeland, Chairman of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee, which is investigating the causes for the increase of 1½ and 2 cents a quart in the retail price of milk for this month, declared at a hearing before that body at the City Hall yesterday afternoon that some way must be found to reduce the price of milk to the consumer, and gave it as his opinion that the burden for working out this method lay with the distributors, if they desire to continue in business. He requested the representatives of the large distributing companies present to get together, work out some practical plan looking to this end, and submit it to the committee at a subsequent meeting. They agreed to do this.

The public is not in a frame of mind, Dr. Copeland continued, to tolerate any longer the imposition of such high prices for milk, and unless something is done to bring them down the people will take the matter into their own hands. They will do nothing violent, he said further, but they will pursue some course that will insure for them cheaper milk. He pointed out that milk is laid down in New York City for about 9¼ cents a quart and is sold to the consumer for 18 cents a quart. Dr. Copeland told the distributors that he was merely pointing out to them the feeling of public sentiment as he was able to interpret it.

"Thousands of children in New York City, I know of my own knowledge," said Dr. Copeland, "are getting only one and a half cups of milk a day, and there are many who are not getting any at all, because of the high prices that are being charged."

When D. P. Fox, Vice President of Borden's Products Company, said he would not have time to serve on a committee of distributers which Dr. Copeland had in mind to work out some plan for lower priced milk, Dr. Copeland remarked that failure to do something to bring down the price of milk might result in his having more time on his hands than he knew what to do with. Later, when Dr. Copeland decided not to appoint a committee but to rely upon the distributers to voluntarily work out a plan and submit it to the Fair Price Committee, Mr. Fox said he would be glad to act with the other distributers.

Suggestions By Witnesses.

Suggestions for a solution of the high price milk to the consumer, embraced in the testimony of the witnesses, included a "regulated monopoly," as given by R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, which represents the producers, who considered that the present price to the consumer was too high, although contending that the producer was not getting as much as he should; a "properly legalized monopoly," which would embrace daylight delivery, as brought forward by Mr. Fox, and the proposal of Loten Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company, who thought a material reduction could be made in bottled milk if no loose or "dip" milk were sold, but this would, he said, mean an increase in these who have been buying the "dip" milk. He estimated that 36 per cent. of the milk sold in New York is bottled milk, 40 per cent. loose milk, and 30 per cent. sold to the hotels, restaurants, &c.

Another suggestion for the decrease in the price of milk to the consumer was contained in the testimony of Bradley Fuller, President of the Co-operative Plan Corporation and counsel of the Dairymen's League. This plan provides that milk be produced near New York City be sold here, and the manufacturing plants, which would be owned by the organization made up of farmers, be located in the outlying territory. At present, he said, the plants owned by the distributers were located as close to the city as possible. The milk for consumption in the city is brought from a greater distance and at a greater cost for handling.

The method of fixing the price of milk to the producer, based on the butter and cheese market for the preceding month, took up a large part of the time of the three and a half hour session of the committee. Mr. Cooper was the first witness, and he told in detail how this price was arrived at by representatives of the Dairymen's League and the New York Milk Conference Board. Other witnesses were I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, and Luther L. Campbell, President of the Clover Farms Company. Mr. Horton and Mr. Campbell told the committee that the increased cost absorbed all of the increased income of their companies from the November milk. Mr. Fox admitted that his company hoped to make a little profit.

Horton Answers Copeland.

Mr. Horton replied in detail and in writing to the six questions publicly asked of him by Dr. Copeland, the first four questions and answers being as follows:

"With the November price to the farmer $3.33 per hundred, as against $3.11 in October, an advance of 22 cents per hundred, or approximately four-tenths of a cent per quart, what additional cost on this account are the dealers justified in adding to the price of milk for this month?

"You are to state that the advance is not four-tenths of a cent per quart, but practically half a cent. To be exact it is $.00473 per quart. This increased cost we have of course added.

"May I make the following further correction? The price of $3.33 per hundred to the farmers, as you doubtless know, is the so-called base price for 3 per cent. milk, not the actual price that we pay, as we pay an additional premium for butter fat. Assuming that the butter fat in our November milk of this year is, as is likely, the same as that in previous years, the milk will cost us not $3.33, but $3.77 per hundred.

"Does the price 17½ cents for Grade B mean that the purchaser of a single quart will pay 18 cents? If so, how much do you estimate will be the amount of income derived from this one item of a half cent?

"Customers who come to our stores and buy on a cash basis a single quart of milk will pay 18 cents a quart for it.

"We are preparing, however, and distributing to our stores a refund check redeemable at half a cent at that store.

"So far as the rest of our business is concerned, of course 17½ cents will be the price charged and paid.

"So far as we are concerned, there is no increase whatever over the 17½-cent price which your question suggests."

"How many employes, by classification, are affected by the new salary schedule, and how much is the actual increase in salaries?

"Attached hereto is a schedule which analyzes and classifies our wage increase, showing a total increase in weekly salaries effective Nov. 1 of $23,714.90 a week."

"With the new schedule of pay for your employes, what additional cost on this account are the dealers justified in adding to the price of milk for this month?"

"We are selling weekly over 2,287,850 quarts of milk, and applying the salary increases, $23,714.90, to this amount of trade, it means an increase on each quart of milk handled of $.01049 per quart."

In answer to the fifth question, as to the amount of profit that will be derived from the November milk in excess of the profits last November, Mr. Horton says that it is problematical and points out that last November the company had a loss of $55,018.04. He points out also that in the company's 183 stores, which sell 250,000 quarts of milk a week, the price has been advanced only 1 cent a quart.

The sixth question was "What will be the increased income of the milk distributers over October by reason of this rise in price?" Mr. Horton says in his reply that the increase to producers is $.00473 a quart, increase to employes of $.01049, a total increase cost to the distributer of $.01513. $.01500 of which is being passed to the consumer and the remainder of $.00013 is borne by the distributer.

There will be another meeting Monday of the Fair Milk Price Committee.

SUGAR PROFIT OVER 100%.

Sale of 55 Tons at 19 Cents a Pound Goes to Prosecutor.

Arthur Williams, the Federal Food Administrator, sent to United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey yesterday details of a transaction wherein sugar was bought by the Page & Shaw Candy Company for 19 cents a pound. The price allowed by the Sugar Equalization Board is 9½ cents. Mr. Williams asked that such action be taken as the District Attorney "saw fit."

The facts, which were obtained by the United States Secret Service, are these, according to Mr. Williams:

Some weeks ago Page & Shaw went into the market to get some sugar. They succeeded in buying fifty-five tons from a broker, W. R. Marshall of Boston. It was learned that Mr. Marshall bought the sugar for 18½ cents from Wood & Watson of 149 Broadway, New York. Wood & Watson said they purchased it at that price, less a broker's commission of a fraction of a cent a pound, from C. G. Merrill of 110 Nassau Street, Merrill, according to Mr. Williams, bought it from the Lash Corporation in East Houston Street at $17.50 a hundred pounds. Several brokers come into the transaction here, said Mr. Williams, whose names have not been learned; but the company that sold the sugar first, so far as is known, he said, was the Argos Mercantile Company. The Lash Corporation, the Food Administrator said, paid 12 cents a pound. The original price of this fifty-five tons of sugar, according to Mr. Williams, was, including duty, $8.82 a hundred pounds.

That is a fair sample of transactions we are investigating," said Mr. Williams. "The margin between $8.82 a hundred pounds and $19, which the Page & Shaw people paid, is so great that I think it should be thoroughly investigated."

Mr. Williams said yesterday he was confident that much good would be accomplished by the conference to be held next week by the Federal authorities and the Fair Price Committee's Sub-Committee on Clothing and Shoes. What the Attorney General wants is a standard of prices, so that prosecutions for profiteering in clothing and shoes under the Lever act may be carried on. At present there is no basis for judgment as to what a merchant should charge for wearing apparel.

Mr. Williams said yesterday that he had asked Mrs. William Randolph Hearst to head a committee to carry on a campaign of education in the public schools, designed to teach children the value of shopping around for purchases. Newspaper advertising, he said, would be the texts that the children would be asked to study.

PROFITEER CASE ARGUED.

Louis Leavitt's Counsel Says War Is Over and No Crime Committed.

Argument on the demurrer to the indictment against Louis Leavitt, manufacturer of white lead of Williamsburg, who is charged with hoarding more than 2,000,000 pounds of bacon, was heard before Federal Judge Garvin in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon.

Max Steuer appeared for Leavitt. He declared that the action of Leavitt in purchasing the bacon from the Government was legitimate. He contended that the act under which the arrest was made was now inoperative because the President had declared demobilization was complete.

He argued that the crisis under the act conserving food and preventing profiteering had passed.

Harvey H. Harwood, Assistant United States District Attorney, said that the indictment was valid and insisted it was warranted because of a man not in business purchasing such an amount. He said no date had been fixed for demobilization and the country was still at war.

SAYS GERMANS SAVED PETROGRAD

YUDENITCH RESCUES ARMY

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6.—A Lithuanian official communication issued at Kovno and received here today says:

"The Lithuanians have captured Birshi, in the Psavalya district. Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt's troops are withdrawing toward Schoteberg. His troops also have been driven back on the Kurkal-Rossieny-Linkartiai line.

"An intercepted wireless message from Nikolai Lenin, (the Bolshevist Premier,) to Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt, says: 'Hearty thanks to you and General von der Goltz for the great assistance you have given my Red Army against the counter revolutionaries. The entire labor world can testify that you both belong to the heroes who saved Petrograd.'"

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 6, (Associated Press.)—The Esthonian Bureau learns that General Yudenitch has succeeded in extricating a greater number of his troops after suffering heavy losses, but that his forces in the region of Gatchina and Luga were completely cut off by Bolshevist cavalry.

Bolshevist reports attribute the defeat of General Yudenitch in this region to the cutting off of these troops.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A member of the Northwest Russian Government has received a telephone message from Reval announcing that the city of Gdov has surrendered to the Bolsheviki, according to The Daily Mail's correspondent at Helsingfors.

If true, this defeat cuts another of General Yudenitch's lines of communication.

A Bolshevist wireless dispatch dated today claims the capture of Tchernigoff, on the River Desna, 90 miles north of Kiev, from General Denikin's forces.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 6.—Citizens' meetings in various parts of Finland, according to advices received by the Aften Tidningen from Helsingfors, have voted in favor of intervention in the campaign against Petrograd as recommended in the recent letter of General Mannerheim, (former Finnish Premier,) to President Stahlberg of Finland.

THREAT WITH PEACE OFFER.

Soviet to Turn to Central Powers If Allies Refuse Parley.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Daily Herald, the labor organ, today prints the full draft of the conditions upon which the leaders of the Soviet Government in Russia are willing to discuss peace terms with the allied and associated powers, which were brought to London by Lieut. Col. Lastrange Malone, Liberal member of Parliament, who recently returned from a visit to Russia.

The draft concludes by saying that the Soviet Government "hopes it will not be necessary to transfer this offer with necessary modifications to the Central Powers."

The Soviet Government proposes a peace conference in a neutral country after an agreement on an armistice for all the fronts, including the border States, all the de facto Governments meantime to remain in control.

The blockade would be removed, and the Soviet Government and the Nationals of the associated and allied Governments would have free rights of transit over all the railways and at ports of the former Russian Empire, including the border States and Finland, and free trade communication in and out of the country.

The conditions provide that the Soviet Government would be entitled to send representatives to all allied countries; for amnesty for all Russian military and political prisoners; for the withdrawal of all allied troops from Russian territory and the cessation of allied military help to the Russian forces. The Soviet Government also promises to recognise all foreign debt obligations of the former Russian Empire.

COATS THREAD PROFITS £38,994,000 LAST YEAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—"We mean to find out why a reel of cotton costs 7 pence halfpenny," said Mr. McCurdy, Chairman of the Central Profiteering Committee, yesterday.

Today it is disclosed that J. & P. Coats, thread manufacturers, of Paisley, made a profit last year of £38,994,000, permitting a dividend of 40 per cent. This profit was made after paying the excess profits duty, which probably amounted to hundreds of thousands of pounds. In addition to providing for dividends, the Directors propose to place £750,000 to the credit of a war contingencies fund, £150 000 to that of a marine underwriting account, £250,000 to that of a pensions scheme for workers, and to carry forward £2,200,400.

Apart from this carry-forward and pension fund, the Coats firm now has various reserves amounting to over £11,600,000. A part of this sum is to be capitalized, and it is generally expected that the holders of ordinary shares will get a 100 per cent. bonus.

HELD FOR BIG SILK THEFT.

Young Man Who Disappeared with $25,000 Truckload Is Arrested.

After touring the country for two months, while the police of every city in Canada and the United States were searching for him, Solomon Popper, 18 years old, a driver of 359 Grand Street, was arrested last night by Detectives Woods and Cassassa, and locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Station, charged with grand larceny.

Popper, while employed as a driver by Phillip Freeman, dealer in general merchandise at 610 East Thirty-second Street, on Aug. 2, vanished while delivering $25,000 worth of silk to a department store, the police charge. The silk has not been recovered. The police say that subsequently Popper was indicted for the theft of the silk.

American Ship West Modus Also Saves British Steamer's Crew.

The New York agents of the American steamship West Modus received a cable dispatch yesterday from the master stating that he had rescued the 611 passengers, of whom 140 were women and children, and the crew, nearly all natives, of the British steamship Pasilka on Thursday in the Bay of Bengal.

She was bound from Penang in the Straits Settlements to Madras and was driven by a storm on Nicobar Island. The Pasilka was a vessel of 4,182 tons gross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—That the House Naval Affairs Committee intends to report a bill to increase the pay of officers and men of the navy was indicated today when Rear Admiral Cowie favored increasing the pay of officers 30 per cent. and of the men 50 per cent. It was decided informally to notify chief petty officers that increases would be granted making the increased pay range from $90 to $125 a month.

Rear Admiral Cowie said the navy would suffer great loss if the resignation of petty officers continued, and he suggested that action should be taken at once to influence them to remain in the service.

Representative Thomas Butler, Chairman of the committee, said, following the meeting, that a bill recommending virtually the increases sought by the officers of the navy would be reported to the House soon. He expressed the hope that the bill would be passed by Congress this session.

KOLCHAK DECIDES TO DEFEND OMSK

CIVILIANS LEAVING OMSK

Town to be Fortified and Intrenched and Serve as the Centre of Defense.

OMSK, Oct. 31, (Russian Telegraphic Agency.)—The Council of Ministers of the Omsk Government has decided to evacuate all the civil establishments from Omsk. Admiral Kolchak, head of the Government, and all the members of his Cabinet will remain in Omsk.

Dealing with the situation, the Russkoye Dielo says:

"The region between the Rivers Ishim and Irtish will be the place where a decisive battle against the Bolsheviki who try to enter Siberia will take place. Omsk will be fortified and surrounded by trenches and serve as the centre of our defense."

The newspaper Russ, organ of the Siberia Agricultural Co-operative Societies, has this to say:

"The situation on the front becomes more and more alarming, and it is necessary that we should postpone at this moment every criticism in all problems not connected directly with the national defense. We must all units around the Government and the army, understanding that our choice is Admiral Kolchak or Lenin.

"A defeat on our front would mean the deliverance of Siberia to international adventurers, who would bring with them starvation for all the population. We must stand firmly and fight for Russia's freedom and dignity."

According to Bolshevist newspapers received here, nineteen representatives of co-operative organisations have been executed in Moscow and more than 100 others imprisoned.

The newspapers assert that members of the co-operative organisations also are being persecuted in other cities of Bolshevist Russia. Many of them have been shot.

Under the provisions of a recent Bolshevist decree all the co-operative organisations are nationalised, and it is announced that all members of the organizations who during the next month do not enter the Bolshevist Party will be dismissed from their positions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The All-Russian Government at Omsk has made a deposit of $1,000,000 in gold bullion as a guarantee that it will meet its obligations for the purchase of war materials from the American Government. This gold has been safely received at San Francisco, according to announcement made today by the War Department, and has been deposited in the United States Treasury.

CAPTAIN ORBISON GASSED.

U. S. Relief Official Suffers a Second Time in Attacking Riga.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Captain J. Orbison, head of the American Relief Administration in Riga, was badly gassed during a bombardment of Riga, with gas shells ordered by the forces of Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt, says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Helsingfors.

This is the second mishap to Captain Orbison as a result of the fighting between the Letts and the combined Germans and Russian forces. Late in October an office at Riga of the American Relief Administration were struck by a high-explosive enemy shell, and Captain Orbison was wounded, particles of the shell cutting his scalp in several places. None of the other Americans in the building was injured.

Reds Let 630 Captives Die of Hunger

HELSINFORS, Nov. 6, (Associated Press.)—A Bolshevist report, received through German sources, says that 630 of the 1,000 inmates of Krosty Prison, in Petrograd, have died of starvation. Eight thousand fugitives, according to Helsingfors newspapers, have arrived at the Finnish frontier from the Petrograd district.

CUTS RATE TO AMERICAN.

City Leases Pier for $260,000 That Was Held at $328,500.

Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert announced yesterday that he had leased Pier 133, at the foot of Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn, to the Luckenbach Steamship Company at $260,000 a year. For a time the city held out for $328,500, and, failing to get it, Commissioner Hulbert said he would lease it to the highest bidder. Yesterday, however, the Commissioner received a telegram from John Barton Payne, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, suggesting the importance to the American Merchant Marine of giving adequate docking facilities to "strong and reputable American shipping companies as against foreign flag competitors," and the Commissioner accepted the offer of the Luckenback company.

According to the Commissioner, the amount offered by the company represents the maximum wharfage that could be earned on the pier at the rate of 31 cents a ton, the prevailing wharfage rate.

PREDICTS VIENNA UPRISING.

National Guard Commander Expects Attempt to Overthrow Government.

VIENNA, Nov. 4, (Associated Press.)—The commander of the National Guard in a speech before the Socialist conference said he was convinced that the guard would be called on to deal with an attempt of armed reactionary revolutionists to overthrow the existing Socialist Government some time during the Winter.

About two thousand men, organised on a military basis, had been involved in the reactionary coup d'état, which was planned for Oct. 25, but which was frustrated. About six thousand more men were under orders of the reactionary leaders.

WOMEN WEARING MONOCLES

British Optician Says Many Have Impaired Vision in One Eye Only.

LONDON, Oct. 29, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Englishwomen are beginning to wear monocles. Not only are they adopting them for home wear, but are appearing on the streets so adorned.

A member of a firm of opticians defends the innovation by saying that in the case of every inquiry he has had from women recently there has been a "genuine trouble with one eye only."

JAPAN WON'T TAKE STEVENS'S ORDERS

READY TO PROTECT ROAD

Reply to American Note Charging Lack of Co-operation Suggests It Is Based on Misunderstanding.

TOKIO, Nov. 2, (Associated Press.)—The Japanese Government in its reply just forwarded to Washington to the American note of last September, complaining of a lack of co-operation by Japanese troops in the operation of the Trans-Siberian Railroad, draws a sharp distinction between the military protection of the railroad, which it is willing to undertake, and obedience to the orders and instructions of the Inter-Allied Railway Commission under John W. Stevens or the subsidiary railway board, which is in nowise contemplated.

The correspondent of The Associated Press finds that the note, which is moderate in tone and which as a diplomatic document bears evidence of the exceeding care expended upon its composition, declares that no information in the possession of Japan bears out the contention in the note of the American Government that Japanese troops have flatly refused to protect lives or property of allied railroad inspectors in the territory controlled by the Cossack General, Semenoff. The note expresses the opinion that the American contention is based upon some misunderstanding and suggests that the American Government bring forward any concrete facts upon which it bases its case. In this event the Japanese Government would be glad to furnish material which might explain the Japanese side of the case.

"It is a matter of no small regret that information in the possession of the United States in regard to misunderstandings and differences of this kind arising between nationals of the United States and Japan in Siberia seems at variance with information reaching the Japanese Government," says the note.

The American Government, it goes on to say, appears to believe that the Japanese Government understands that the protection of the Trans-Siberian railway system is limited to safeguarding the railway and keeping the line open, entailing no obligation whatsoever for co-operation by Japanese troops in furthering the general railway plan. If the expressions, "general operation" and "railway plan" mean; besides the defense of the railway itself, such matters as succoring railway inspectors in case of emergency, it goes without saying that the Japanese railway forces are and have been devoting their efforts to the furtherance of the operation of the railroad plan.

The Government wishes especially to emphasize the fact that the primary duty of the military is the defense of the railway itself, believing that this is vital if the railway is to be operated at all. It is thought to be clear that the Government of the United States will recognize the great efforts and sacrifices made by the Japanese troops in defense of the railway.

If, however, it is declared in the note, the American Government thinks that the allied military forces should be made subordinate to the Interallied Commission or to the subsidiary technical board, the Japanese Government regrets to say that it is unable to fall in line with that attitude. Apparently desirous that the foregoing statement should not cause fresh misunderstandings, the note continues:

"However, the Japanese Government would in no case insist that their military forces are under no obligation to undertake the forwarding the peaceful operation of the railroad. The Japanese troops will put forward all possible efforts to remove anything that stands in the way of the operation of the railroad and will by no means shut their eyes to the perpetration of outrages calculated to endanger the lives and property of inspectors and engineers."

Taking up the American references to the instructions to the Japanese military concerning non-interference in case of disputes, the note submits that there seems to be nothing improper in this stand. On the contrary, it thinks that any unsalled-for intervention by Japanese troops in disputes between officials or military forces of the allied powers would be likely to create a grave situation, pregnant with the most undesirable consequences. The object of the Japanese instructions being to avoid the creation of any cause of misunderstanding or ill-feeling, it seems evident what great importance is attached in the instructions to the furtherance of mutual understanding and co-operation.

"It would, therefore, be wide of the mark," it is stated, "to allege that in regard to the general operation of the railway the Japanese troops accept no obligation for co-operation."

The reply then refers to the modus vivendi reached by Ambassador Morris at Vladivostok on Sept. 22, and to the instructions later given to the Japanese commanders, and registers the pleasure of the Government that this caused satisfaction to the American Government.

The communication closes by a discussion of the mission of the new diplomatic representative of Japan, Count Tsunetaka Kato, at the headquarters of the All-Russian Government in Siberia. It gives assurances that Count Kato will join in any action considered necessary to secure the proper working of the railway, and will strive to further the economic and political recuperation of Siberia. The note, in conclusion, voices the hope that Count Kato's efforts will contribute to the promotion of mutual understanding and co-operation among the Allied nationals in Siberia.

Copies of the reply have been sent to England, France, Italy, China, and Russia.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Nov. 7.—Finished silk, valued at $10,000, was stolen from the Holt Dye Works here early this morning. Thieves beat the watchman into insensibility, tied him to a post, and then robbed the plant. It is believed that the thieves used an automobile to carry away the silk.

GERMANY FEARED CODE WAS KNOWN

Zimmermann Says It Was Suspected That America Had Given It to the Allies.

SIMS'S STORY INTRODUCED

Directors of U-Boat War Find Satisfaction in Havoc Wrought, as Revealed by American.

BERLIN, Nov. 6, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, Secretary for Foreign Affairs during the war, caused a mild sensation during today's session of the National Assembly committee investigating the war when he admitted that the German authorities had been suspicious that their code, which had been made known to the American authorities, was betrayed to the Entente by the United States Government. (The reference is to the special code which the American Government permitted to be used in wireless communication with the Washington embassy, a copy of which was furnished to the State Department.)

Count Bernstorff, when asked regarding these suspicions, said at first that he could not swear that these wireless messages had not been communicated by the United States Government to the Entente, but later declared under oath that he had never known of "such treachery." He declared Germany had a difficult and dangerous cable route through neutral countries, but that messages had been concealed as commercial dispatches.

The submarine warfare came into the investigation again today.

Vice Admiral Eduard von Capelle, one of the advocates of the submarine campaign, said the U-boats had not been able to get at American transports because each submarine covered a limited circle around England, and the whole ocean could not be patrolled. Various British and American inventions, like the "listening boat," Admiral von Capelle declared, were other things which prevented attacks on transports.

Admiral von Capelle did not mention mines or depth charges during his recital. He would not admit that the Admiralty underestimated the United States as a factor in the war, but declared it was known, from England's experience with a volunteer army, that the United States could not raise many troops in six months, and it was thought by the time they were trained the war would be over.

Vice Admiral Capelle was forced to admit that the U-boats were powerless to prevent transportation by the British of ammunition across the English Channel. He related in detail the British system which made use of nets, searchlights, destroyers, and false cruisers to foil the submarine. "They only succeeded at night," he added triumphantly.

In response to questions as to what caused the decision to start the submarine warfare, what justified it, and what prospects it held for success Admiral von Koch made a long, chiefly technical, reply. He quoted at length from reports of the late Admiral von Holtzendorff, former head of the German Naval Staff, who, he said, felt that American peace intervention could not be counted on and that Germany would have to take chances on America's participation in the war.

Admiral von Koch asserted he did not know about President Wilson's peace plans, whereupon Bethmann Hollweg stepped in, explaining that he had reported the matter in detail to the Chief of the Admiralty Staff. As a result of his remarks Bethmann Hollweg was subjected to another heckling which caused him to lose his temper. He regained his equanimity quickly, however, asserting that he was being treated as an accused rather than as a witness.

The Investigating Committee sat breathless as von Koch read from Admiral Sims's account of his interview with Admiral Jellicoe, Great Britain's naval head, just after the declaration of the intensified U-boat warfare by Germany. The account seemed to give many of the listeners a forlorn sense of satisfaction. According to the account, Admiral Jellicoe has admitted Great Britain's peril. Admiral Koch pointed to this as justification of beginning the underwater campaign, calling special attention to Jellicoe's alleged statement that the British losses had been three or four times as heavy as officially announced.

Dr. Eduard David, Minister of the Interior, gave as his opinion that Admiral Jellicoe had tried to mislead the United States through Admiral Sims. Von Koch replied that this was hardly possible, as Admiral Sims was an outspoken enemy of Germany.

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, Chancellor during the greater part of the war, declared he was of the impression in June and July (1917) that the submarines were destructive that England was weakening. He said Lloyd George's speech when he asked for "ships, ships," was probably not recognized as a peace opportunity, and, he asserted, the same could be said of the speech of Mr. Lloyd George at Glasgow, demanding "silver and bullets."

What had been the impression regarding the entry of the United States into the war was then discussed by the committee. Bethmann Hollweg declared that any man who read the sentiments and peace notes of the United States would have known this was inevitable.

Dr. Zimmermann was asked whether he said in a general party meeting, regarding the submarine warfare and the entry of the United States into the war, that American aid militarily would amount to "Zero, zero, zero." The former Foreign Minister evaded the answer.

General Ludendorff has been summoned to appear before the committee tomorrow.

DENY OTTO WILL BE KING.

Hungarian Monarchists Say They Want No Hapsburg to Rule.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—A wireless message received here from Vienna reports that Archduke Otto is about to be proclaimed King of Hungary.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—The monarchist party has issued a statement saying that while it is desirous of re-establishing a kingdom, it does not favor the restoration of the throne to any member of the Hapsburg family. This statement was provoked by reports that 7-year-old Archduke Otto would be placed on the throne under a regency.

VIENNA, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—The Hungarian Government has renewed its demand for the extradition of Bela Kun, former dictator of Hungary. Distinct charges are lodged against him—that he caused to be murdered certain Hungarian officers in Russia, Rumanian officers who came to Budapest as emissaries, and certain citizens in Trans-Danubia who criticised his government. He is also accused of levying illegal tribute.

CALL JUGOSLAVS TO COLORS

Vienna Hears That an Ultimatum to Italy Is Expected.

VIENNA, Nov. 4, (Associated Press.)—Special dispatches received by Vienna papers state that five additional yearly classes of soldiers in Jugoslavia have been called to the colors on the pretext of military training.

A military dictatorship has practically been established in the country and many arrests have been made.

An ultimatum to Italy is expected.

Advices received here from Agram, Jugoslavia, however, report that meetings are being held there in protest against a possible war with Italy. The general tenor of the speeches and the resolutions adopted is that if Serbia has any differences with Italy she should fight them out without involving either Croatia or Slavonia.

Relief of Hungarian Children Begun by American Board

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—The American Commission in charge of the children's relief in Europe began work here this week, opening fifteen hospitals and twenty-seven other institutions as a beginning.

Physical examinations of the school children have begun, and the distribution of food to children in the public schools will start next week.

NOSKE'S FIRM STAND SUPPRESSED STRIKE

ABANDON GENERAL STRIKE

Revolutionary Danger Recognized at Last Moment—Military Now Ready to Act.

BERLIN, Nov. 6, (Associated Press.)—A committee of radical leaders has issued a manifesto, announcing that the general strike which had been called to support the metal workers in their protracted walkout, has been abandoned owing to the attitude of the Majority Socialists and of the trades unions. The metal workers' strike continues.

Minister of War Noske had adopted very severe measures to prevent the outbreak of the general strike. The headquarters of the Independent Socialists were occupied, a meeting of street railway employes was dissolved, and the Executive Council of the Council of Workmen's Delegates was dispersed.

[An earlier report announcing the collapse of the proposed general strike, stated that documents found at the headquarters of the Independent Socialists proved that they had been acting with the Spartacides.]

THE HAGUE, Nov. 6.—Through a special telephone message from Berlin I learn that the general strike Germany greatly feared for today is considered successfully avoided by the Government authorities in Berlin, although the metal workers continue their strike.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The Independent Socialist and Communist Parties no longer keep it secret that they are determined that the metal workers must continue the strike "for demonstrative purposes until Nov. 9," and that for the same reason a general sympathetic strike of all Germany will be declared tonight or tomorrow. [since abandoned.]

The premises of the Independents and Communists of immediate and handsome compensation for the loss of six weeks' wages in case "the second revolution" is successful cannot but strongly influence the younger elements, and even the older ones, whose families are starving and have pawned nearly all their household belongings.

Noske and the other Cabinet members have never recognised how gravely they underestimated the revolutionary danger, and have, I am informed, made extensive preparations to meet violence with force and relentlessly to suppress all rebellious actions, no matter what the cost of blood and life. The streets were paraded by strong military patrols and certain districts again present quite a warlike aspect.

EGG STAMPING OPPOSED.

Does Not Stop Fraud and Hurts Sale, Battle Is Told.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Commissioner George Gordon Battle, named by Governor Smith to investigate the Council of Farms and Markets, held a session here this afternoon and heard testimony of Professor Earl W. Benjamin against the stamping of cold storage eggs. Professor Benjamin declared if this was insisted upon eggs would not be placed in cold storage. He also said that only 5 per cent. of the eggs consumed in Winter are fresh ones.

He said the stamping of eggs made them unsightly and interfered with their sale; that fraud could still be carried on, and that the expense of marking such eggs would have to be borne by the consumer.

It was brought out at the hearing that about 100,000 pounds of fish had been placed in the storage house of the Brooklyn Bridge Freezing and Cold Storage Company of New York on Nov. 1, 1918, and had been marked as "bait" by its owner when the cold storage limit expired. The fish was of the kind used for food and comprised some 25,000 pounds of whiting.

Harold E. Phillips, Deputy Director of the Bureau of Markets and Storage, admitted he had no check to see that this fish was used as bait and not sold as food.

5TH INFANTRY REACH RHINE

Join Occupation Army Pending Transfer to Upper Silesia.

COBLENZ, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—Troops of the Fifth Infantry, which arrived at Brest recently from the United States, reached the Rhine today from Brest.

These are the first units of a provisional infantry brigade to form a part of the army of occupation until it may be detached for its proposed service in Upper Silesia in connection with the plebiscite there.

Brigadier Gen. William H. Sage, commanding the troops, will arrive on Friday. The brigade is receiving equipment and horses from the army of occupation and from the French.

LINER HITS DERELICT.

France Meets Accident on Voyage from New York.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The French Line steamship France, arriving at Havre from New York, struck a derelict in entering Havre Roads, according to The Herald's correspondent. Most of the passengers were awakened by the impact, and there was considerable excitement aboard the steamer, but no one was injured.

One of the propellers of the France was damaged, and the repairs to it will entail the delay of a day in sailing on the return voyage to New York.

CALL NATION STILL STRONG

Travelers Returning to England Predict a Big Renewal of Industry and Prosperity.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Last night at 11 o'clock the entire passenger service throughout Germany ceased. Not a single passenger train will run for eleven days and after Nov. 15 there will be only absolutely necessary trains. In the industrial regions workers' trains will not be taken off and in and around cities a restricted local service will be kept up, but that is all. For eleven days Germany will be trainless.

One almost welcomes this official ban on travelling, for railroad journeys have become purgatorial. The few trains which have been running during the last month or two have been dangerously packed. Yesterday I traveled from Dresden to Berlin. An hour before the train started every compartment was packed full and when the train set out the corridors were so crowded that it was quite impossible to move. At the Berlin station the crowd of passengers arriving and departing was as vast as a Crystal Palace cup day crowd, and at all the other great Berlin terminals the conditions were the same.

There is something like a general flight from Berlin, but that is balanced by the flight into the city. All those who are under the necessity of travelling within the next fortnight have been rushing to their destinations during the past few days and they do not contemplate to luck to get back again.

To make matters worse, the hotels in all the great cities are overcrowded. In Berlin and elsewhere people are sleeping in hotel bathrooms and in all the odd corners where it is possible to put down a bedstead. Every hotel in Berlin is turning away hundreds of people daily, even though they have wired days beforehand to reserve rooms. The telegraph service is something like chaotic and the traveler will generally find it impossible to send a telegram before, even on short distances, such as from Dresden to Berlin.

Telephoning is an almost impossible achievement. Added to that, greater confusion reigns in the Post Office. Letters from all over the country and from abroad are weeks late in arriving. The Parcel Post Offices are endeavoring in vain to cope with the impossible mountains of packets. In some parts of the country the parcel post has been suspended. Stations throughout the country are congested with goods traffic, and to make matters worse, canal services are almost at a standstill. The mails will have to be forwarded by goods trains.

Noske and the only travel service of which the country will be able to boast for eleven days will be the Zeppelin service running between the capital and Friedrichshafen.

What the result of this traffic stoppage will be to the business world can be imagined when it is combined with the chaos and confusion in other means of communication. A sudden and early Winter has swept all over Germany from the south. This, it is officially stated, will have a bad effect on the poor service to be run during the rest of the month. Vast quantities of perishable goods will rot where they stand.

Officially this stoppage of passenger traffic is explained as necessary in order to secure an adequate distribution of coal and potatoes. The more extreme Socialist elements, of course, see in it a plan to prevent holding an Independent Socialist Congress at Leipsic in the second week of November—a rather fantastic accusation.

HARVARD-PRINCETON AND DARTMOUTH-PENN GRIDIRON BATTLES RIVAL IN INTEREST TODAY

HARVARD GRAPPLES WITH TIGERS TODAY

DARTMOUTH MEETS PENN

Evenly Fought Gridiron Battle Is Assured at Polo Grounds—Columbia Clashes with Stevens.

There was a time when college football reached its height only in the triangular encounters of Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. That day is past since the opening up of the game, and the consequent rise of the smaller colleges as real contenders. Today's big clash at Princeton, in which Harvard faces the Tigers in the first of the classic series, while it has more characteristic football color than any previous battle of the season, is actually of less importance than many a so-called "preliminary game."

Of course, if Bill Ropers's Jersey warriors should rise up in their wrath and smite John Harvard hip and thigh, or even hold the undefeated aristocrat of the gridiron to a tie score, there would be significance in plenty for today's argument down in Jungletown. But such an amazing occurrence is not likely. Princeton has been practically played to a standstill by Lafayette, beaten by Colgate, and overwhelmed by West Virginia. Its record indicates nothing more than an average team, far below the standards of the great elevens of the year.

Harvard, on the other hand, while progressing through a comparatively easy schedule, not only stands as one of the few undefeated combinations of 1919, but has on occasion demonstrated an impressive strength, with almost unlimited possibilities of development. Brown University and Boston College, the conqueror of Yale, are numbered among the Harvard victims thus far, but, aside from these two, the Cambridge eleven has had little opposition to face. It may be that the lack of steady development against strong rivals will have a bad effect on Harvard's play, especially if unexpected resistance is encountered. Princeton, of course, can be depended upon to fight to the last ditch with such resources as are at her command. But her formation seems too insecure to offer any logical hope of victory. On paper it looks like a sure triumph for the Crimson.

The Polo Grounds Rumpus.

Right up at the Polo Grounds today football fans may see a game which promises as fine a lot of thrills as any gridiron battle of the season. Dartmouth comes to New York for the second time this Fall, with the proud record of no defeats in a schedule which has included Penn State, Cornell, and Colgate. Her drawn battle with the Invincible eleven of Hanover last Saturday established her equality with the best that the East can offer, perhaps the best in the whole country.

Up to last week Pennsylvania also had an untarnished record, with the added distinction of having scored more points than any other Eastern team of the year. But a rainy day and the surprising strength of her old rivals from Pennsylvania State College spoiled the whole beautiful dream. Quakertown's university was beaten on its own field, and by a team that had previously lost to Dartmouth.

If comparative scores meant anything nowadays, this strange upset would indicate the absolute superiority of the Hanoverians to the Red and Blue today. But no one is rash enough to accept a single reversal as the coup de grace for any of the really significant football teams of this extraordinary season. In fact, the recent defeat at the hands of Penn State is all the more likely to make Pennsylvania a dangerous opponent today, and another upset of sensational proportions is by no means impossible.

Folwell's men have been coached in an open game, with plenty of forward passing, a style of play ineffective on a wet field, but containing unlimited possibilities when favored by the proper conditions. No team that defeated Lafayette 23 to 0 this year can be considered weak in any sense, for the Eastonians sufficiently proved their class against Princeton and Cornell. Other things being equal, Pennsylvania is psychologically in a better position than Dartmouth to win this afternoon. A big crowd of loyal rooters will be on hand from Philadelphia, and there should be no lack of noise within the echoing inclosure of Brush Stadium.

Even Battle Probable.

When Dartmouth defeated Cornell here two weeks ago, there was a general feeling that Coach Bob Spears had uncovered as little as possible of his offensive system. Certainly his team was more than nine points better than the Ithacans, who crumbled completely the following Saturday against Lafayette. With Robertson as a kicker, forward passer and ground-gainer, and Youngstrom to block punts at psychological moments, Dartmouth may well strike terror into the heart of any opponent. On the other hand, Pennsylvania has in Heinie Miller and Hopper a remarkable pair of ends, and an unusually strong array of backfield stars, including Light, Pearce, Derr, Bell, Bruner, Strauss, and Rex Wray. It looks like an even battle from every point of view.

Several hundred students from both universities will attend the game, and each team will draw down the vocal efforts of a large cheering section. The Dartmouth contingent will occupy the north stand and the Penn section will be in the south stand. The entrance to the Dartmouth cheering section will be through the lower level on the Eighth Avenue main gate to the Polo Grounds. Entrance through the upper level, or through the Speedway side, will not reach the Dartmouth cheering section.

The only other local football game today brings together Columbia University and Stevens on South Field. The light but efficient eleven from Hoboken should give a good account of itself, for it has yet to lose a game, and showed real strength last Saturday in defeating Rensselaer Poly on the latter's own ground. Fred Dawson's players have not performed to the complete satisfaction of their adherents this season, especially in being held to a scoreless tie by Union, and this afternoon's encounter with the men from across the river gives them a splendid opportunity for redeeming themselves at least to the extent of emerging as a dependable scoring machine against average opposition. If, however, Stevens should by any chance break loose with a victory, Columbia's season would receive beyond question the final imprint of failure.

In tackling Brown University at New Haven today Yale meets the first worthy opponent on her schedule, even though defeat has already come to her from the unexpected quarter of Boston College. With Princeton and Harvard looming up in the coming two weeks, the Blue has yet to test her strength with a ranking team. Brown should provide a basis of comparison, but as this eleven has already lost to Harvard, Colgate and Syracuse, even a comparatively one-sided victory for Yale would mean little.

W. & J. vs. Pittsburgh.

Of far greater importance for the season's summing up of football strength is today's clash between Washington and Jefferson and Pittsburgh, in the home of the latter. The Presidents are not only an undefeated team but, with the single exception of Wesleyan, the only Eastern aggregation to have kept its opponents scoreless thus far. Pittsburgh's only reverse has been at the hands of Syracuse, whom W. & J. shut out two weeks ago by a 13-0 score. But again, past performances cannot be taken too seriously. "Every game for itself" is the rule this year, and the Panthers should be ripe for a vengeance today, which would tie another knot in the hopelessly tangled situation.

An intersectional flavor is in the meeting of West Point and Notre Dame up the Hudson, and if the soldiers can win from the strong Western representatives, their stock will go still further upward. Boston College, humbled by the Army after its spectacular victory over Yale, meets Rutgers in Boston. New York University, meanwhile, will try to continue its winning ways against Union at Schenectady, while the remarkable eleven of Wesleyan, its goal unthreatened even by Williams, invades Amherst with the firm determination of adding another big scalp to its string. Penn State's team is not as strong as its predecessors, but has revealed a good fighting spirit. The result seems to hinge on the question of which eleven has the stronger line. Coach Stagg's Chicagoans are not in the best of physical condition, Jackson and McGuire, tackles, and Hinkle, end, having been handicapped by injuries. Although Michigan beat Northwestern last week, and Chicago lost to Illinois, few of the Western experts express any confident opinion as to the outcome of today's contest.

The unbeaten Ohio State eleven, which seems to be on its way to the championship, will meet Purdue, and, with its list of injured much curtailed, expects a comparatively easy victory. Should the Buckeyes be defeated by what would amount to a tremendous upset, the result would be a highly complicated one for the honors among the "Big Ten."

In the other two conference games today Illinois will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis, with the weight of opinion inclining slightly toward a Minnesota victory, while Iowa and Northwestern will clash at Evanston, Iowa, with one of the strongest teams it has ever sent out, is expected to win by a decisive margin.

Should Illinois defeat Minnesota, and many of its adherents believe it has an even chance to accomplish that feat, there will be much support for the team against Ohio in the concluding game of the season at Columbus on Nov. 22.

CORNELL TEAM IMPROVES.

Eleven That Will Face Carnegie Has Shown Strength in Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The Cornell team that plays the Carnegie Tech. here tomorrow is expected to be a greatly improved team compared to that which went down before Lafayette last Saturday, and coaches and undergraduates will be grievously disappointed if the eleven fails to show something like real football for the first time this year. Thanks largely to the capable assistance of Charley Barrett, Cornell's famous quarterback and leader in 1914 and 1915, the Ithacans this week have made big strides in the development of an offense with a punch.

Even though Coach Rush may withhold some of the regulars from the backfield line-up tomorrow, if the team has the speed and driving power that has characterized its work during this week, anxious Cornell partisans who have been hoping against hope for weeks that Cornell would produce a team bearing some semblance to the strong elevens turned out here before the war, are likely to be rewarded.

Carnegie, though lighter than the Ithacans, has a fast backfield and will put up a hard game. The Ithacans ran through a short drill on the field late today and also worked in secret in the baseball cage. Several new men will play part of the game tomorrow, including Finn and Hoff, heavy ends, and it is likely that Strauss and Knauss may be given a chance at tackles. Colvin, Wilson, Pendleton, Miller, Taylor, Sutton and Horrell are booked to start in the line, and Shiverick, Davis, Macdonald and Livingston in the backfield. This group of backfield men has shown fine form in recent scrimmages and it is on them that all Cornell eyes will be focussed tomorrow.

MICHIGAN MEETS CHICAGO.

Old Rivals in Western Conference Football Are Well Matched.

Four games will be played in Western Conference football today, the leading contest being that between the University of Michigan and Chicago, which will be played at Chicago and is expected to draw a crowd of 25,000 persons. This game, which is comparable in the West with Yale-Princeton and Yale-Harvard games in the East, should be as hard fought as those of previous years. Michigan's team is not as strong as its predecessors, but has revealed a good fighting spirit. The result seems to hinge on the question of which eleven has the stronger line. Coach Stagg's Chicagoans are not in the best of physical condition, Jackson and McGuire, tackles, and Hinkle, end, having been handicapped by injuries. Although Michigan beat Northwestern last week, and Chicago lost to Illinois, few of the Western experts express any confident opinion as to the outcome of today's contest.

The unbeaten Ohio State eleven, which seems to be on its way to the championship, will meet Purdue, and, with its list of injured much curtailed, expects a comparatively easy victory. Should the Buckeyes be defeated by what would amount to a tremendous upset, the result would be a highly complicated one for the honors among the "Big Ten."

In the other two conference games today Illinois will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis, with the weight of opinion inclining slightly toward a Minnesota victory, while Iowa and Northwestern will clash at Evanston, Iowa, with one of the strongest teams it has ever sent out, is expected to win by a decisive margin.

Should Illinois defeat Minnesota, and many of its adherents believe it has an even chance to accomplish that feat, there will be much support for the team against Ohio in the concluding game of the season at Columbus on Nov. 22.

TIGERS WILL MISS KECK IN GAME TODAY

Bigler Will Be at Left Tackle and Davis on the End—Harvard Money 2 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 7.—Princeton's football prospects received a staggering blow this afternoon when the announcement was made that Stanley Keck would not be in his accustomed place at left tackle when the Orange and Black eleven trots out on the turf of the Palmer Memorial Stadium tomorrow afternoon to oppose Harvard's unbeaten team.

Keck was mixed up in a horseback accident last Summer, and during the early part of the football season was held back by Coach Roper so that he would be in readiness for the important games of the schedule. He had recovered from the effects of his injury and was displaying a slashing game at his regular position until old man Jinx, who has been a close follower of the Tiger eleven this year, stepped in at the last moment and ruled him out. It was thought at first that the bruise would heal in time to permit him to get into tomorrow's game from the start, but it is extremely doubtful if he will play at all. The optimists entertain the hope that he will go in later in the game, but Roper wants to make sure of having him in shape for the contest with Yale at New Haven a week hence, and no unnecessary risks will be run tomorrow.

In addition to playing a powerful game in the line, Keck is a placement kicker of note. He was the hero of the 1921 freshman outfit, for it was his toe that in the last minute of play booted a field goal against the kill cubs and turned the victory to Princeton by a 9 to 7 score.

Jungletown Is Crowded.

Jungletown is seething with enthusiasm and excitement tonight. All afternoon incoming trains have been packed and jammed beyond their capacity and for the motorist all roads must have led to Princeton.

The Tiger has trodden a hard path this Fall. He is battered and bruised and he has not always been victorious. Tomorrow he is going to give battle in his own lair to a foe whose clean slate has yet to be violated. Gray-haired grads and light-hearted students are chuck full of optimism and enthusiasm if not of absolute confidence.

Harvard rules as the favorite. Great quantities of Crimson money have made their way to Princeton and the Jersey students are snapping it up eagerly at odds of 2 to 1. Harvard has not been scored on, the sons of Old Massachusetts admit, but they like to argue that the Tiger team has played an extremely difficult schedule and that it is a far more dangerous team than most people believe.

Booth Tarkington, who was graduated at Princeton in 1893, said once that "when the great day arrived, one of the very prettiest girls in the world (so it seemed) came to Princeton to dance with us." Tonight is the night of the concert of the combined musical clubs of Harvard and Princeton and of the annual senior prom, and streets crowded with belles of fair visitors, campus paths filled with strolling couples, and whirling autos of gay parties bear ample testimony to the statement of the popular American author.

Hundreds of the week-end visitors strolled down to take Carnegie to see the class crews compete in the annual Fall regatta. The multicolored costumes of the fair from guests added the finishing touch to nature's gorgeous display on the banks of the lake, and the planting rays of the setting sun completed the picture as the crew representing the junior class flashed its orange and black tipped blades across the line to victory in the interclass championship race.

Roper indicated today in the final signal drill how he is going to rearrange the line. Keck's absence leaves a tremendous gap in the middle of the left side of the forward wall, because his 220 pounds of beef and muscle made him the heaviest man on the Tiger team. Puffy Bigler, who has been a left guard in the last three games, was formerly a tackle, and he was back at his old post this afternoon.

Roper's Regulars in Trim.

McGraw, the Tiger leader whose given name is Curtis, but whom the whole college knows as "Hack," was at right guard. McGraw, who was a Major of infantry in France, will enter tomorrow's fray with only nine fingers, a boche bullet having removed the middle digit of his left hand. He wears a harness to protect the injured member, however, and his playing is not in the least impaired by the mishap. Mal Dickinson, at left guard, and Mike Callahan, at centre, completed the middle trio.

Oswald Parisette, who entered college with the class of 1918, but whose duties as Lieutenant of infantry took him first to the Mexican border and then to France and kept him there until this Fall, completed the line at right tackle.

Jack Strubing, the stocky little quarter back, who has run the team from the very first moment of practice, called the signals this afternoon in the final rehearsal before the crucial test tomorrow. Maury Trimble, who displayed his abilities in the Colgate game and around whom a large part of the Tigers attack is based, was at one half back and Hank Garrity, whose massive neck and shoulders made him the most dangerous and powerful line-plunger on the Orange and Black squad, was on the other. Al Wittmer, who has earned his place by his steady, cool-headed play in the Colgate and West Virginia games, was at full back.

With both Trimble and Wittmer playing, the Princeton punting will be well taken care of. Joe Scherer and his mystic toe will be called into action, however, if the kicking game goes against the Tigers.

Don Lourie has recovered sufficiently from the injury, which has kept him in for the last two weeks, to get into the game, and at this afternoon's light workout he showed that he was ready. Frank Murray, whose brilliant open field running and accurate drop kicking have placed him in the forefront of Tiger backs, is certain to get in the game, but it is doubtful whether he will start. Lynch at tackle, Morgan and Bothchild at guard, Whitey Thomas at centre, and Hal Harvey and Tom McNamara at the wings, all got a chance to show their wares this afternoon and will be ready to jump into the game tomorrow.

With the wonderful football weather of the last week continuing today, it was estimated tonight that 40,000 enthusiasts would take advantage of it tomorrow to attend he game.

PRINCETON.		HARVARD.
Davis	L. E.	Desmond
Bigler	L. T.	Sedgwick
Dickinson	L. G.	Woods
Callahan	C.	Haversmeyer
McGraw	R. G.	Clark
Parisette	R. T.	Lane

Georgia Plays Virginia to a Tie.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 7.—The football teams of the University of Georgia and the University of Virginia fought it out to a 7 to 7 tie today in their annual game here. After the Georgians had scored a touchdown and kicked goal in the second period, Virginia picked up in offensive play, and in the final quarter tied the score when Holley made a brilliant 50-yard run for a touchdown and Russell kicked goal.

Princeton in the Lead with 12 Victories in 21 Games

From 1877 to 1882, inclusive, seven games were played. Princeton won four, Harvard two, and one was tied. From 1883 to date, under the present system of scoring, the results have been as follows:

1883	Harvard 7	Princeton 20
1884	Harvard 0	Princeton 34
1886	Harvard 0	Princeton 12
1887	Harvard 12	Princeton 0
1888	Harvard 0	Princeton 18
1889	Harvard 15	Princeton 41
1895	Harvard 4	Princeton 12
1896	Harvard 0	Princeton 13
1911	Harvard 0	Princeton 8
1912	Harvard 16	Princeton 0
1913	Harvard 0	Princeton 9
1914	Harvard 20	Princeton 0
1915	Harvard 10	Princeton 6
1916	Harvard 5	Princeton 0

The standing to date shows twelve victories for Princeton and eight for Harvard, with one game tied.

BIG CROWD TO SEE PITT.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 7.—The stage is set for the most important game of the local football season, Pittsburgh and W. and J., and Coach Glenn Warner has put the Panthers through the last practice, which amounted more than anything else to a rehearsal of several new plays that are to be tried on the conquerers of the Syracuse team. The game will be witnessed by the biggest crowd on record, as far as Forbes Field is concerned. When the general admission tickets were placed on sale downtown today there was a line half a mile long, stretching out on two streets. All the reserved seats had been taken by students and alumni.

The Blue and Gold looked pretty good today, although both Davies and Dehart were limping slightly and took matters easy. Warner drilled his line on following the ball, while a triple pass was practiced in such a thorough manner that indicates its use tomorrow.

Lou Mervis will hardly get in tomorrow, and Herb McCracken or Lew Brown will be started at left end, while Dowling will replace Glinn at right end. Warner expects to use all the rest of his regulars.

The teams will line up as follows:

McCracken	L. E.	Carroll
Harman	L. T.	R. Stein
Edgar	L. G.	Bovill
H. Stein	C.	Shields
McLean	R. G.	Straw
Mond	R. T.	Garbisch
Ewing	R. E.	Louicks
Dehart	Q. B.	Bixler
Davies	L. H. B.	Nellson
Hastings	R. H. B.	Erickson
Morrow	F. B.	Smith

The officials will be: Referee, Nathan A. Tufts, Brown; umpire, Wilmer Crowell, Swarthmore; linesman, J. C. Hollderness, Lehigh.

RUTGERS' ATTACK STRONGER

New Brunswick Boys Hopeful of Victory Over Boston College Today.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Nov. 7.—Rutgers will face Boston College Saturday with practically the same team that met defeat at the hands of Syracuse on Tuesday, but it will be a team that has been working on a different theory of the game.

Owing to injuries, consequent constant changes in his lineup, and the fact that he had all green men to work with, Sanford was compelled earlier in the season to centre his activities on the defense. He produced a team that was able to hold its own in any company, but he did not have time to develop his attack as in previous years. With French and Gardner out most of the time, the team has not had the punch on the offense that it should have had.

All this week, however, Sanford has been working on offensive tactics. There will be no further changes in the lineup unless further injuries occur, and he will have a chance to perfect a real machine.

The forward pass has been a bugbear to Rutgers all season, and it was a pass that spelled victory for Syracuse in New York. The team has been thoroughly drilled in breaking up the play, however.

Rutgers is making no prediction of victory over the conquerors of Yale, but the team is hopeful of victory as the defense is as good as ever, and it appears that Sanford has finally imparted a real punch to the attack.

ARMY IS IN GOOD TRIM.

Eleven Will Enter Its Strongest Lineup in Notre Dame Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The Army is all primed for the Notre Dame contest tomorrow. The Hoosiers, according to Coach Rockne, who headed the South Bend aggregation of twenty-five players arriving here at noon today, are due "all set." Both teams had a light workout on the plain gridiron, which is comparatively dry and fast tonight. Neither side is predicting the outcome of the game.

Rockne says he has a light team. All the Army men are in good shape. Coach Daly, in giving out the Army's lineup today, said that Herrick would be in at guard for the soldiers. If will be his first game since Syracuse was here a month ago, when he broke a small bone in his arm.

Notre Dame's lineup contains four players who are well remembered by Army folks when the Westerners were here in 1917, at which time they beat the cadets. They are Brandy, Gipp, Coughlan, and Degree.

The lineup follows:

ARMY.		NOTRE DAME.
Blaik	L. E.	Kirk
Travis	L. T.	Coughlan
Herrick	L. G.	H. Anderson
Greene	C.	Madigan
Yoest	R. G.	Smith
Daniel	R. T.	Degree
Kleffer	R. E.	E. Anderson
Wilhide	Q. B.	Brandy
Schabacker	L. H. B.	Gipp
Lovtad	R. H. B.	Bahan
McQuarrie	F. B.	Blackford

NAVY EXPECTS A VICTORY.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—The Naval Academy team finished its preparation for Georgetown this afternoon with a snappy signal drill. The team has remained unchanged during the week, something unusual this season at the Academy. Tomorrow it will be somewhat stronger than when it started against West Virginia Wesleyan last Saturday. The players are in better physical condition and have the benefit of a week's work with practically no injuries.

Captain Ewen is able to take his place at right end, but it is thought better to save him until his leg is stronger. Lowe was chosen for the place over Parr on account of his greater aggressiveness.

With Watters, Koehler, Cruise, and Clark, Doble appears to have assembled a combination of considerable strength. These four have been working together for two weeks and are moving smoothly.

It is admitted that Georgetown will probably have better individual backs, but the feeling here is that the Navy has a stronger line and a better system of attack, and there is confidence in a Navy victory by a small score.

Hennegy, Dartmouth, will referee, and Kerberg, Harvard, will be linesman, but Georgetown objected to the selection for umpire made by the Board of Control, and the place has not yet been filled.

ELI REGULARS ARE READY FOR BROWN

All Yale's First-String Men Available for Game with Providence Team Today.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Yale's closing practice for tomorrow's Brown game was merely nominal, the 'Varsity squad visiting the Bowl for an hour's signal rehearsal. During the last fortnight more complicated formations have been mastered and these were carefully gone over this afternoon, the coaches halting the play occasionally to explain individual roles and their significance.

Because of the strenuous and protracted scrimmaging on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the coaches have ordered no actual football practice the last two days. The 'Varsity players, without exception, escaped injury during the grueling drill of the first half of the week.

Tonight the eleven was in the best spirits it has shown in weeks, and the opinion which was expressed in the Alumni Weekly that the team is twenty points stronger than when it went down before Boston College in its only defeat of the season is shared by most of the coaches.

Several lineup changes were discussed at the daily meeting of the coaches tonight, but only one in the tentative lineup, which was decided upon last Monday, has been made. To insure the eleven the maximum of its attacking strength, Jim Braden has been withdrawn from the emergency drop-kicking and line-hammering role to a first-string position at right halfback, despite the fact that his absence from the game in the second half, through injury or exhaustion, will leave the team without its best punter and drop-kicker.

Has Varied Attack.

More than twenty coaches have united the past week in an effort to accelerate the driving power of the eleven, and its attack tomorrow against Brown is expected to show more of a whirlwind quality than it has approached all Fall. The criticism of the style of game which the Yale team has shown in every contest on its schedule this season, that it was simple and easy to solve, will be met tomorrow with a display of a variety of attack designed to prove confusing and deceptive to even as seasoned a team as Brown. The fact that Yale has been able to keep its attack entirely under cover should make it all the more effective against the Brunonians.

The confidence which is exhibited in Brown's ability to win, indicated by the readiness of Brown supporters, is not understood here. A large amount of Brown money has been placed here at even terms, and practically an unlimited amount is awaiting Yale takers at the short end of five to three bets. An unusually large amount of cash has been wagered because of the confidence of the followers of both elevens in the scoring ability of their teams.

When the rivals met last in 1916 Brown won, 21 to 6, largely through the dodging and broken field running of Pollock, the dusky Brown halfback. This decisive victory over Yale is regarded as one of the reasons for the present confidence felt by the Providence collegians.

BROWN IN FINAL WORKOUT.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7.—Brown received her final workout today before going to New Haven for the battle with Yale tomorrow. Coach Robinson put his charges through a long signal drill, in which a few of the ragged edges were smoothed out.

The men were also given practice in catching punts, a weak point which has developed in the Brunonians' play. Practice in receiving kickoffs and making a clean getaway behind proper interference was also a feature of Brown's work. Weakness in this department was shown to an alarming extent in the Syracuse game.

The eleven worked with a punch and drive that were satisfactory to the coaches. The squad, thirty-five strong, will not leave for New Haven until tomorrow morning. The team which will face Yale will line up as follows:

NEWTOWN H. S. FIVE WINS.

Opens Season by Defeating Great Neck H. S., 21 to 8.

Newtown High School's basketball team opened its season yesterday with a victory over the Great Neck High School quintet on the Newtown court by a score of 21 to 8. The victorious team outclassed Great Neck throughout and led in the scoring from start to finish. The whistle at the end of the first half found Newtown in front by 13 to 4. Wilson, Stewart and Rabinowitz scored all of Newtown's points, while Gillier and Baker shot goals for Great Neck.

The lineup:

NEWTOWN. (21.)		GREAT NECK. (8.)
Wilson	R. F.	Fuierstein
Rabinowitz	L. F.	Uhle
Stewart	C.	Gillier
Lehman	R. G.	Redheffer
Smith	L. G.	Baker

Field goals—Wilson, (3,) Rabinowitz, (3,) Stewart, (4,) Gillier, (2.) Goals from foul—Rabinowitz, Baker. (4.)

Referee—Mr. Cohn, St. Lawrence University. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

POLICE PREVENT BOUTS.

The boxing tournament planned for last night at the First Field Hospital, 56 West Sixty-sixth Street, was not held, owing to the intervention of the police. The boxing show was to have been in the nature of a benefit for the Red Cross, the contestants being former members of the A. E. F., and it was planned to give decisions. Billy Roche, well-known referee and prominent in the boxing game for many years, was in charge of the show.

Several hundred persons went to the hospital in the hope of seeing some action but they were disappointed. Captain L. V. Meehan of the Armory Board announced that the calling off of the bouts was due to orders from Inspector Dominick Henry. This action was a big surprise in view of the nature of the proposed tournament. It was said at the hospital that the contests had been arranged under authorization of military officials and it is possible that the tournament will be held next week. An effort is to be made today to obtain an injunction which will prevent the police from further interference with the show.

Boxing at Crescent A. C.

Entry blanks have been issued for the Crescent A. C.'s next monthly amateur boxing tournament, which will be conducted in the New Moon Gymnasium in Brooklyn, Nov. — and 20. Bouts will be held in four classes, as follows: One hundred and ten, 120, 130, and 140 pounds. Entries for the tournament will close Wednesday at Metropolitan A. A. U. headquarters.

N. Y. U. CUBS BEAT CLINTON

Freshman Eleven Conquers Schoolboy Team by Score of 27 to 14.

De Witt Clinton high school's football eleven, leaders in the chase for the P. S. A. L., Manhattan-Bronx championship, ran smack up against a snag yesterday in the New York University freshmen eleven on Ohio Field. When the clash was over, the Red and Black eleven was trailing the university yearlings on a 27 to 14 score. The contest was witnessed by one of the largest crowds that ever attended a game on Ohio Field.

The university freshmen presented an assortment of plays which the Clintonians could not successfully fathom. Immediately after the starting kickoff, the Violet cubs started crushing the Clinton line for a series of first downs which, with a side kick for about twenty-five yards, ended with Bates making a short gain near the Red and Black goal line, and Lynch taking the ball over for a touchdown on the next play. This score came about five minutes after the game started. Bates led the attack for the N. Y. U. yearlings and, with the exception of the second period, carried his team past De Witt Clinton with consistency.

In the second period the Red and Black eleven took a brace, and, led by Roy Eisenberg, swept aside the opposition. Gradually the college freshmen were forced back toward their own line until Eisenberg crashed his way over for a touchdown. The score imbued the Red and Black with new spirit and in an attack, in which he was again the principal figure, Eisenberg once more smashed his way through the Freshmen line for another touchdown. On both occasions Eisenberg kicked for the extra point.

The lineup:

N. Y. U. (27.)		DEWITT CLIN. (14.)
Troop	L. E.	Blumberg
Hill	L. T.	McAneny
Edgar	L. G.	Stanley
Reddigal	C.	Payn
Robinson	R. G.	Turkell
Snyder	R. T.	Zakowsky
Steinmarx	R. E.	Hannigan
Lynch	Q. B.	Waterbury
Keiser	L. H. B.	Brenisen
Mitchell	R. H. B.	Eisenberg
Bates	F. B.	Galbraith

Touchdowns—Bates, (2,) Lynch, Mitchell, Eisenberg. (2.) Goals from touchdown—Bates, (2,) Eisenberg. (2.)

Brooklyn Schoolboys Run Up 26 to 0 Victory Over Horace Mann.

Poly Prep School's football eleven outclassed the Horace Mann School team yesterday in their game on the Poly Prep gridiron, in Brooklyn, and registered its fifth successive victory of the season. The score was 26 to 0, and only the determined defensive of the Horace Mann players early in the game prevented a more one-sided result. Horace Mann's line held in the face of repeated onslaughts in the opening periods, but thereafter it was battered aside.

The lineup:

POLY PREP. (26.)		HORACE MANN. (0.)
Sadler	L. E.	Upjohn
Bronder	L. T.	Gibb
Moore	L. G.	Tilney
Woodbridge	C.	Crocker
Miller	R. G.	Loeb
Genthner	R. T.	Ellers
McRae	R. E.	Peel
Ohnell	Q. B.	Cohan
Doppie	L. H. B.	Bell
Bell	R. H. B.	Riley
Dodd	F. B.	Levy

Touchdowns—Sadler, McRae, Dodd, Ruggles. Goals from touchdown—McRae, 2.

Substitutions—Poly Prep: Lindeman for Sadler, Johnston for Bronder, McDougall for Moore, Lawson for Miller, Yale for McRae, Parkes for Ohnell, Ruggles for Dodd, G. Johnston for Dopple. Horace Mann: Seller for Ellers.

HAMILTON INSTITUTE WINS.

Completely Outclasses Bayonne H. S. Eleven in 41 to 0 Game.

Hamilton Institute's football eleven registered a rather easy victory over the Bayonne High School team yesterday on the Catholic Protectory gridiron. The score favored the local team by a margin of 41 to 0. The New Jersey schoolboys were completely outclassed from start to finish of the contest, and were easy victims for the strong Hamilton eleven.

The lineup:

HAMILTON I., (41.)		BAYONNE H. S., (0.)
Schultz	L. E.	Pierce
T. Brennan	L. T.	Lincoln
E. Brennan	L. G.	Huber
Dwyer	C.	Thomas
V. Brennan	R. G.	Steinberg
Schmultz	R. T.	Evans
Grody	R. E.	Stearns
Stewart (c)	Q. B.	Hommel
Beck	L. H. B.	Cadmus
Walber	R. H. B.	Joseph
Gargan	F. B.	Robinson

Touchdowns—Cherry, Stewart, T. Brennan, Beck, V. Brennan, Schultz. Goals from touchdown—E. Brennan, 5. Referee—Mr. Telfer, Dartmouth; Umpire—Mr. Brown, Dartmouth. Linesman—Mr. Smith, Georgia Tech. Time of periods—Two of ten minutes and two of twelve minutes each.

SIR BARTON CAPTURES SECOND PIMLICO SERIAL

SIR BARTON AGAIN IN WINNING FORM

EASY VICTORY FOR GERMA

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 7.—The tide of fortune in the competition between Commander J. K. L. Ross and Sam C. Hildreth, swung back to the Canadian sportsman here today in the running of the Pimlico Serial No. 2 for all ages, at one mile. Sir Barton, the fine son of Star Shoot, showed vast improvement over his last race, when he was defeated twelve lengths by Mad Hatter, and won the event handily from John P. Schorr's The Porter, with Billy Kelly third and Lucullite, Hildreth's great racer, fourth.

Sir Barton's victory was a brilliant one and he ran to his very best form, but the interest after the race centred in the dismal showing of Lucullite, which had gone to the post a favorite despite his two successive defeats in Maryland. Inability to run in the mud had been offered as an excuse for him in his other defeats but he had no excuse today, for the track was about as fast as it ever is here, and Lucullite ran less than six furlongs when he pulled up and refused to extend himself further.

It did not appear that he quit from a lack of heart and courage so much as that he sulked, and it was quite evident from the manner in which he ran that he had gone stale and was no longer the great racer which was seen at Belmont Park and Aqueduct. Lucullite has been racing since early in the spring and though not sent to the post too often has had a long campaign of it this year and he has evidently soured from the work. He acted today very much as did Naturalist the day he sulked and refused to run with Hannibal. However, Lucullite did not quite to a walk. He kept in motion but threw his head high in the air and defied the best efforts of Jockey Fator to make him do his best.

All Well Supported.

The Serial No. 2 was very well arranged as regards weights, and it appeared to be a good three-horse race from the outset, but the distance was a little too great for Billy Kelly and it turned out to be a two-horse race, in which The Porter ran with fine courage and made a game effort, but could not keep up with the fleet Sir Barton with the weight he carried. The Porter had set a track record at Laurel the last time he ran and he was well supported today, as were all the others, for that matter, and at post time Lucullite had but a shade in the price over Schorr's gritty racer. Sir Barton had performed so miserably the last time out that he was made the outsider. Kummer had the mount on Sir Barton today and rode an intelligent race.

The four horses were sent away nicely and Sir Barton gained the lead and the rail at the first turn, to be quickly joined by Billy Kelly and The Porter. Around the first turn all four were closely bunched, with Lucullite on the outside but running with a show of his best speed. Once straightened out in the back stretch Fator sent Lucullite along and he came up to within a half length of Sir Barton's nose and for a short distance seemed about to pass the Ross colt and take command of the race. But half way through to the far turn he suddenly began to drop back, though running clean, and Fator could not do a thing with him. Lucullite was very soon last by several lengths and was hopelessly out of the race.

The Porter made his challenge while going around the turn into the stretch and took a few strides get his nose in front. But Sir Barton had the rail and Kummer sent the Star Shoot colt ahead again, and, once in the stretch, drew away to win by two lengths. The Porter could not make another effort. Billy Kelly had tired meantime and was three lengths back of The Porter. Entering into the stretch Lucullite showed one flash of speed and began to draw up on Billy Kelly so that he was only nosed out of third place. With anything like his usual speed he could have saved third at least, but a sixteenth of a mile from the wire he wavered again and allowed the tired Billy Kelly to beat him.

Hildreth might have strengthened his hand in the race today by running Mad Hatter, which had been entered, but he withdrew this three-year-old to run him tomorrow in the Bowie Handicap, at a mile and a half, in which he will test strides with Cudgel and Exterminator. Mad Hatter is the distance runner of the Hildreth string, and the mile test today was exactly to the liking of Lucullite, had he been in a running mood.

Germa Wins Another.

C. W. Loft's Germa ran another very good race today, and was an easy winner in the Driving Park Purse for two-year-olds at six furlongs. She defeated St. Allan by two lengths, while the latter took the place from Wedding Cake by a length. These three stood out in the field of six, and received practically all of the support in the race, with Wedding Cake being the favorite at post time.

Germa was off none too well as she broke slowly, but from a good position, and Sande went to the outside, avoided interference, and brought the filly to the front at the head of the stretch. Wedding Cake set a very fast pace for five furlongs, and seemed to be the winner, when Germa began to move up. Wedding Cake wavered just slightly when the test came, and Germa had no trouble in drawing away in the stretch. St. Allan also caught Wedding Cake in the final sixteenth, and made second place sure in the last few yards.

R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Philtiedon undertook a mile and a quarter test for the first time in the last race of the day, and won very easily from F. D. Weir's Tetley and John Farrell's Wisest Fool. Of the seven starters in the race none had ever gone the distance before, but Philtiedon ran as though he outclassed his field. Pierce kept him off the early pace, while Searchlight III. was out in front, and did not move up until he was nearing the far turn in the back stretch. Then he went around his field, raced Searchlight III. into submission, in a few strides, and entered the home stretch in front. From there it was an easy victory, as the others were tiring badly and Philtiedon was still running strongly. Wisest Fool took the place in the last few strides, when Tetley weakened.

The first race went to Samuel Ross's Germa, which proved to be the best of a field of cheap selling platers at a mile. He scored a close victory, winning from Duke John by a nose, with La Balafre third.

Martha Luckett a Winner.

Richard Harding's Martha Luckett was another to win a very close decision. She defeated Faisan Dore and Runnyven, among others, in the second event, a six-furlong dash for juveniles. Martha Luckett led all the way, but was tiring and just lasted.

Eight maiden jumpers went to the post in the Baltimore Steeplechase and the victory went to W. R. Wilkinson's War Paint in a driving finish, with J. E. Widener's Houdini, Le Cyprin was third. The finish might have been reversed but for a bad ride on the part of Jockey Howard, who kept Houdini off the pace and back nearly last until the last half mile, when he came with a rush, but was too late. Houdini made up five lengths in the last half mile and was almost running over the winner at the end. War Paint was kept in front all the way and had disposed of all the others but Houdini when the final drive came.

J. Musanta's Nebraska got up just in time to win the sixth from Keen Jane by a neck, with Romeo third. This was a test at a mile for selling platers. Nebraska was well up throughout the race and made a strong finish. Wawbeek set the pace, but tired badly, while Lazy Lou, the favorite, was never a contender.

DISCUSS BOXING WEIGHTS.

International Sporting Club Defers Action Until Next Week.

Rules and weights, which are expected to become uniform in every country where boxing matches are conducted, were tentatively discussed yesterday at the initial meeting of the Rules and Weights Committee of the International Sporting Club. The meeting was called for the primary purpose of holding a preliminary discussion on the rules and weights, which it is planned to make standard. The officials, therefore, deferred a definite adoption of rules and weights until next Friday, when another meeting will be held and a permanent code arranged.

The meeting yesterday was attended by Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, Chairman of the committee; Charles J. Harvey, Captain Jack Gleason, Charles Thorley, Jack Skelly, Tex O'Rourke, and Charles F. Mathison. After a lengthy discussion it was decided to appoint a sub-committee to formulate a tentative program which will be submitted at next Friday's meeting. This sub-committee, composed of Messrs. Harvey, O'Rourke, Skelly and Mathison, will hold a private meeting Monday afternoon to submit tentative rules and weights.

AMATEUR GUNNERS TO SHARE CONTROL

Will Co-operate with Pros in Trapshooting Affairs—Zone Plan Is Favored.

After sitting on the outside looking in for twenty-seven years, the amateur trapshooters of the United States and Canada came into their own at the second day's session of the annual meeting of the American Trapshooting Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Hereafter the amateurs will have a say in the management of the sport. The Interstate Association was the controlling body for twenty-five years. For the last two years the American Trapshooting Association, a reorganization of the Interstate, has held the reins, and, while this association continues in power, the amateurs now have equal power in the government of the sport.

The American Trapshooting Association invited the various State associations of the United States and Canada to send delegates to the annual meeting, and the outcome of the meeting yesterday was that five delegates were selected as a committee representing the amateurs to work in conjunction with the Executive Committee of the American Trapshooting Association. The ten members of the combined committees will be in absolute control of trapshooting in 1920.

It was decided that this joint committee would convene in this city on Dec. 2, at which time the members will be prepared to announce officially their plans and other data for the coming year. The committee representing the amateurs is comprised of Jay Clark, Worcester, Mass., Chairman; E. P. Mathewson, Anaconda, Mon.; Samuel S. R. Foster, Mason City, Iowa; Ralph S. Spotts, New York City, and M. D. Hart, Richmond, Va.

The Executive Committee of the American Trapshooting Association is made up of T. R. Keller, New York; J. L. Clark, New York; C. W. Hymer, Wilmington, Del.; L. J. Squier, Cincinnati; F. G. Drew, New Haven.

There was a long discussion as to the manner in which trapshooting should be conducted in 1920; whether the game should be continued as at present; whether it should be divided into zones, with a manager in each of five, ten, or fifty zones; whether it would be best to charge shooters $1 or some other nominal amount for dues to be connected with the association and aid in the conduct of the sport in a manner befitting it. All these suggestions and many others were referred to the joint committee to take action upon. It will be upon these matters that the committee will announce its official action when it meets here on Dec. 2.

The delegates went on record as being opposed to the disbarment from competition in future of any shooter without his first having been given a trial. This was brought up because in one of the biggest shoots of the past season the entry of a well-known shooter of years ago was rejected and no reason assigned for the rejection.

The delegates to the meeting, besides the ones named on th committe of amateurs, were Martin McVoy, Daniel McMahon, and G. H. Martin of New York; Fred Ham, Connecticut; Nicholas R. Reimer, Rhode Island; E. E. Reed, former Congressman, of New Hampshire; Douglas Barclay, Vermont; C. A. Galbraith, Michigan; Harry Higgs, New Jersey; J. G. Clemson, Oregon; E. R. Galvin, Delaware.

THREE-CUSHION BILLIARDS.

Maupome, Cannefax, Heal, and Reiselt Win in Title Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee defeated Tiff Denton of Kansas City in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament of America here tonight by a score of 50 to 47 in sixty-eight innings. Denton led almost the entire distance, and made the high run of the tournament with a nine.

Charles Otis of Brooklyn lost his second consecutive game, being defeated tonight by R. L. Cannefax of New York, 50 to 38, in fifty-two innings. The latter had a high run of seven.

Hugh Heal of Toledo defeated Jean Lean of Cincinnati, 50 to 39, in 57 innings in the American three-cushion billiard tournament here this afternoon. Both had high runs of four.

In the second game this afternoon Otto Reiselt of Chicago won from Clarence Jackson of Detroit, 50 to 23, in 48 innings. Jackson's best run was five and Reiselt's four.

GREENLEAF BEATS SEEBACK.

Averages Better Than Three Balls a Minute at Pocket Billiards.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 7.—Making more than three balls a minute Ralph Greenleaf defeated Charles Seeback in the third and final block of their exhibition pocket billiard match here tonight by a score of 125 to 88. The total score for the three nights' play was: Greenleaf, 375; Seeback, 189. Greenleaf made the 125 balls in thirty-five minutes. He made high runs of 46 and 33. The match was refereed by George Worden. Immediately after the game Greenleaf announced that he had completed arrangements to play a week long exhibition match against George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy in New York next week. It will be a 1,200-ball match, 100 points to be played each afternoon and evening.

Lewis Gains Tourney Lead.

Nat Lewis defeated M. Hiral by a score of 150 to 122 in a Class D straight-rail metropolitan billiard championship match at Cranfield's Academy last night. Lewis was in good stroke, and, while Hiral played gamely and made many good shots, he was not as consistent as the winner. Lewis made high runs of 24, 17, and 16, while Hiral's best efforts resulted in counts of 18, 11, and 11. Lewis will play in the game that will decide the championship on Monday night. Nadherny and Hiral will play tomorrow afternoon, and Lewis will meet the winner in the deciding game. Lewis, Nadherny, and Hiral were tied for the lead.

McManiman Wins at Billiards.

Playing in the Brooklyn 18.2 Balkline Billiard Tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night, M. P. McManiman, playing for 150, defeated H. D. Jennings, playing for 200, by a score of 150 to 139. Jennings was in poor stroke and his best runs were 18 and 14. He averaged 2 85-88. McManiman made high runs of 25 and 20, and averaged 3 24-52. The match was featured by the safety playing of both men.

CAMELS are unlike any cigarette you ever smoked—in quality, in flavor, in mellow-mildness and in real satisfaction! Any way you consider Camels they are a cigarette revelation! Camels meet your favor so completely you will want to smoke them liberally—and you can, without tiring your taste!

Camels are an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos. This blend is so unusual, so delightful, you will prefer it to either kind of tobacco smoked straight! It will absolutely answer every wish you ever expressed for a cigarette made to meet your taste!

Camels have a smoothness that is as unique as it is refreshing. Yet, Camels have that all there body that gives satisfaction so generously. And, you'll enjoy Camels freedom from any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or any unpleasant cigaretty odor.

You'll quickly realize that you very much prefer Camels quality to premiums, coupons or gifts.

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

BROKERS IN THEATRE TICKETS ARRESTED

HEAVY ADVANCES CHARGED

Federal Government Agents on the Trail of Persons Who Fail to Pay War Tax.

Government agents are after ticket speculators in this city, it was learned last night, with a view to stopping alleged violations of the Federal law for failure to pay the war tax imposed on tickets sold at higher than box office prices. The New York police are said to be aiding the Secret Service agents in a search for tax dodgers.

Seats marked $2.75, including the war tax, are often sold by speculators at prices reaching as high as $10. The Government collects the regular 10 per cent. tax through the theatres, and in the case of ticket agencies, through both agencies and theatres. Evidence is said to have reached the Government that many of the tickets sold on the streets by speculators have produced no additional revenue to the Government. Practically no records of sales have been made by speculators in this city.

The city also is after the speculators on its own account for violation of a city ordinance. Three arrests charging offenses against the corporation laws were made last night by Miss Mary Sullivan, a policewoman attached to the office of Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O'Grady. Commissioner O'Grady said last night that no case of the sort had been brought to her attention, and she thought that Miss Sullivan had been assigned by some one outside of her office, as is frequently done when women police are needed.

Miss Sullivan's arrests were made in the Times Square district last night. She was accompanied by two detectives, who will be witnesses when the prisoners are arraigned today in the Fifty-fourth Street Magistrate's Court.

A man giving the name of Sidney J. Hill of 33 West Thirty-second Street, who said he was a clerk, was arrested on Forty-second Street. Miss Sullivan charges that he sold her two tickets for "Clarence" at the Hudson Theatre for $9.00 each. Marked on both of the tickets was the price of $2.75, including 25 cents for war tax.

Barney Warfield, who said he lived in a hotel at 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, and sold theatre tickets at 206 West Forty-sixth Street, was also arrested by Miss Sullivan. She charged that he sold her two tickets for the "Ziegfeld Follies" at the New Amsterdam for $4.40, an advance of 55 cents over the price marked on the tickets.

A man who gave the name of Lew Newman of 612 West 115th Street, was the third prisoner. He was arrested at 1,462 Broadway, near Forty-second Street. Miss Sullivan charged that Newman sold her two tickets for the Lyceum Theatre, where "The Gold Diggers" is playing, for $5 each, an advance of $2.25 for each ticket. Newman runs a cigar store and ticket agency in the Fitzgerald Building.

The charge against the ticket speculators appearing on the blotter of the West Forty-seventh Street Station was "violation of the corporation laws." Bail in each of the cases was fixed at $500, and the three men were released on bail until this morning, when they will be brought before a Magistrate.

TWO PLAYS IN ONE THEATRE

The experiment of presenting a show at morning and afternoon matinees only will be tried next week by the Shuberts with their production of "The Dancer." "The Dancer" is now at the Harris Theatre, but must move after tonight to make room for an incoming attraction, and at first arrangements were made for it to go to the Comedy Theatre, thus forcing out "Fifty-fifty, Ltd.," which has been playing there. "Fifty-fifty, Ltd." did not want to go, however, and it was arranged that it should remain and that "The Dancer" should go to the Lyric Theatre for afternoon matinees on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and a morning performance every Saturday. The attraction now at the Lyric is "Nothing But Love."

An announcement of the same nature is that, following the forced departure of "Boys Will Be Boys" from the Belmont Theatre next week, Harry Beresford will appear in a series of afternoon and morning performances.

This placing of two shows in the same house illustrates the shortage of theatres, for this season at least.

Galli-Curci Sings at the Biltmore.

The first of this season's Friday Morning Musicales at the Biltmore yesterday drew a large and enthusiastic audience to hear Mme. Galli-Curci and her fellow-artists. Mme. Galli-Curci sang "Care nome" from Rigoletto, a group of songs, "Paysage," by Hahn; "The Little Bells of Sevilla," by Samuels; "Oh fin My Dreams," by Liszt; "Carceleras," by Chapi, adding two little English ballads as encores, and her closing number, "Carnevale di Venezia," by Bishop, with flute obligato by Manuel Berenguer, was followed by "The Suwanee River."

James Stanley, basso, and Winston Wilkinson, violinist, also sang and played, Mr. Stanley gave the "Vision Fugitive" from Herodiade, and Widor's "Plongeur," with "Madelon" as an encore; Damrosch's "Danny Deever" and Speaks's "On the Road to Mandalay." Mr. Wilkinson played Volpe's "Chant d'Amour," Gardner's "From the Canebrake," Arensky-Volpe's "The Little Fish's Song," and "Gypsy Dances," by Sarasate.

Michael Fokine, Dancer, Arrives.

The famous Russian dancer, Michael Fokine, the originator of the Russian ballet, arrived yesterday on the Scandinavian-American liner United States to direct the dances in "Aphrodite" at the Century Theatre. He was accompanied by his wife, Vera, and their 13-year-old son, Citall. He declared that the latest dances of the tango and jazz type have no place in art.

Mr. Fokine said he considered dancing one of the greatest of the arts of expression, and his aim was to have every movement and plastic pose represent a picture, or have a distinct meaning. His wife originated Mme. Pavlowa's "Dying Swan" dance.

MUSIC NOTES.

Professor Carlos Valderrama, who has been making a study of the music of the Incas, in Peru and other South American countries, gave a concert yesterday in the Artists' Room of Aeolian Hall. Ex-President Jose Pardo of Peru and several officials of the Peruvian Government were among those present.

The Metropolitan Opera Orchestra is announced to play at Percy Sodero's concert tomorrow evening at the Brooklyn Academy.

The Borough Park Y. M. H. A., at Fourteenth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, will give a concert free to the public on Monday evening.

MUSIC

The New Symphony Orchestra.

The New Symphony Orchestra repeated, yesterday afternoon, its program of Thursday evening in Carnegie Hall, Schubert's C Major Symphony, Ernest Bloch's two "Poems," and David Stanley Smith's overture, "Prince Hal," Op. 21. This overture was first performed in New York at a public meeting of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in 1914, when the program was made up entirely of works by the members of the institute.

Professor Smith does not wish apparently to have his overture viewed as a portrait of Shakespeare's prince, or as conveying Shakespearean incidents, or even a Shakespearean atmosphere. He wishes it rather to suggest vigorous, healthy young manhood. It is first of all a well-written, engrossing piece of music, with one theme, at least, of striking individuality sufficent to carry it through a process of free and ingenious development and to hold water all the way. There is fresh and vigorous treatment in the orchestration, and the music is sustained in interest throughout. It is a work, on the whole, that reflects credit on American musicianship.

Harold Henry's Piano Recital.

Harold Henry, a young American pianist, who first played in New York a few years ago, gave a recital yesterday afternoon of which the program contained a number of unfamiliar and interesting items. It was a capital idea to begin with the spirited "Preambulum" of Bach's partita in G; to follow it with Brahms's fourth Ballade from his Op. 10; and among other pieces little known were Liszt's "Fantasy Sonata after a reading of Dante," Grieg's ballad from the Lyric Pieces Op. 65; No. 5, a "Sioux Flute Serenade," by Charles S. Skilton, and a piece of his own called "The Dancing Marionette."

Mr. Henry's playing hardly bore out the promise he made on his first appearance here. His tone was singularly gray and unvaried in color, and the slips in his technique were uncomfortably many. He plays with sincerity and an evident absorption in the music, but he did not seem able yesterday to get much below its surface.

Maurice Dambois's Recital.

The talented young Belgian violoncellist, Maurice Dambois, gave a recital in the evening in Aeolian Hall, in which he showed an accomplished mastery of his instrument; a finished style, an engaging, if rather small, tone, dexterous and elastic bowing, and a brilliant technique of the left hand. His most significant numbers were the "Variations Symphoniques" of Bodman and Haydn's concerto in D.

Thereafter he played a group of smaller pieces including Bruch's arrangement of the Hebrew air Kol Nidrei, Kreisler's arrangement of a scherzo, by Dittersdorf, an arrangement of Debussy's piano piece called "En Bateau," and a "Caprice Russe," by himself.

MME. FARRAR OPERATED ON.

Slight Ailment of Throat Remedied —First Week's Opera Bills.

The Metropolitan Opera forces are assembling for the opening of the season a week from Monday, Signor Caruso being due at 5 o'clock this afternoon from Mexico, by way of St. Louis, over the Pennsylvania lines. With the tenor will be the new Italian contralto, Mme. Besanzoni. Mme. Farrar hastened home yesterday morning from Waterbury, Conn., hiring a special locomotive to bring her in the private car she occupied during her concert tour. Her friends learned that Mme. Farrar underwent a slight operation on the throat during the Summer, and that she expected to be in better voice than for some years past.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza last night made public the season's opening nights as follows: Monday, Nov. 17, "Tosca," sung by Caruso, Farrar, and Scotti; Wednesday, "Aida," Muzio, Martinelli, and debut of Besanzoni; Zanelli, and Martino; Thursday, "Il Barbiere," Garrison, Berat, (new), Hackett, Amato, Mardones; Friday, "Faust," Farrar, Martinelli, Rothier; Saturday matinee, "La Juive," Caruso, Ponselle, Rothier, and debuts of Evelyn Scotney and Harrold; Saturday evening, Nov. 22, "Il Trevatore," Muzio, Kingston, Amato, and Jeanne Gordon, (debut.)

Seven singers are new in the Metropolitan list, as is also Albert Wolff, composer of "The Blue Bird," who will make his first appearance as conductor of "Faust" on Tuesday, Nov. 18. Aida, Sundelius, Harrold, and Chalmers will sing in Brooklyn in "La Bohème."

MINSTRELS TO CELEBRATE.

McIntyre and Heath to Observe 45th Anniversary as Partners.

McIntyre and Heath will celebrate their forty-fifth anniversary as partners next Wednesday. Their association is said to be the longest in the history of the American stage.

The celebration will begin with a matinée of "Hello, Alexander," in which the minstrels are appearing at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, and among the guests will be a score of veterans of minstrelsy, the oldest of whom is Fred Wilson, ninety-two. Fifteen of the old-timers will come from the Actors Fund Home. Some of them will be introduced into the minstrel part of "Hello, Alexander."

In the evening the partners will give a dinner at the N. V. A. Club in West Forty-sixth Street, at which E. F. Albee, head of the chain of Keith Theatres, will be the guest of honor.

The Service of Sanatogen to the Man Who Works His Brain

"WITHOUT albumen, no life; without phosphorus, no thought"—so runs a famous saying. True, the healthy body gets enough albumen and phosphorus from the daily food, but an over-taxed brain and nervous system will run short of these vital substances because the demand outruns the normal supply. Then we have fatigue, depression—and worse, if nothing be done.

It is then that Sanatogen is of splendid aid. Combining purest albumen and organic phosphorus in chemical union, Sanatogen takes to the fundamental sources of nervous and mental efficiency just the elements needed. It supplies these elements quickly and without strain upon digestion, giving the depleted cells real nutriment, real sustenance and no false stimulation.

The result of this is well summed up by Sir Gilbert Parker when he writes, "Sanatogen to my mind is a true food-tonic, giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind." And by Arnold Bennett, who tersely reports, "The effect of Sanatogen upon the nervous system is simply wonderful."

It is well to remember that the medical profession has set the seal of approval upon the value of Sanatogen—no less than 21,000 doctors have written letters endorsing its value.

Should not the knowledge of these facts create the conviction that Sanatogen will also help you?

McBRIDE'S POLICY

THE extravagantly high premiums that are being charged for theatre tickets at various offices all over town discourages theatre going, hurts theatre management and therefore impels us to repeat our long established policy to our patrons.

Our fixed charge for service of fifty cents per ticket over box office prices is the cornerstone upon which our business was founded forty-six years ago, and we limit ourselves to that moderate amount.

A recent law fixes that amount as the standard. This was our practice long before the law.

With the high cost of living we appreciate the theatre-going public cannot afford unreasonable prices for amusement and we want our patrons to know that so far as McBride's is concerned there is now no higher cost of tickets over box office prices than heretofore.

We are the same people who started this business, father and sons, and we propose to continue to deserve the approval of the theatre-going public and the theatre management by standing for a square deal—a square deal to one and all alike—by making theatre going a real pleasure and not carrying with it a feeling of injustice in ticket buying.

Our policy is to stabilize the business for the benefit of all.

DRYS LEAD IN OHIO ON UNOFFICIAL VOTE

OFFICIAL COUNT NECESSARY

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Calculations by the Ohio newspapers tonight give the drys a lead of 227 in one newspaper and 267 in the other on Federal ratifications. It was again emphasized that the official count will be necessary, with probable litigation on disputed returns. Both sides continue to claim victory.

A new State Enforcement act will be placed before the General Assembly by the Anti-Saloon League to take the place of the drastic law which the State rejected on Tuesday.

Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith has made every effort to hasten the twenty-five lagging counties, but it is to no avail.

The best that could be promised was that the returns will not be at hand officially until the middle of next week. So close are the returns that errors either way in the official figures may swing it.

The scale favor of the Wets varied from one solitary vote in nearly a million to 769 majority. Statistician S. M. Jackson thinks the State has gone for ratification but his unofficial figures contain obvious inaccuracies and are incomplete as to seven precincts which may hold the balance of power. This is discounted, too, by the fact that Johnson's statements have been toned down from hour to hour, and where this morning he thought the prohibitionists in the lead by 5,000, at night he found the official figures absolutely necessary.

So earnest was the rival leaders that both were leaning on his desk at the same time today clamoring for the final returns. Telephones and telegrams found the local officials absent from their posts and apparently inifferent to the intense interest displayed at the old State House.

Then, again, the big city counties with enormous numbers of votes have not completed their reviews of the returns, and mistakes are likely to occur. In Hamilton County two cases of error are at hand. A mistake of 60 votes in one precinct was claimed today which does not show on Johnson's caculations. It was in favor of the liberals. In another precinct, known to be liberal, the tally sheets apparently have been marked heavily for the prohibitionists, and a contest of election in that instance may result in an order to recount the votes and make a correction.

Contest Is Imminent.

A Statewide contest by one or the other of the two factions appears imminent when the official votes have been counted, because of the national issue that may turn on Ohio. Factionalists on the issue from Maine to California have besieged the office for definite information.

Both factions make their claims "with confidence." The dry's say they have won by 2,000 or more and the Liberals claim victory by 2,400 or more. Both are relying on the official figures to verify their positions.

Interest has been lost in the other propositions, the previous standing of two Dry and one Liberal victory holding.

In a telegram to Democratic National Chairman Homer S. Cummings, Ohio Democratic Chairman W. W. Durbin asks Cummings to set the example for the rest of the country by claiming Ohio on the Wet side. He says:

"The Democrats of Ohio have won a victory that will be heralded throughout the nation as a Democratic victory. Ohio has elected a Democratic Governor, a Democratic Secretary of State, a Democratic Auditor, a Democratic Treasurer, a Democratic Attorney General, a Democratic Supreme Court Judge, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Works, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Affairs, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Service, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Utilities, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Welfare, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Safety, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Health, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Charities, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Education, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Improvements, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Accounts, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Records, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Archives, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Statistics, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Information, a Democratic Member of the Board of Public Relations

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Speculation in Higher-Priced Stocks Slows Down—Call Loan Rate Firm.

A feature of yesterday's business on the Stock Exchange was a marked contraction of activity among the higher priced industrial shares, as compared with earlier days of the week. The number of shares of General Motors, Studebaker, and Texas Company, among others, which were turned over was substantially smaller than on Thursday, and only about half as many shares of Steel common were dealt in. The product of this slackening of speculation among stocks which had been standing in the front rank was a shrinkage of considerable proportions in the total of shares dealt in; although the trading list was one of the broadest of the year. The breadth of the market was caused in part by an increase of the number of railroad issues to which traders directed attention. Price changes everywhere were irregular, an appearance of strength in the middle of the day being sandwiched in between periods of softening quotations. At the close there were scattered gains from 1 to 3 points, and numerous declines of equal extent, while fractional alterations were about evenly divided among the stocks of secondary trading importance.

In view of a 12 per cent. renewal rate for call money, it might be argued that a reason for quiet among issues requiring much credit to carry was the high cost implied by the demand loan quotation. It was the second consecutive day for a 12 per cent. rate, and the minimum for the week had been no lower than 10 per cent. Such rates over a considerable period mean fairly expensive operations for traders on margin, much more than when a fluctuating loan market enables brokers to borrow one day at high and another day at relatively low figures. It would hardly do, however, to lay too much stress on the showing of a single session, nor to deduce therefrom a theory that exceptionally high renewal rates were bringing about the effect on speculation that the Federal Reserve Bank officials are aiming at. Frequently, on Fridays speculative transactions ease off and profit-taking gains headway, also, in advance of the week-end recess. The way the industrial group generally sagged in late trading indicated that much realising was being put through. The railroad department after the midday awakening lapsed again into indifference. Liberty bonds were under pressure, the Fourth ¾s reaching a new low level at 93.

If nervousness over the credit situation had been lacking, a further advance of stocks might have been expected yesterday. There was more than a little constructive news, dealing chiefly with labor events, centred in signs of a breaking up of the coal strike, and with evidence contained in trade reviews that retail and wholesale undertakings in many lines were going forward with full confidence of active times ahead. The Street found, however, too much to think of in the matter of future stock market credit to turn to other factors, for the time at least. Not only did call money fail to get below 10 per cent., in the afternoon, but there were indications of further hardening of time money rates. Counting in the so-called commission or service charge, thirty-day to six months' accommodation in the form of collateral loans was quoted from 6½ to 8 per cent., depending on the quality of the security. The $270,000,000 payment on the new United Kingdom loan was made during the day, and part of the funds were immediately available in the call loan market, an event which emphasized the cost of market credit as rates eased not at all.

MARSHALL PLEADS FOR LABOR HARMONY

Addressing International Conference, He Asks Work in Amity and Human Sympathy.

OBJECTS TO TALK OF CLASS

Labor Group Suggests a 48-Hour Week Maximum, but Recommends 44 Hours.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Vice President Marshall visited the International Labor Conference late today, making a short address and shaking hands with the delegates. The visit came as a surprise at a moment when the labor delegates were putting forward amendments to the convention on hours of work.

Announcing that he spoke for nobody but himself, the Vice President told the delegates that he occupied "a unique position among officials on the face of the globe," for the reason that "I am without power or authority or influence."

Mr. Marshall stated that he did not know enough about the problems before the conference to discuss them intelligently.

"I have troubles enough of my own," he said, adding amid laughter and applause, "I preside over the Senate of the United States."

"But I do have some idea as to how the many wrongs which exist in the relations of labor and capital are to be solved," he said, "and I cannot help saying this to you: For God's sake, get at the solution of these problems in a spirit of amity and concord and friendship and common human sympathy."

The Vice President objected to referring to legislation in the interest of the "laboring class" or any other class, saying: "I object to classes in a world where God made men." He proceeded to classify legislation into two groups, the first being that which lacks the support of the people and therefore creates trouble and turmoil, and the second or successful sort "which seeks to crystallize into the law of the land the public opinion of the country." His closing statement was a wish that a "golden mean" might be reached in the conference after "radicals and conservatives" had expressed their views.

In offering a motion to thank Vice President Marshall for his address, George O. Barnes, member of the British War Ministry and Government delegate, said he regretted the absence of President Wilson, who, he said, had made "such magnificent efforts on behalf of the democracies of the world."

The conference before adjourning until Monday accepted an invitation from Secretary Daniels to make a trip tomorrow on the Mayflower to Mount Vernon.

S. R. Parsons of Canada, an employers' delegate, announced today that he dissented from the majority report of the employer representatives on the draft convention regarding a forty-eight-hour week, giving as his reason that "until the United States has spoken Canada must keep silent."

"The world is not suffering on account of long hours," he said. "It is suffering on account of lack of food and clothing. There are a hundred million people in the Old World on the verge of starvation. Not one-third of the industries of the world are producing to full capacity. Since the introduction of the eight-hour day in France there has been a 20 per cent. reduction in production."

The labor group today introduced its amendments to the proposed draft convention submitted by the Organizing Committee. The changes were read and explained by Leon Juhaux of France and T. Shaw of Great Britain.

The two principal changes suggested were that the legislation should refer to "commercial undertakings" as well as to industrial establishments, and that the eight-hour day and forty-eight hour week should be laid down as maxima instead of a simple declaration for the forty-eight-hour week. Saturday half-holidays and a forty-four-hour week were "recommended."

It was proposed also that the term "industrial establishments" should be defined to include "the transport of passengers or goods by sea, by road, by canal, or by rail, including the handling of goods at docks, quays, wharves, and warehouses."

German delegates, the message added, have obtained steamer accommodations and will sail about Nov. 15.

STEEL IN FEWER HANDS.

Drop of 615 in Common Shareholders at the End of Third Quarter.

Holders of the common shares of the United States Steel Corporation at the end of the third quarter numbered 73,456, a decline of 615 from the figures at the end of the second quarter. The first quarter of the year showed the number of holders to be 78,018.

While the number of stockholders has declined, the liquidation of small holdings has not returned stock to brokerage houses, for the holdings by brokers are smaller than at the end of the second quarter. In other words, investment holdings have increased, although the number of shareholders has declined. In August there were 78,451 holders of steel preferred.

RETAIL MARKET IS BUSY.

High-Priced Merchandise Well Absorbed, Despite Labor Unrest.

The trade reviews for the week state that, in spite of widespread disruption because of labor disturbances, business in the retail markets has been well sustained, with seasonable buying beginning to be felt as a result of the cooler weather.

Dun's Review says:

While consumption of commodities has perceptibly diminished in quarters where disbursement of wages has been appreciably reduced by idleness at various establishments, yet retail trade, as a whole, is remarkably well sustained, and an exceptional absorption of high-priced merchandise is a feature still commented upon in many dispatches.

The labor problem, however, not only remains an obstacle to the expansion of manufacturing facilities, but also prevents full production in many instances, and the disproportion between demand and supply finds many reflection in the adjustment of outputs and the accentuated strength of some leading markets.

Bank clearings are maintained in remarkably heavy volume for this period, the total this week at twenty leading cities in the United States amounting to $8,391,841,836, an increase of 42.7 per cent. over this week last year and of 50.2 per cent. compared with the same week in 1917.

Bradstreet's says:

The trade and industrial effects of the coal strike in its early stages resemble very much those of its unsuccessful predecessor in the steel industry. Actual effects upon distribution are, except in purely coal mining regions, almost negligible. Concern is expressed whereas in some cases supplies of coal for future manufacturing needs are small, but reports from large consuming centres point to 30 to 60 days' supplies of fuel being available, and confidence is expressed that the strike will end before the extreme pinch comes.

The heartening effect upon business men of the strong stand taken by the Government to help order and to insure the non-union mines, which employ a third of the soft coal miners, running, and the results of the Massachusetts election cannot be underestimated. It is felt that the tide has definitely turned in labor matters.

UNITED DRUG SALES RISE.

Company Reports a Net Increase of $6,000,000 for Nine Months.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the United Drug Company reports net sales of $41,465,190, an increase of more than $6,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1918. Before Federal taxes the surplus was $4,520,797, or the equivalent of more than $14 a share on the common stock after all second preferred has been converted. In the corresponding period of 1918 the surplus was $3,246,425.

Cash on hand increased from $1,881,755 in the report of June 30 to $4,694,838 on Sept. 30, and working capital increased from $11,390,981 to $18,367,881 in the same period. The balance sheet shows a reduction of the item patent processes, formulas, trademarks, and good-will by $576,497. It now stands at $22,920,078. The sale of V. Vivaudou, one of the subsidiaries, brought a net profit of $966,012.

Anaconda Copper Output Higher.

The October production of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company was 15,000,000 pounds, which is the highest reported since the January figures, which were 15,900,000 pounds. The minimum monthly production was 10,530,000 pounds in June. Output for the ten months ended with October was 131,482,000 pounds. This is at the rate of 161,482,000 pounds for the year. In 1918 the production was 293,603,726 pounds.

COTTON QUOTATIONS AGAIN SHOW LOSSES

SPOT COTTON STILL STRONG

Weather Map Continues Unfavorable—Export Clearances Total 41,512 Bales for the Day.

There was a better tone in yesterday's cotton market at the opening, and first prices showed overnight gains of 27 and 28 points in December and January and 9 to 16 points in the distant months. This improvement continued until the market was up 20 to 43 points, mainly in sympathy with the improvement in Liverpool and the strong situation in the Southern spot market, where prices ruled firm and demand continued big.

After the early high figures had been made new profit-taking sales appeared aand the South sent in some hedge-selling orders and the market then reacted, falling back first to where it had left off on the previous night and then going through Thursday's closing figures as the selling continued. The distant months suffered worse than the near months, for as compared with net losses of 17 and 12 points in December and January, March sold off 44 points, July was down 48 points, and May was 38 points lower than on the previous day.

In the afternoon, however, the selling pressure gave way, and at that time some scattered trade buying rallied the market. But the rally was not long-lived and at the close there was another sharp break which took the list down to about the low prices of the day.

The news budget was rather bullish. In addition to the strength manifested abroad, the Southern markets were firm, as to quotation, and vigorous in volume. The demand for spot cotton, especially for the choice grades, continued unabated and spot cotton here was firm and unchanged in price.

The weather map was far from reassuring and the export clearances for the day, which totaled 41,512 bales, were the largest for a single day to be reported in some time. They brought the total for the full week up to 104,262 bales, against 77,900 bales out last week. All of yesterday's exports, which were out of Galveston and Savannah, were destined for Great Britain.

TELLS HOW TO AID GERMANS

Leopold Zimmermann Would Give Credit for Cotton and Copper.

Leopold Zimmermann, head of Zimmermann & Forshay, who has just returned from an extended trip abroad, where he went to study the situation, said yesterday that, while conditions in Germany are still abnormal, living in that country is only about half as expensive as it is here. He advises that no one go abroad at this time, however, unless urged by the most pressing circumstances.

Mr. Zimmermann thinks Germany can be helped back to a normal pre-war state only if the United States extends to her liberal credits with which to purchase raw materials, especially copper and cotton. This, he thinks, will allow Germany to meet her obligations and will also prevent the spread of Bolshevism.

FLATBUSH PROTESTS AGAINST TWO FARES

Commissioner Nixon Hears Citizens and Promises Relief if He Has Jurisdiction.

COURTS TO SETTLE CASE

Complaints Made of Company Hiring "Strong-Arm" Men to Throw Passengers Off Cars.

The legal right of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company to charge a second fare on the Flatbush Avenue line at Foster Avenue was discussed yesterday at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon. Lewis H. Pounds, former President of Brooklyn Borough, expressed the opinion that the company had no right to charge a second fare for a continuous ride, and that Flatbush was apparently discriminated against, because other districts were exempt from the plural fare burden. He said that if the people were sure that the company was acting within its rights the trouble would cease, and the people would adjust themselves quietly to the new conditions.

Joseph T. Griffin of the Passenger Protective Association suggested that Mr. Nixon issue an order temporarily restraining the company from exacting a second fare, and that it should run until the matter could be settled by a court decision. Mr. Nixon replied by saying that he would inquire into the extent of his jurisdiction and that such an order as the one suggested would be issued if he had the authority.

On behalf of the company Colonel William N. Dykman contended that the present laws did not affect the rights obtained by the company in its charters and franchises, prior to 1884, to charge a double fare.

Arthur Willmott, a certified public accountant and Secretary of the Flatlands Civic Association, told Mr. Nixon that, while his association preferred a single fare, its members realized that a second fare might be necessary if the company intended to maintain an efficient service. In reply to questions by Assistant Corporation Counsel Vincent Victory, Mr. Willmott said that he did not believe the company was earning any profits because of the shrinkage of the purchasing power of the nickel.

One of the speakers asked that the company be restrained from using "strong-arm" men to throw passengers off the cars, but Mr. Nixon replied that all questions of law and order must be submitted to the police. It was understood that if Mr. Nixon issues an order restraining the company from charging a double fare, the matter will be taken at once to the courts. Mr. Nixon reserved decision until early next week.

Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, criticised Mr. Nixon yesterday for the latter's reflections on the legality of the present method of the City Administration in operating the buses. Mr. Whalen stated that the transportation problem was a gigantic one, and that Mr. Nixon's efforts to help in solving it, and not in seeking to obstruct those engaged in the work.

Mr. Whalen suggested that Mr. Nixon would serve the public better by preventing the Brooklyn City Railroad Company from charging a second fare than by raising "a picayune obstacle in the path of the bus enterprise."

VIENNA SUFFERS IN COLD.

Fuel Shortage Increases Death Rate —Pedestrians Plunder Coal.

VIENNA, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—Five days of rain and snow, with a temperature around the freezing point, has caused much distress in Vienna. There is no fuel for heating, and there has been a rigid curtailment of lighting and street car service. It is reported by the hospital authorities that because of lack of heat the death rate in maternity cases is increasing.

Well-dressed men and women were attracted today by trucks filled with coal. They demanded to know for whom the fuel was intended. When they learned it was for the use of a citizen they surrounded the carts and began unloading them, the women turning up their skirts and filling them with coal, while the men crammed their overcoat pockets and dispatch cases. One large truck was emptied in this manner in a few minutes, the driver offering no objection. The police looked on.

Interference with supplies of food and other materials for Vienna and Lower Austria from the Province of Upper Austria was made permanent today by the action of the Diet of Upper Austria today, which refused to rescind its decree imposing duties on exports and requiring permits for the transportation of supplies meant for other parts of Austria.

"It declared that only a court decision altering this would be accepted. The Diet also insisted on the right of the Province to enact legislation without reference to the Central Government.

DEBASING SILVER COINS.

Financial Experts Considering Reducing Amount of Metal in Them.

Advices from abroad state that the question of debasing silver coins has recently been discussed in leading financial circles, as a direct result of the sensational rise in the price of silver bullion. In France and Italy, it is said, it is now profitable to melt silver coins and export them to the United States, selling the bullion here at the market rate and remitting the proceeds to those countries by way of the foreign exchange market. According to René Léon, head of the bullion department of the Guaranty Trust Company, the French Government has taken steps to discourage the exporting of the metal. Commenting on the situation, Mr. Léon said:

"This is the situation as it exists today. Silver coinage was actually being melted down in France and exported until the Government put a stern stop to it. The Government, however, cannot prevent hoarding, and this practice is obviously current in France.

"Facing such a situation, Governments have three possible alternatives. The first is buying more silver. This is difficult in view of the scarcity of stocks. Moreover, additional silver coinage would only give increased opportunities for hoarding and melting, which are the very practices that it is desired to stop. The second suggested alternative is the withdrawal of silver coinage and the issuance of paper currency, but this is objected to as promoting inflation. A decrease of the metal reserve and a further issue of fiat money could serve only to send prices soaring and increasingly undermine the economic structure which it is the desire of all nations to buttress against further weakening.

"There remains only one poss bility, and that is to reduce the amount of silver in the fractional coins, or, in other words, debase them. This is the solution which is now almost certainly being considered in France. Indeed, we have just had a cable on this very subject from Mr. Breton, Vice President of this company, who is now in Paris, in which he says: 'Silver purchases will not solve the problem and will lead to more unlawful transactions. The problem will probably be debated among leading countries and debasing will probably be discussed.'"

France Will Co-operate with Germany in Erecting a Customs Barrier

PARIS, Nov. 6.—A customs barrier will be established without delay, with the co-operation of the French authorities, between France and Germany, according to advices received from German newspapers.

The absence of a customs frontier between France, including Alsace-Lorraine, and the occupied regions of Germany has been a source of financial and economic embarrassment to the German Government, owing to the fact that goods brought into the occupied regions were easily smuggled into the rest of Germany.

CONTINUE GERMAN SCHOOLS

Poles Also Permit Freedom of Religious Teaching in Annexed Areas.

WARSAW, Nov. 6.—The Polish Government, in conformity with the terms of the Peace Treaty, has consented to the continuance of German schools in the former Prussian part of Poland in which the children of the German population may pursue their studies. These schools will be maintained as public schools at the expense of the State.

The German Evangelical Church, also in accordance with the terms of the treaty regarding protection of religious and racial minorities, will enjoy complete liberty as to religious teaching.

International Nickel Surplus Drops.

The International Nickel Company for the six months ended Sept. 30, reports a surplus, after charges, Federal taxes and preferred dividends, of $512,002, which is equivalent to 30 cents a share on the common stock. This amount represents a sharp falling off from the $3,415,905 in the corresponding period of last year, which was equivalent to $2.04 a share on the common. In the first six months of 1917 the balance available for the common was $4,894,396 and in 1916 it was $6,076,869.

Mark Touches Very Low Record.

BERNE, Wednesday, Nov. 5.—The mark touched an unprecedented low record today, fourteen and one-half francs selling for 100 marks.

Austrian crowns were stationary, 100 crowns selling at between five and six francs.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 11,942 packages. Market steady, with fair trading. Demand mainly of a jobbing character, but there is some call for cars of centralized fresh from 63@65c at mains. Dairy creamery has pretty good attention and the market is firm on the fancy grades. Renovated doing better. Ladies and packing stock steady to firm. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 69½c; firsts, 90 to 91 score, 65@66c; firsts, 88 to 89 score, 61@63½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 55@58½c; lower grades, 52@54c; held, higher than extras, 68@68½c; extras, 65½@66c; firsts, 60@65c; seconds, 55@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 72½@73½c; extras, 71½@72c; firsts, 64@70c; seconds, 58@62c; State dairy tubs, finest, 68@69c; good to prime, 63@67c; common to fair, 52@62c; renovated, extras, 69@71½c; ladies, current make, firsts, 49½@50½c; seconds, 48@48¼c; lower grades, 46@47½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 46c; No. 2, 47c; lower grades, 44@46½c.

EGGS.—7,885 cases. The market maintains the firm tone under continued light receipts and some scarcity of high quality fresh goods. For such prices rule slightly in sellers' favor and good medium qualities are taken a little more promptly than heretofore, although seriously defective held fresh are dull of sale and there are large accumulations of these that are still freely offered. Storage eggs in fair demand and steady. Nearby white eggs scarce in the highest grades. California stock in yesterday sold up to 98c; the same price is being realized on the finest qualities from nearby points, although most of the receipts are of defective quality and lower value. Fresh gathered extras, loose, 70@71c; extra firsts, 66@68c; firsts, 61@65c; seconds, 55@60c; under grades, 45@54c; dirties, No. 1, 50@52c; No. 2 and poorer, 43@49c; checks, good to choice, dry, 42@46c; under grades, 38@41c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 53@54c; firsts, 51½@52½c; seconds, 47@51c; under grades, 36@46c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, Western, henneryy whites, fine to fancy, 94@98c; fair to prime, 75@93c; gathered whites, common to prime, 70@95c; pullets, 65@75c; Pacific Coast, whites, express, fancy, 98c; other Western and Southern, fancy, gathered whites, 96@98c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, henneryy browns, fancy, 75@78c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 70@72c; fair to prime, 65@69c.

PALMER WANTS CURB ON STRIKE EXTENDED

Asks House to Continue Lever Act Six Months After Peace.

FEARS RISE IN FOOD PRICES

Attorney General Says President Has Power to Take Over the Coal Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Attorney General Palmer urged the House Committee on Agriculture today to act immediately on his recommendation to extend the life of the Lever act for six months after peace is declared, so that the Government will not be weakened in its fight against the striking coal miners and food profiteers. He said the Government would be without adequate law to cope with the strike situation or the high cost of living if the wartime regulations carried in the Food Control act became void with the declaration of peace.

In reply to questions from Representatives concerning the coal strike the Attorney General said no legal steps except the Indianapolis injunction were under consideration. "The failure of the men to carry out the contract to work at a certain wage during the war is the primary cause of the strike," he said.

He declared the President had the power to "take over the coal mines if he saw fit." While fixing the price of food was allowable under the law, he knew of nothing that contemplated the use of that authority.

He predicted that prices would increase immediately after wartime regulations were lifted, and intimated that he might find it necessary at the end of six months to ask for the continuance of the Lever act for another six months.

It is generally believed the request will be granted in the House. Opposition in the Senate is stronger, but friends of the Administration say this will disappear when the true conditions are fully presented.

"Charts prepared by the War Industries Board show that the moment Federal control began the spread of prices of controlled and uncontrolled industries began to widen," said Mr. Palmer.

Prices of uncontrolled products were much higher than those of controlled products. Since the armistice prices have very largely increased.

"Of course, I do not contend that the use of this law will itself protect the people against high prices, or will result in any sweeping reduction in prices. In a large measure I believe that the high cost of living is due to economic conditions which are worldwide in their scope and which are based upon conditions which must be changed before results are different. Another cause for increased prices is the pyramiding of credits. Nations have borrowed tremendous sums from their people and issued securities, borrowed again and issued securities, and repeated the process until we have an inflation of credit, conditions which the law-making department cannot change.

"Advantage is continually being taken of these conditions by unscrupulous persons, and right there is the necessity for this law. The necessity for it continues as long as these conditions continue. If it was wise to have this during the war in the public interest it is more necessary now.

"I would not like to see any part of the law repealed. I feel that it is better to have all of the law on the books, so that it may be enforced if conditions demand it. We have found it absolutely necessary to re-establish the Fuel Administration. If this coal strike situation could not be taken up, it will undoubtedly be necessary to continue the Fuel Administration for some time. If the law went out of existence and we wished to prevent operators from increasing prices, as we are able to do under it, we would not be able to bring action against the operators.

"It seems to me that in view of the objections you have called attention to, it would be wiser to have the House and Senate pass a joint and concurrent resolution extending for six months the provisions of this law," interposed Representative Rubeyn, Democrat, Missouri. "I think that is an excellent suggestion," said Mr. Palmer. "The quickest and easiest thing to do would be to extend the entire law. The main purpose of the extension is to deal with profiteering and hoarding and continue the control of the Fuel Administration."

Report Blumenthal Leather Merger

The F. Blumenthal Co. and its subsidiaries, it is reported, will be combined in the Amalgamated Leather Companies, Inc., with the dominant interests in the former to continue in control. The F. Blumenthal Co., a Delaware concern, is the largest manufacturer of glazed kid in the world. All of its trade marks and formulas will pass to Amalgamated Leather. J. Stevens Ulman will act as Chairman of the Board and President of Amalgamated.

TO SELL LIBRARY OF HENRY F. DE PUY

Collection Contains Valuable Books and Manuscripts Relating to America.

SALE WILL BEGIN NOV. 17

Volumes Dealing with History of New York Have Principal Place in Collection.

The library of Henry F. De Puy, considered the finest collection of Americana, particularly books relating to New York, ever offered at sale, will be dispersed at the Anderson Galleries on Nov. 17 and 18. Mr. De Puy has published many contributions to bibliography, notably "A Bibliography of the English Colonial Treaties with the American Indians." In a recent letter from Maryland, where he will make his future home, Mr. De Puy writes:

"My book collection began more than thirty-five years ago and at first was entirely confined to books relating to the Iroquois Indians. That naturally developed into Canadiana and to Colonial New York. I have gone into only a few lines outside of that. A good lot of contemporary pamphlets and broadsides on the United States Constitution, a collection of Indian Captivities, and another relating to the War of 1812 are the principal things outside of New York and Canadian books.

"Among the New York books I have succeeded in the course of years in getting some very complete lists of works on special topics. For instance Hamilton and Burr, Anti-Masonry, Oneida Community, Canals and Railways and Boundary disputes. Among the Canadiana are nearly thirty contemporary titles relating to Lord Selkirk's Red River Settlement.

"I have never attempted to buy manuscripts unless they were of special interest, as, for instance, one of the two Journals which gave an account of the first time the American flag was under fire, Arnold's account of his treason, and Washington's announcement to the army of the signing of the treaty of peace."

The letter of Benedict Arnold is addressed to Lord North and is dated London, May, 1783. It is one of the greatest American documents that exists today, as it is the only piece in which Arnold personally mentions his desertion and treason. He not only gives an account of his treason, but mentions the sum of £6,000 which he received. In addition he speaks in raising in New York of "The American Legion" to be used against his former brother officers in America. He mentions also Mrs. Arnold and his family, how they had to flee from this country, and his brilliant prospects in the American colony.

Added to Lord North's letter placed on the British establishment, as his and Mrs. Arnold's pensions would be greatly inadequate for the support of his numerous family.

Pierre Boucher's "Histoire Veritable et Naturelle," Paris, 1664, is a fine copy of this rare work. It is one of the books from the "Ville des Trois Rivieres, where the author was Governor for the King of France. He was one of the oldest inhabitants of New France, and must have gone out with Champlain very early in the century. This book comes from the library of Colbert, to whom the book is dedicated. The Church Catalogue cites but six copies, and prior to 1905 but five copies had appeared at auction. Since then the Sunderland copy has twice been resold, first at the Barrinot sale, when it went to Wilberforce Eames, and later at the sale of Mr. Eames's library, and the present copy, which came from the Huth collection.

"Breedon-Raedt," Amsterdam, 1649, is a rare tract, considered by Muller to be the most important document existing on the New Netherlands. "Amboyna," London, 1653, is another rarity. In March, 1653, some of the British settlers in New England claimed to have discovered a plot on the part of the Dutch in New Netherlands to hire the Indians to massacre all the British in New England. The so-called "Tragedy of Amboyna" was still fresh in the minds of the British, and when the news of this plot was published the above seemed a natural title for the book. It is the rarest book relating to New York. Only three copies appear to be known of—the present one, the Murphy-Kalbfleisch-Church copy, and one in the British Museum. It is the first book in English wholly about New York, being printed forty years earlier than Denton's "Description." Earlier references to New York are in English books printed before 1653, but they are all general works.

First Account of New York.

There is also an exceptional copy of Daniel Denton's "New York," published in London in 1670. This is the first account of this city printed in English with the imprint absolutely intact. Nearly all the known copies have the last line of the imprint cut away. The present copy is larger than that in the Halsey Library. Louis Bridel's "Le Nouveau" is one of the rarest of New York pamphlets. Edmund Burke's "A Complete History of the Late War," London, 1765, is rare. There was no copy of it in the Americana collections of Menzies, Barlow, or Ives, and the Brinley copy was imprinted. William Burnet's "Essay on Scripture Prophecy," New York, 1724, is the first production of the William Bradford Press.

A series of eighteen autograph letters by Aaron Burr, bound in one volume and written at Amsterdam on New York from Aug. 7, 1811, to March 8, 1816, are all addressed to John Vanderlyn, a well-known portrait painter, who by Burr's generosity had been enabled to pursue his studies in Paris and Rome. A Short and Brief Narration of the Two Navigations and Discoveries to the North West Partes Called 'Newe France,'" by Jacques Cartier, translated into English by John Florio, London, 1580, is one of the earliest books relating to Canada and the first book in English on the Iroquois Indians. "Les Voyages" of Samuel de Champlain, Paris, 1613, is the rare first edition, with 52 additional pages containing a fourth voyage, 1613, not mentioned in the index. The map facing Page 160 was the first of the coast line of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and New England in which any attempt was made to lay down astronomical positions, and is rarely found with the work.

Charles Chauncey's "Letter to a Friend," Boston, 1755, is so rare that but one copy, the Brinley-Murphy copy, appeared at auction. William in Colbreath's manuscript "Journal of the Most Material Occurences Proceeding the Siege of Fort Schuyler" is an important manuscript on American Revolutionary matters. Cadwallader Colden's "History of the Five Indian Nations," New York, 1727, is the original edition, and all that was ever published in this country. "A View of the Present Situation of the Western Part of New York, called the Genessee Country," Fredericktown, 1804, by Ignatius Davis, is a little work of great rarity, and apparently the only copy which has occurred at public auction. It comes from the Hurst's Library, and was unknown to Sabin. There was no copy in the Church collection.

"A Declaration of Independence by the Congress at Philadelphia in 1775," published in New York in 1731, is the original unbound and uncut edition. It appears to be the first offering of this important piece at auction in at least thirty years. "Vertoogh Van Nieuw-Neder-Land," by Adrian van der Donck, published at Graven-Hage in 1655, is one of the most important works on the history of New Netherland published up to that year. His "Beschrvinge Van Nieuw-Nederiant," Amsterdam, 1655, is the excessively rare edition.

"Cesariosis Episcopi Chronicon," by Escobius, published in 1612, is of great importance to the Americana collector, as it contains the first printed reference to the Canadian Indians. There was no copy in the collections of Church or Rich. "An Animadversory Address to the Inhabitants of Vermont," Hartford, 1778, has at the foot of the title the autograph of Colonel Ethan Allen. "To be Delivered to the Hon'ble Brig. Gen. Stark." A rare broadside relates to the Battle of Lake Toargo on Sept. 8, 1755. Another rare broadside is "A Proclamation" by Governor William Tryon, New York, Dec. 14, 1771, of the "Abbreviate of Holland's Deliverance By, and Ingratitude To the Crown of England and to the House of Nassau," London, 1665, by E. Cliffe, is rare. The writer refers to the West Indies Company and to Virginia and to New England. There is also an account of the settlement of New Netherland by the Dutch in 1674. Only one other copy is known.

5 HELD FOR BOSTON CRIME.

Men Arrested Yesterday Accused of Robbing Paymaster of $12,000.

A private detective who was watching a man wanted in Boston, caused the arrest yesterday of five men sought by the Boston police in connection with the hold up of a paymaster in that city, who was robbed of $12,000. Detective John Graham was trailing John Reynolds, when he saw him join another man and walk with him to a furnished room house in West Fiftieth Street. The detective decided they had gone to join other men, so he notified Police Headquarters. The police besides arresting the men, said they had also found evidence at the house that would tend to connect the prisoners with the Boston robbery.

The prisoners gave their names and occupations as Matthew Smith, naval aviator, 35 Cottage Street, Boston; Fred McHughes, janitor, 51 Dexter Street, Dorchester, Mass.; John Reynolds, machinist, 1 Errich Street, Neponsit, Mass.; James Quinn, chauffeur, 107 Union Park, Boston; and George H. Sheehan, a waiter, 1,513 Washington Avenue, Boston. They were charged with being fugitives from justice.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—The hold-up for which five men were arrested in New York today was that of a paymaster of the Bakers and Grocers Association in this city three months ago. The paymaster had drawn $12,000 from the Fidelity Trust Company and was on his way to the association's office in a taxicab, accompanied by a messenger, when the car was stopped in Albany Street by another taxicab. Four or five young men got out of the second car, stole the money and escaped.

BOWERY MISSION PRAISED.

Governor and Bishop Burch Speak at Fortieth Anniversary Exercises.

Governor Alfred E. Smith and Bishop Burch of New York were the principal speakers last night at the exercises marking the fortieth anniversary of the Bowery Mission. Both congratulated the mission on its splendid record accomplished in twoscore years of work among the poor of the city. John J Hallimond, Superintendent, presided Bishop Burch complimented Governor Smith for his interest in the spiritual as well as the material welfare of the people of the State. He said that the old saying that Church and State would really one was untrue; that there was an Indelible union between the two. Governor Smith agreed with the Bishop in his assertion that Church and State were in reality one and spoke of the tremendous power such a union exercised in behalf of the city State and nation. The Governor spoke briefly of the mission's work, and told how as a boy he had seen the hungry flock to jobs found for the unemployed by the organization.

ENDS HER LIFE WITH RAZOR.

Brooklyn Woman Became Despondent When Son Went to War.

Suffering from melancholia, Mrs. Julia Conner, 50 years old, of 106 Barbey Street, Brooklyn, committed suicide by cutting her throat with a razor in the bedroom of her home late yesterday, according to the police. Benjamin F. Conner, the husband, is head of the Conner, Fendler & Co., printers' supplies, Manhattan, and the home is in the Arlington section of East New York.

The woman, it is said, became melancholy when Lincoln, the youngest of three sons, who served with the 306th Artillery, 77th Division was drafted. Although the lad returned home unhurt, her condition did not improve, it is said.

Mrs. Conner was to have acted as hostess at a card party which was to have been given by Lincoln last night. She told her sister, Mrs. Selma Inseen, that she was going to dress, went to the bathroom, evidently to obtain the razor and then to her bedroom, where she is alleged to have taken her life.

TO AVOID UTILITY STRIKES.

Merchants' Association Indorses Towne's Legal Contract Plan.

The Merchants' Association has submitted to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for referendum vote a plan for the prevention of strikes by employes of public utility corporations.

The plan, which was submitted to the Merchants' Association today by Henry R. Towne, Chairman of the Board of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, provides that service shall be regulated by law, so that each person who enters employment shall be legally obligated by contract to continue service for a specified time. During the prescribed period he cannot lawfully quit nor may he be discharged except according to the provisions of the contract.

Resolutions adopted by the Merchants' Association say that the functions of public utilities, exercised only under public authorization, become public agencies and should be controlled by law in the public interest. To obtain this result, the resolution says, continuous and uninterrupted operation must be maintained, and therefore strikes should be guarded against by law.

100 NAVY MEN BECALMED.

Group Asks Knights of Columbus's Aid to Expedite Discharge.

About 100 naval aviation men at Montauk Point, who are still held in the service because their service records were lost, have appealed to William P. Larkin, Overseas Director of the Knights of Columbus, to use his influence to have the Navy Department speed up the search that is being made for their papers. In the meantime they are held at camp with restricted privileges and paid $2 a day, which they cannot spend.

The men were enlisted for service during the war. They have been engaged in operating with the seaplane and balloon service of the navy along the shore of Long Island. They include mechanics, tool men and tenders. When it was time for demobilizing them their officers found it impossible to do so, as regulations provide that no man can leave the service without having his service record properly indorsed.

Held for Running Over Child.

Miss Eunice Allen, a teacher, 24 years old, of 2,565 Grand Concourse and Boulevard, the Bronx, was held in $500 bail yesterday by Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham in the Morrisania Court on an affidavit allesging suspicion of felonious assault. It is alleged by Patrolman Charles Ahearn of the Bathgate Avenue Station that an automobile driven by the defendant struck down Lilino Lambert, a 9-year-old schoolgirl, of 2,376 Ryer Avenue, yesterday morning at 184th Street and Grand Concourse. The injured child was taken to Fordham Hospital.

France Honors Dr. Robert L. Kelly.

Dr. Robert L. Kelly, Executive Secretary of the Association of American Colleges, received official notice yesterday that he had been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French Government for his services in arranging for the exchange of French and American college students. Dr. Kelly is now head of the Educational Division of the Interchurch World Movement. He was formerly President of Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

In the fire insurance district, where rentable space is at a premium, Post & Martin yesterday purchased the fourteen-story fireproof office building at 48 Cedar Street from the Continental Insurance Company. The deal also included the three-story building at 42 Cedar Street, which permanently insures the light protection of the taller structure. The larger building stands on a plot 78.3 by 76.2 by irregular, and the parcel at 42 Cedar Street measures 20.7 by 48.

The property was the former home office of the Continental Insurance Company, and it is understood the price was $1,500,000.

The property adjoins the southwest corner of Cedar and William Streets and is opposite the large buildings of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., negotiated the transaction.

The Broadway-John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, has resold to William E. Peck & Co. 136 to 140 Front Street, a seven-story building, occupying the front from Pine to De Peyster Street and covers a plot 59 by 83. The purchasers after extensive improvements will occupy five floors. The Financial Chronicle, which has been a tenant in the building for many years, will continue to occupy the remaining two floors on a long-term lease. The total investment will be about $400,000. Charles F. Noyes & Co. were the brokers in the sale.

The Broadway-John Street Corporation also purchased from Hester A. Bonta and Adolph L. Gondran 142 and 144 Liberty Street and 151 and 153 Cedar Street, abutting, between Washington and West Streets. On the Liberty Street end is a five-story structure with stores, on a plot 50 by 55, and on Cedar Street there are two five-story buildings, on a plot 44 by 55. The property is to be altered by Mr. Cohen. Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd were the brokers.

$400,000 Midtown Loft Deal.

The midtown loft zone, where there has been a revival of speculative activity during the last couple of weeks, furnished another important transaction yesterday in the sale of the Antler Building, a twelve-story structure at 57, 59, and 61 West Thirty-eighth Street, to Arthur Greenbaum, operator.

The structure, which occupies a plot 56 by 98.9, located between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, was sold by the builders, Joseph E. Gilbert and Louis Kramer. It was held at $600,000 and shows a gross annual rental of about $75,000. Harry B. Cutner negotiated the transaction.

$300,000 Structure Sold Loft Deal.

Irving Judis bought from the Fairfield Realty Company the nine-story loft on a plot 59 by 80 feet at 64 to 68 Fulton Street, renting for $50,000 and held at $300,000. Edward Crosby & Co. and S. Osgood Pell & Co. were the brokers.

Seventh Avenue Corner Leased as Site for New Building.

As a site for a new seven-story building the McReynolds Realty Corporation, James M. Reynolds, President, has leased for twenty-one years the northwest corner of Forty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue. The plot adjoins the Rivoli Theatre and is 38 feet from the corner of Broadway. The ground floor will be subdivided into seven stores. There will be an entrance through the basement to the Seventh Avenue Subway. The entire transaction involved over $400,000. Ames & Co. were the brokers.

Markham Company Buys on West Street.

Ziegler Estate Sale Today.

Today at 11 A. M., in the Vesey Street Auction Room, Bryan L. Kennelly will open the first session of the William Ziegler estate auction of suburban properties. Seldom in the history of the auction room has such a wide range of choice of properties been offered at one sale. Added interest in this sale is occasioned by the fact that the owners have signified their willingness to advance the necessary funds to buyers wishing to build homes. In addition to that, they have made arrangements with a firm of builders of national reputation to deliver the necessary material for a finished house within a few days after the order is placed, and also erect the house on a 15 per cent. basis. Illustrated maps have been prepared showing the designs and plans of houses, together with the prices, so that the uninitiated may visualize at a glance what style of house he prefers.

Realty Note.

The New York Title and Mortgage Company recently made the following building loans: $70,000 for the erection of a five-story apartment at the junction of Grand Boulevard and Concourse and Weeks Avenue, to the 173d Street Construction Company; $75,000 to the F. W. Schwiers, Jr., Company for the erection of a steel constructed warehouse at the northwest corner of Forty-eighth Street and Eleventh Avenue; $35,000 to Hannan Garage Company for the erection of a garage on their property, 431 and 435 West Sixteenth Street; $20,000 to the White Lion Garage, Incorporated, for the erection of a garage on the northeast corner of 162d Street and Sherman Avenue.

WATCHM

A. C. WEAVER,
Lincoln Square,
New York.

October 22, 1919.

The New York Times:

On Sunday I inserted an advertisement for a bookkeeper in the Help Wanted, Female columns of The New York Times and was surprised at the number of replies and the character of intelligence displayed in the answers.

I have secured the services of a lady who I have every reason to believe will assume the requirements of this establishment.

This is the second time I have secured assistants promptly through the Classified Columns of The Times.

A. C. WEAVER.

United States.

An examination will be held on Nov. 19 and Dec. 10 for operative, Bureau of the Census, male and female, and an examination will also be held for clerk, Bureau of the Census, male and female, on Nov. 15, for employment at Washington, D. C. The commission states that there were not as many applicants for the October examinations for these positions as were expected, and that several thousand appointments are to be made to each of the positions mentioned. The entrance salaries will range from $900 to $1,020 a year for clerks, and from $800 to $960 a year, if on a yearly basis, for operatives. All appointees on a per annum basis whose services prove satisfactory will be allowed the bonus of $20 a month granted by Congress. It will thus be seen that those who enter at $900 a year will receive $95 a month if their services prove satisfactory; those who enter at $960 a year, $100 a month, and those who enter at $1,020 a year, $105 a month. Promotion will be reasonably rapid for those who merit it. Applications may be secured by addressing the Civil Service Board, Room 319 Custom House, New York.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Pressure is low over the interior districts west of the Rocky Mountains, with a well-defined centre of depression over Wyoming and Nebraska. Elsewhere pressure is high, decidedly so in the East, but, notwithstanding the general high pressure, cloudy weather prevails throughout the United States, except in the Pacific States and along the South Atlantic Coast. There were light rains in the upper lakes region and the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee. Light local showers in Texas, light snows over the low-pressure region in the extreme west, and rains in the North Pacific States.

It is considerably cooler in the West Gulf States, West Montana, Idaho, Utah, and Nevada, and warmer in the lakes. Elsewhere temperatures remain nearly normal.

Cloudy weather will continue east of the Mississippi during the next forty-eight hours with rain probable by Sunday in the East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the upper lake region, with possibly some snow in the northern upper lake region.

There will be no extensive temperature changes. Winds off the Atlantic Coast: North of Sandy Hook, moderate north; fair weather; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate north and northeast, cloudy weather; Hatteras to Florida Straits, moderate northeast, generally fair weather; East Gulf Coast, gentle to moderate east, generally fair; West Gulf Coast, moderate east and southeast, partly cloudy to cloudy weather.

FORECAST: TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Generally cloudy Saturday and Sunday, little change in temperature.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Saturday and Sunday, little change in temperature.

Northern New England—Rain Saturday; Sunday partly cloudy.

3 A. M.....37	42	4 P. M.....43	50
6 A. M.....36	40	6 P. M.....43	51
9 A. M.....41	42	9 P. M.....43	48
12 M.....44	44	11 P. M.....41	47

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 42; for the corresponding date last year it was 46; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 47.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 38; at 8 P. M. it was 44. Maximum temperature, 47 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 36 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 76 per cent. at 8 A. M., 67 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.24 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.29 inches.

CHURCHES PROPOSE NEW CABINET OFFICE

Ask for National Department of Education, with a Secretary.

URGE ACTION BY CONGRESS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 7.—Passage of the Smith-Towner bill for the creation of a National Department of Education with a Secretary of Education in the Cabinet, and united efforts by Protestant bodies to obtain favorable action by Congress on the measure, was urged by Walter S. Athearne of Boston University tonight at the National "Training School" of the Inter-Church World Movement of North America. A national program of religious education, he declared, should include the creation of community religious education in which the churches would use music, art, drama, and recreation as agencies for spiritualizing the ideals of the whole community.

Robert L. Kelly of Chicago, Secretary of the General Board of Church Education, declared that the university men of the United States and the allied nations had won the war. He said that 60 per cent. of the students now in the universities of France are women, when before the war there were comparatively few. Seventy per cent. of the students in American universities, both private and State, and in the technical and professional schools, are members of Protestant churches, he asserted.

George C. Mahy, of Philadelphia, of the New Era Movement of the Presbyterian Church, led a discussion on American home life, and painted a pessimistic picture, and declared that the churches must actively unite to put American homes back on a healthy basis.

"Christian householders who prefer to let rooms to men rather than to working girls, and church and parish house janitors who keep the doors locked against young people because the carpets might be muddied," were arraigned by Mrs. Fred S. Bennet of New York City, President of the National Council of Women for Home Missions.

Mrs. Bennet, who is engaged in an investigation of the girls' housing condition in industrial centres, condemned "the church people who refuse their rooms to working girls because the latter want to press clothes and use a little electricity."

Convention of Clients Closes.

The Convention of Clients, representing business men from every part of the country, which began on Thursday, closed yesterday. The men who attended the convention were interested in the manufacture of many widely dissimilar commodities, and were the guests of the George Batten Company, which acts as advertising counsel for their firms. They were invited to meet and discuss topics of common interest relating to organization, research, production, and merchandising. A dinner was given for the clients at the Waldorf last night.

Trinity to Hear Australian Bishop.

The Right Rev. G. H. Cranswick, Bishop of Gippsland, Australia, has arrived in New York for a tour of the United States. Bishop Cranswick will speak at Trinity Church, Broadway and Wall Street, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He will take as his text, "Conditions of Life in Australia."

THIEVES OVERLOOK $110,000

Burglars overlooked securities valued at $110,000 on Thursday night in their anxiety to carry away large bundles of furs and silverware from the home of Mrs. Paul D. Langdon, at 140 West Fifty-eighth Street. In the package of securities were Liberty bonds and other unregistered bonds that could have been negotiated easily.

When Mrs. Langdon returned from a concert she found her bedroom window open and the furniture so disarranged that she decided to call the police. In one of the rooms was a large bundle of furs, linens, and silverware. The burglars apparently had been frightened away before they had been able to finish their job. Closer examination of the apartment disclosed that only $1,500 worth of silver and jewels had been taken. A drawer containing the securities apparently had not been opened.

A policeman's curiosity prevented four thieves escaping with silks, satins, and linens valued at $25,000 which they had stolen from Bush Terminal, Brooklyn, on Thursday night. Patrolman Gerry, walking post on Clinton Street, near Fulton Street, saw a large, heavily loaded truck approach on Clinton Street. He stopped it and questioned the four men who were on it. Three of them ran, and the fourth was arrested. He said he was James Ward of 69 Cranberry Street, Brookolyn.

TO SIFT ASHES FOR CLUE.

Coroner Scouts Theory That Dansey Boy Perished in Barn.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 7.—By direction of District Attorney Aldrich ashes in the ruins of a barn at Perry's Corners are to be sifted in an effort to find a clue to the identity of the person or persons believed to have perished when the barn burned.

Coroner Card believes bones found were those of a man, woman, and child. He scouts the theory that "Billy" Dansey, the missing New Jersey boy, was one of the victims.

RALPH GREENLEAF FREED.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 7.—Ralph Greenleaf, the expert pocket billiardist, who was detained here last night in connection with the efforts of the authorities to solve the murder of Benjamin Binkowitz, was released this noon after being under examination for a short time by Coroner Mix of New Haven. George Worden of New York, who is Greenleaf's manager, was also released. Both men returned to this city this afternoon to continue their exhibition games.

According to a statement issued from the office of Coroner Mix today, the men were not arrested, but simply detained as witnesses. On the other hand, Sergeant Frank Virelli of the State Police, says that he took the two men into custody on orders from Coroner Mix, but further than that he knew nothing of the case.

Greenleaf was playing an exhibition game of pocket billiards in a local billiard parlor last night, and at the conclusion of the game State Policeman Virelli placed him and his manager under arrest. They spent the night in a cell. Both men were taken to New Haven this morning, and shortly after their interview with the Coroner returned to the city. They say that their arrest was a blunder and that they would have gone before Coroner Mix voluntary if they had known that their presence or testimony was wanted.

Not Just Retailed By A Retailer

WE SUPPLEMENT the Greatest Idea, which ever dignified Clothing, with the Greatest Assortment in Greater New York. As this is our first season in Ready-To-Wear Clothes, everything here is new, as befits a debutante. We are not running an Old Goods' Home, where discontinued models and rejected colors dream of a vanished vogue. The "Shapelee" and the "Stovepipe" Overcoats are our own ultra-exclusive custom innovations.

As concerns wear, most "Warmth-Without-Weight" Overcoats ought to be re-christened, "Warmth-Without-Wear." The nap rubs off from the soft, spongy wool around edges, pockets and sleeves. You don't catch Clemons Overcoats napping, because they are Long-Staple Pure Virgin Wool. They wear like sixty, even if the price amounts to a mere $40 or $50.

Take Brown! Most clothiers show a handful—we show a storeful. That's because they are dependent upon what the clothing manufacturer doles out. We are independent of any manufacturer, having our own stocks of uncut woollens to draw upon for Complete-To-Wear Overcoats.

No end of Browns—and Greens—and Blues—and Grays—and every other color that they say is scarce. You won't say so when you see our towering stocks.
